Get Senior Class Cards; Today Is Your Last Chance

"Today is the last day for senior card season," announced Al Biddle, senior class treasurer. "Due to the fact that the yearbook is being completed, the last day for purchasing senior cards will be today. Those who have not purchased their cards this week will be unable to purchase them after today," Biddle indicated.

The remaining cards are available at the office of the student body office or in the student body office. Representatives available until today. Only senior card holders will have the privilege of selecting pictures other than graduation.

Events not covered by the senior card revenue are the class dance and post-commencement reception.

Many Cop Wins At All-Campus Stock Judging Rivalry

Charles Jones, junior animal husbandry major, topped all contestants to win Cal Poly's annual livestock judging competition. Jones, along with Rafael Banda, sophomore animal husbandry major, and Duane Noyes, junior animal husbandry major, will represent Cal Poly in the J. T. Thompson award contest.

Jones and Noyes were high individual in cattle, swine, and sheep, respectively, according to Richard P. Johnson, AH Information, and their team was also named to the All-Campus Livestock Judging team.

Dear Editor:

I wish to extend my gratitude and appreciation to the students at Cal Poly for the honor they have extended me in the recent election. I hope that I will be able to fulfill their expectations in the coming year serving them in that capacity. I know that working together as a united student body and with Ray and I, that this coming year will be successful.

Again, I wish to thank all those who helped, and for a marvelous job done.

Ron Daye

Spring Athletics Enter Final Week Of Activity

Cal Poly's baseball squad is rapidly approaching the end of the current campaign, and tomorrow will see Coach Tom Lee's nine winding up league play against title contender Fresno State. A doubleheader is scheduled with the Bulldogs on the Fresno diamond, and the CCAA twin-bill rates as a "crucial" for the best squad. With a 10-2 record in league play, Fresno must win both games to help against Poly to assure a tie with San Diego State when the final standings are in.

Up-And-Down Year

The best nine has had an up-and-down season marked mostly by erratic effort of "good hit, no field," and "good field, no hit." A rare case in point was last Friday's twin-bill with LA State. The Livermores dropped a close 5-6 decision in the first game, and then proceeded to blast the LA club all over the lot to the tune of 21-0 in the drat game, a blasting Fresno earlier in the season when they edged the Bulldogs, 6-2 after they had been no-hit thru the 5th inning as much. Another victory over Fresno would be consistent with the locals' habit of winning the "big ones" and losing the games they're figured to win with comparative ease.

Coach Gene Smith's team's season wound up their dual meet season with the best win-loss record in CCAA play, but the...

What The Faculty Is Doing
Richard L. Leach was poultry and rabbit project judge at the San Luis Obispo county 4-H club fair, Sa., May 15.
William G. Leary, now on leave at Stanford University completing his work toward a doctorate, has resigned from the Cal Poly faculty.

He has accepted a position as curriculum evaluator and teacher of English at Los Angeles State College starting next fall.

R. H. Winters, professor of English, and Robert E. Stengel, of the world-famous Stengel Brothers musical comedy direct, will present a traveling educational program at the Los Angeles State Normal School on Friday afternoon, May 20.

George Henslee and Em Schwartz, architecture, will attend an education meeting of the American Institute of Architects to be held in Los Angeles May 16-18.

Dr. Glenn Nichol, Robert Haegean and William Themm are visiting the campus of USC and UCLA this week to study ways of setting up their laboratories.

Dr. Robert Haegean has been invited to make a presentation at the commencement of Templeton Union High School, Thursday. His subject will be "The Tree That Owns Itself.

The faculty has nine events scheduled this week.

First is the annual relay meet, Wednesday, May 19, at 5 p.m. on the Cal Poly campus field. The faculty meet will be held in Santa Barbara, May 12-18.

They have come a long way since their first match this year; Polyl has had its chance against four of its nine events. The faculty team will compete against the schools of English at the Southern California Athletic Association.

Despite the impressive perfor
