Firm pledges $80,000 for architecture building

Morley Builders of Santa Monica, the firm that built the new Cathedral of Our Lady of the Angels in Los Angeles, has pledged $80,000 for the construction of the main conference room in a planned new building for the College of Architecture and Environmental Design.

The commitment is part of a college campaign to raise $7.5 million to combine $17.7 million in state funds to complete the new structure. Plans for the project include classrooms, faculty offices and other facilities for the college’s five departments, primarily Construction Management. It will be located on South Perimeter Drive on the site now occupied by the Air Conditioning Building.

Four of Morley Builders’ vice presidents — Mark Montoya, Charles Muttillo, Chris Forster and Jeff Simonson — are Cal Poly graduates. “Our firm has benefited greatly from the talent and skill of quite a few Cal Poly graduates, and we’re honored to give back to the college by providing one of the lead gifts toward this new building campaign,” company President Mark Benjamin said.

In addition to the Los Angeles cathedral, Morley Builders’ recent projects include restoration and construction at the Getty Villa Museum near Malibu, UCLA’s Royce Hall and the Hollywood Bowl.

Open forum for dean post scheduled for Monday

Open forums and on-campus interviews for the candidates for the position of dean of the College of Architecture and Environmental Design are being scheduled, and the first forum, with Gary Pivo, will be Monday (May 5).

Pivo, dean of the graduate college and director of graduate interdisciplinary programs at the University of Arizona, Tucson, will hold an open forum and reception on Monday.

The faculty, staff and students are encouraged to attend from 3:30 to 5 p.m. in Room 314 in the Architecture and Environmental Design Building.

Pivo will make a short presentation and then answer questions. A short reception will follow.

A copy of Pivo’s resume will be posted on the Academic Personnel Web site at www.academic-personnel.calpoly.edu.

Open forums for other candidates will be announced after arrangements are finalized.

Hunter named interim facility services director

Mark Hunter, associate director for facility services since March 2001, has been named interim director for the department beginning May 19. He succeeds Ed Naretto, who will retire May 16.

Hunter, a Cal Poly construction management alumnus, will be responsible for all facility services, including facility administrative and support services, architectural trades, engineering services and plumbing, custodial services, and landscape and transportation services.

He worked at the University of Texas at Austin for eight years, serving as assistant director of facilities for housing and food service, assistant director for custodial and grounds, and director of the physical plant.

Before beginning a career in higher education facilities management, Hunter worked in the construction industry both locally and in San Francisco.
Arab-Israeli conflict to be focus of May 8 talk

Jonathan Adelman, professor from the Graduate School of International Studies at the University of Denver, will talk on the “Arab-Israeli Conflict: Where Now, After Iraq?” on May 8 as part of a series of talks on the Middle East. Adelman will speak from 7 to 9 p.m. in Phillips Hall in the Christopher Cohan Center. His presentation is the third in a six-part series sponsored by the College of Liberal Arts and the History and Journalism departments. The series is designed to provide a broad perspective on issues affecting the road to peace in the Middle East.

Additional talks in the series are “The Effects of Media Coverage on U.S. Policy in the Middle East” on May 13, “From Oslo to Jenin: From Peace Process to Intifada II” on May 19, and “National Building in Afghanistan and Regime Changes in Iraq: U.S. Promises and Future Prospects” on May 27.
