Applications Now Being Accepted For Women Students At Cal Poly

Applications from women will be accepted now at Cal Poly and women teachers will be admitted as of the 1965 summer term, according to Dr. Julian A. McPhee, president. The four-weeks summer term will open June 27. To be admitted prior to September, 1965, women must be holders of a valid teaching credential. Other women may be admitted beginning in the fall.

The opening followed the approval by the Board of Trustees of a plan which included funds in the 1966 state budget for selecting and instructing of women students, a plan which was approved for for this purpose by the Kentucky legislature in 1964.

The State legislature enacted during its early history a sex discriminational legislation, which banned the admission of women on the basis of sex. The law was later declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States in 1967 in the landmark case of Kentucky v. McConvil, 394 U.S. 617.

Formerly a state college for men, Cal Poly has been offering a four-year program for women since 1971, the first state college in California to do so. Since then, Cal Poly has admitted 6,000 women to its undergraduate programs.

Women at Cal Poly have been admitted to the university on a limited basis since 1959, when the decision was made to phase in women as a part of a larger, comprehensive plan for the university's future.

The women's program at Cal Poly is now part of the state's system of higher education, which includes 14 institutions of higher education, including the University of California and the University of Southern California.

The women's program at Cal Poly is one of the largest in the state, with more than 4,000 women enrolled in the university's undergraduate programs.

The university has received national recognition for its commitment to the education of women, and has received numerous awards for its efforts in this area.

The university's goal is to provide a quality education for all students, and to ensure that women have equal access to all programs and opportunities at the university.

The university's faculty and staff are committed to providing an environment that is welcoming and supportive of all students, and to ensuring that women have the same opportunities as men to succeed at the university.

The university is proud of its history of women's education, and continues to work to ensure that all students, regardless of gender, have equal opportunities for success at Cal Poly.

Slevin Scope

First of all, congratulations are due Mr. and Mrs. John Slevin. John was the first Mustang selected on the Santa Barra swimming team... even though the Santa Barbara paper did not inform us of his selection. The student athletes of the Mustang society are eligible for all the disciplines. The student athletes of the Mustang society are eligible for all the disciplines. The student athletes of the Mustang society are eligible for all the disciplines.

We would like to say this... we feel that something along this line helps strengthen an organization very much... when a new member receives us for not using the correct manner, "Neophyte"! do not join the society he passed through a rough and tough process... in our opinion if more of the clubs and societies around this campus had the same spirit the block "P" has we would have a better spirited college... it is our opinion that the students going into these societies also have a more accurate feeling of belonging and a better feeling of ownership with their reciprocal members.

One thing we are sure about is when the Neophyte becomes a full fledged member he is a proud man... good luck to all of you and we hope you can weather the storm over the weekend... we're afraid you might need some good luck and maybe a book or two places. In some cases violent places in the aft end of your person.

Any one seeking to join Mr. John Slevin should ask him which Neophyte let the air out of his right rear tire of his car in Chry. Find yet Joe!
