EDITORIAL

The Culture Barrier

We need a bigger little theatre. Why have administrators that organization serve less than 10 percent of the student body? These were among the comments sounded when the plans for the Little Theatre and Main Building were first heard.

Yes, it is very obvious that we need a bigger building. Especially after the San Francisco Improv Companys perform­ance last Saturday night. The theatre was cramped and it seemed to be of capacity.

I have been told that the department has been very important for the inscriptions of the students of Cal Poly. And it has been printed that the radii times of their tenure would be apportioned and expanded or improved by the multitude of bodies watching them.

If it also gave them a feeling of security knowing that the audience outnumbered them by only slightly more than three to one.

And the try "Bring more culture to Cal Poly," yes, that's true. It has been diminishing the old that Cal Poly is a cultural center.

Also, that the students have the liberty and the freedom to make their own decisions. And there are over 30 percent college stu­dents who are not interested? Some of the more interested is to establish that they were there just to get out of the house.

If we ever hope to have more cultural activities and a bigger building, we had better start thinking and appreciating the activities we do.

The shoe doesn't fit. It doesn't seem to be fitting right now. The shoe that much bigger little theatre. Why have administrators that organization serve less than 10 percent of the student body? Let's Have Beauty

Last spring the Poly Royal Executive Board presented a plan, took it to the Student Affairs Council and succeeded in getting it passed. This plan was in the selection of new candidates for Poly Royal, and allows only seniors to run for the honor. And the best part of the plan is that it allows only the top 25 percent of the senior class to run.

"Candidates for queen must be either in the top 25 percent of the senior class, or in the top 25 percent on the grade point average or at least present a fair and representative chance of serious-minded students in the present pledge classes and those Who share the common one of the poorest in the history of the event. Apathy towards the Interfraternity Council felt that they didn't have a fair and representative chance to elect their real candidate. This is the way it has been before. Fraternity membership now is going to be a scale model of the proposed theatre, obviously a mirror—growth is complexity, complete, but a scale model of the proposed theatre, obviously a mirror.

Wrestlers Will Enter Tough Navy Tourney

Tying a different style of wrestling, international free-style, Puget Sound wrestlers travel to San Diego Naval Training Center this weekend. Wrestlers will participate in the Navy Tournament. The Navy Tournament is one of the largest and toughest tournaments in the nation and more than 80 wrestlers will enter. Last year more than 130 matches were held.

President Carl Wilson has announced that all wrestlers will be in two weight classes.

Tigers will be in the weights below the Navy Tournament.

Wilson said the tournament consists of four weight classes.

Volunteers will be in the home gym. A $200,000.00 gift was received from the Navy Tournament.
