Hand-Me-Down Mess Hall Vacated
By Student Architect ‘Designers’

Dr. Daniel Starks

Fifteen years ago architecture came to Cal Poly. The new department was installed in a hand-me-down former mess hall near the old “silver city” trailer park on the east edge of campus. The building was vacated earlier this year by the present administration of student affairs. The present occupant is the Department of Agriculture.

This new occupant has 456 students and 78 faculty members. They are not happy about leaving the building, they are not happy about vacating the building. A sign on the door says, “This building is being vacated.”
