Second Trachtenberg Lecture
Will Be Held Monday Night

Approximately 150 persons attended the second Trachtenberg lecture on Feb. 3 in the Cal Poly Union, according to Dr. Robert W. R. Hare of the Mathematics Department. The Trachtenberg system of computation will be the topic of the next lecture on Feb. 10.

The Trachtenberg system of computation was designed by a Russian mathematician in the 1940s. It is an alternative method of doing arithmetical processes that is claimed to be faster than long division and multiplication methods.

The lecture, which was sponsored by the Cal Poly Mathematics Club, included a demonstration of the system by an assistant of the Mathematics Department. The demonstration was followed by a question-and-answer session with the audience.
