7 liberal arts teachers resign

by Sally Bose

The Social Science-English

departments' enrollment quota controversy of last quarter has been an issue of concern to the student body.

A total of seven instructors in the Social Science and English, and the head of the English Department, have resigned because of the controversy of last quarter has resulted in a lack of qualified instructors in the departments.

The quota controversy came about when the administration announced enrollment quotas for the next academic year. This decision was made to maintain the polytechnic nature of the school and to satisfy the number of future students in the Social Science, English, Agricultural, and Allied Health fields.

The Social Science-English

departments' enrollment quotas were based on the number of instructors available to teach the courses.

The Social Science Department comprises disciplines such as politics, economics, sociology, and anthropology. It is the largest department on campus and has traditionally enrolled the most students.

The English Department is smaller in comparison, but it is still significant.

The enrollment quotas were determined by the administration through a series of meetings and discussions with faculty and students. The quotas were intended to maintain the polytechnic nature of the school and to ensure that all departments would have a fair share of resources.

The controversy arose when it became clear that some departments would be affected more than others. In particular, the Social Science Department was hit hardest.

One of the main concerns was the lack of qualified instructors in the department. This was due to the high number of courses offered and the low number of instructors available.

The Social Science Department head, Professor Smith, expressed his concerns, saying, "The Social Science Department is in crisis. We are at risk of losing our best professors and instructors."

The faculty reaction was quick and strong.

They held a meeting to discuss the situation and unanimously voted to resign en masse.

The resignation of these instructors has raised serious concerns about the future of the Social Science Department.

Students have expressed their concern about the situation and have called for a solution.

The administration has not yet announced any plans for the future of the Social Science Department.

However, they have promised to work closely with the faculty to find a solution.

The Social Science Department's status remains uncertain at this time.

The Social Science-English

departments' enrollment quota

controversy is just one of the many challenges facing the school.

The administration and faculty are working hard to find ways to address these issues and ensure the future success of the Social Science Department.

The Social Science-English

departments' enrollment quota

controversy is a reminder of the need for continued dialogue and collaboration between the administration, faculty, and students.

The Social Science-English

departments' enrollment quota

controversy is an important lesson for the school and for the future of higher education.

How much is $30 billion?

It has been predicted that it may cost $30 billion to pull a man to the moon. How much is that figure?

According to William Weaver of the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation, "It is sobering to think of an alternative set of projects _

Student Affairs Council spent about 10 minutes in debate Tuesday afternoon concerning asterisks. Under the question was the decision of how Wha's Who recipients would be honored on the commencement program.

George Coulter, chairman of the Awards Committee, presented a list of recommendations to the SAC for approval. The resolution was that in the past the graduation program has included recognition to those graduating with honors and the distinguished military graduates of ROTC. Therefore, placing an asterisk beside the student's name and printing a footnote which explained the following lines:

- The Who's Who award, according to V. Coughlin, is given to "the ultimate.
- The Who's Who award "the ultimate."

The ensuing debate developed many lines of thought. John Johnson, member of the senior class executive board, was perhaps the voice that "just in academic areas."

In opposition to this point, Jack Montgomery, College Union Representative, said, "We have no one who can express an opinion with an extremely narrow minded view of education. Leadership and working with people are also an important part of education. None exist in one of the Wha's Who winners. There is no one who can express an opinion with mucharty. They don't have a college education or have a college education that is not in an area of interest or talent."

Also, said Mr. Montgomery, "Who's Who in America?"

The resolution was passed by placing an asterisk beside the student's name and printing a footnote which explained the following lines:

- The Who's Who award, according to V. Coughlin, is given to "the ultimate.
- The Who's Who award "the ultimate."

The debate on the asterisks question brought a lot of discussion concerning the amount of criticism to the entire Hobbit. Mr. Montgomery's statement that the decision of how Wha's Who recipients was made was extremely poor.

According to William Weaver of the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation, "It is sobering to think of an alternative set of projects _

Some felt that SAC should have surveyed the student body to determine the amount of a precedent for the coming years and have the Senior Class president be in charge of it.

After lengthy discussion, a motion was made to pass the board's decision. The motion passed by the senior executive board without any opposition.

Appalachian volunteers sought for Kentucky work

Interested students can spend eight weeks this summer working with the people of isolated mountain areas in Eastern Kentucky.

The Appalachian Volunteers, a program administered by the Council of the Southern Mountains Inc., is now organizing its summer project which will combine the efforts of college students—part of their time working with children in one or two Appalachian schools giving them individual attention and a variety of subject matter seldom offered during the school year.

