Activity Building Plans Outlined at SAC Meeting

“We’re as close now as will ever be to having a college union,” announced Dan Lawson, Associate Dean of Activities, at the Student Affairs Council meeting Tuesday. “Approximately $400,000 has been accumulated by the book store for the building of a new book store. This building would have been underway if the idea for a three story building had not been suggested by President Julian A. McPhail,” said Lawson.

According to Lawson, one of these stories would be underbidding and would include student dining halls, student union, and activities similar to the student union. The second story would include classrooms and offices, including the book store, the third story would be a dormitory for students and a conference room.

It was also noted that the plan will be constructed from the top down, that is, the construction will be started at the top of the building and work its way down. The project is expected to be completed within six months.

The project will be financed through student body fees and will not be funded by the state of California. The student body will be able to vote on the project in the near future.

Printers Hustle New Machinery

The Printing Department has been busy this week with a new line of printing machines that will make the department’s printing less expensive.

“The new machines will be installed in the near future,” said Ed McFie, Editor of the Cal Poly Print. “The new machines will also allow us to print more pages per hour, which will save us money in the long run.”

The new machines cost $49,000. The money has been spent on the purchase of the new machines, and the department will be able to print more pages per hour, which will save them money in the long run.

Army Show Puts Atomic Defense

The Army exhibit showing how the Army is fighting to solve the complex problem of providing an effective Atomic-Age National Defense—will be displayed at Cal Poly, in Library 118, April 2.

According to Maj. Henry Bradley, Instructor in Military Science and Tactics, the exhibit, on a nationwide tour of college campuses, is being given.”

This exhibit was prepared by the U.S. Army, and is sponsored by the Army, ROTC, and the University of Kansas, and is being given in the University of Utah. The exhibit, originally requested by the Poly Junior League, was attended by a group of students from Alexandria, Virginia, on April 11.

Boots and Spurs See Cable Car Feedlot

The riotous and Brown Feedlot near Santa Maria was the scene of the Boots and Spurs field trip recently. Approximately 50 members boarded the large feeding operation on an old San Francisco cable car that had been converted to domestic use. The students toured the entire running tracks of the lot that feeds out almost 50,000 head of cattle for California ranchers each year.

DAVEY BANCROFT — Forty savers in Polly's dairy herd underwent a hoof trimming operation recently performed by G. M. Marchel of Santa Maria. Marchel is a professional hoof trimmer and designed and built the rig mounted on his pick-up. He averages from 25 to 60 horses per day. The object of trimming the hooves is to keep them even and prevent lameness and foot rot which inevitably leads to decreased production. As Dairy Department Head Murieta Togni said, "Cows are like people. When their feet hurt, they just all even."

Dear Editor:

For four years, with seething disgust and impatience at the carelessness of consideration of others has been sadly neglected when a habitual-indoors situation prevails. The moral to my tirade is either we use El Corral should clean up our messay tables as we leave—or a 80 cent cup of coffee will be the only solution to the problem, the extra dime going to pay student help to bus the tables.
