Smokers Enjoying It Less, But Still Puffing

By DAVE KORSTANA

College smokers are enjoying it less as a result of the special government-regulated cigarette tax that took effect last year and has continued to be increased. The majority of smokers are in favor of the tax, according to interviews conducted by The Mustang last week.

The tax has resulted in a significant decrease in the amount of money smokers are able to spend on cigarettes. According to the interviews, many smokers have been forced to cut down on smoking or to switch to cheaper brands.

Some smokers, however, have expressed concern that the tax has led to a decrease in the quality of cigarettes available. According to one smoker, "The tax has made it impossible to find cigarettes that are as good as they used to be."

Despite these concerns, the majority of smokers interviewed stated that they believe the tax is a necessary measure to help reduce smoking.

New Method Screens Heart Attacks

An efficient new screening method for use among combatants likely to undergo stress in combat, using long sessions of heart element, has been reported by a Vermont Army hospital. The new method is known as the "heart test," and involves the use of the electrocardiograph, a device that measures the electrical activity of the heart. The test has been found to be effective in detecting early signs of heart disease, and has been praised as a valuable tool for military personnel.

Red Fire Engines Are Going Yellow

Another American tradition may soon follow the British example to use the color red, long a symbol of strength and courage, on fire engines. The move is being considered as a way to make fire engines more visible and to reduce confusion in emergencies. The red fire engines are currently painted yellow, a color that is less noticeable and harder to see.

Says RILW Speaker

"The author is of a speaker who is interested in the church's role in education," said the RILW Speaker, "and I believe that the church should respect the authority of the speaker."
Dr. Overmeyer Practices Jewel Cutting As Hobby

A plot of many hours involves the patient practice of the jewel cutting hobby, which Dr. Overmeyer, associate professor of Industrial Engineering, claims is beneficial to his work as an administrator. Overmeyer has been practicing the craft for the past few years, and he finds it to be a relaxing and creative outlet.

At Cal Poly, Dr. Overmeyer is responsible for the supervision of the Industrial Administration Department, which includes the administrative support for the College of Business Administration.

The object of the class, according to Overmeyer, is to teach students how to present their ideas and projects to others in a clear and concise manner.

While jewel cutting requires a steady hand and careful attention to detail, Overmeyer finds it to be a rewarding hobby.

Mustangs Drop Two More; Stand 0-5 In League Play

Jockeying Around

Oh, that dear dollar! Government saved a lifetime by making it do things for the Mustangs last June, and the CCAA offices were far from lonely. It is evident that the dollars saved every year are putting the Mustangs in a position to be self-supporting. The Mustangs have a chance to be self-supporting this season, and the dollars saved are making it possible.
