OCEAN TO OCEAN ACROSS SOUTH AMERICA—AND BACK—IN 41 HOURS!

CHEVY’S NEW VS LEVELS
THE HIGHEST, HARDEST HIGHWAY OVER THE ANDES!

To prove the durability of Chevrolet’s radical new Turbo-Thrust V8, the tremendous flexibility of the new Turbo-Thrust transmission, and the incredible smoothness of Pull Cool suspension, we tackled the most challenging transcontinental road in the world—the 1,000-mile General Martin Highway. To make it harder, the Automobile Club of Argentina sealed the hood shut at Buenos Aires—no chance to add oil or water or adjust carburetors for high altitude.

So the run began—and across the blinding Argentine pampas, into the respiratory of the forbidding Andes. Up and up the road climbed, almost 26 miles in the sky! Drivers gasped for oxygen at 18,000 feet—but the Turbo-Thrust V8 never slackened its torque of power, the Pull Cool springs smoothed every bump, the Turbo-Thrust transmission made play of grades up to 80 percent. Then a plunge to the Pacific at Valparaiso, Core a quick turn-around and back again. Time for the round trip: 43 hours 42 minutes— and the engine was never turned off!

TO SAY THE LEAST
By Alton Pyry
Mumpty Dumpty was sitting on this wall, see. People kept telling him how much he stood out, and him, he thought it was because he was cracked. But Mumpty was a good egg. In fact, he was a real cool egg—or so they say.

No, all the King's horses and all the King's men couldn't change his mind about painting his wall with that Ivy stripe. Why, no sir! Then Mumpty was a "hustler".

If you're wondering why Mumpty was sitting on this wall, well, he was really looking for a chicken to come by, one that he could take to the Easter Bunny Hop. Yeah, he knew he'd be in a real mess and you just weren't with it if you weren't Ivy all the way. Mumpty was so modest that his underwear even had the "clipper" button—mite flannel, you know.

Now it was hot where Mumpty was sitting. He was perspiring so that his Ivy stripe was beginning to drip a little. He was getting that "pooned" look. It wasn't like a cool egg like Mumpty to be sweating. But let's get on with this story. This cool chicken strutted by, Yeah, a "hustler". Mumpty said, "How about you and me boating it to the Bunny Hop together, Yeah, I mean you. This eat was in for a fall. This wall was getting to be hen peeked." And that's the Least.