The volunteers will also join the families with whom they live during the school year and will work with the students of the community in cooperative projects of civic improvement.

Students will participate in a 10-day orientation and induction session before they begin work in the field. This session will include an introduction to the history, problems, and prospects of Eastern Kentucky, a workshop on group processes, plus some instruction in techniques useful in classroom teaching.

Two to six volunteers will be assigned to each project, the number varying with the size of the community. They will be supervised by the Appalachian Volunteer staff and will work together with the local teachers, and, in some cases, with other volunteers.

Volunteers will have no financial obligation. All incidental expenses will be paid for by the sponsoring agency. The lab, located in AG 31 BE, is manned by volunteers.

The lab is open to students with language study problems every school day, from 10 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m.

The groups are small, and much individual help is given. All the work is informal, and there is time to deal with personal problems that would take up too much time in a regular classroom.

The lab workers are not permitted to help the student with the technical aspects of his studies. If he wishes to study with the ordinary non-teaching English, he must go to his text-books.

English lab now open

Another student-help lab has been organized at Cal Poly—this English Tutoring Lab.

The lab, located in AG 31BE, is open to students with language study problems every school day, from 10 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m.

The lab is manned by volunteer workers, made up of faculty wives and other interested volunteers.

The lab is not another "class," its major purpose is to assist the foreign student to gain grammer fluency in English through natural conversation and discussion. In the process, attention is given to idiomatic usage, major pronunciation difficulties, and whatever else regards real importance in this "proof of the pudding.

Tuesday marked the start of those activities leading to the April 27-28 general student body election. In continuation of last week's story, the editor will consider filling the various class offices.

There are two principal questions that become of interest at this time. The Freesman class apparently serves as a transition for a large number of students who have attended smaller schools. This is the group that is most active of this year's classes, has held most dances, and the other school clubs and the College Union have a Dance Committee. As for the Junior class, it has held two meetings and sponsored one activity.

According to leaders in the Senior Class, this group's focus is on handling the graduation week activities, which amount to three days this year. It also selects the "senior gift." The desirability of a gift has been questioned by some classes.

Ivy. Because many colleges utilize the class structure, it is likely that the class gift is a token of unity. The Senior class gift is reported to have had only slight attendance at the various class office meetings. In conjunction with these activities, students will consider filling the various class offices. Those who will vote in the various class offices.

The class structure has been questioned by several of the class representatives. In the transition function of the Freshman class is usually handled by the Welcome Week organization. By the time a student reaches college, he is aware that the classes are superfluous. The transition function each year. The Board of Trustees of the California State College has adopted a resolution that "...it is essential to maintain the present quality of the educational program of the state colleges in order to provide adequate education for the students."

The board also recognized "the necessity of recovering the legislative and academic benefits..." and reaffirmed their position that "it is essential to maintain the prestige of the University of California as related to the problem of growing enrollment and development of the Statewide system..."

Applications open for Homecoming chairmanships
- Plans for the 1969 Homecoming Weekend are now underway, according to Red Ellison, Chairman of Homecoming and Red Killmer, Chairman of Homecoming.
- The Homecoming Board is now accepting applications for committee chairmanships.
- A successful Homecoming requires a great deal of cooperation and planning," said Ellison, "by an active and well-staffed Homecoming Committee."

Nugget, don't escalate

by JON D. MITCHELL

The past three weeks in Southeast Asia have indeed been among the most damaging years of any war in the history of the world. The previous South Vietnam crisis and its realization that "the single most effective peaceful action for the Governor and the Legislature to take to increase faculty salary by 10.6 per cent to provide the other personnel and academic benefits set forth in the prior budget request for support by the chancellor and the trustees." This resolution continued: "The board believes that for the year of 1969, substantial part of the anticipated increased enrollment would be possible if early action were taken to increase and stabilize support is taken by the Governor and the Legislature."

Without such early action to make possible the enrollment of additional qualified faculty, the state college system will have no choice but to face the admission to thousands of new students. At best, the enrollment problem can only be partially solved at this time and the true impact of the adjustment involved to re-cover our competitive position will not be realized until 1967."

Particular attention," said Board Chairman Charles Luckman, "will be given to the effect on educational quality by the level of compensation as the level of compensation is now very low in relation to the quality of the educational program."

The central purpose of the first special meeting of the board was to analyze constructively the full implications of the question of educational quality as related to the problem of growing enrollment and development of the Statewide system."

The board acknowledged the resolution of the President's Council of State College Presidents and the Statewide Academic Senate. The complex fiscal and enrollment factors involved and the impact on the educational program and policy were discussed at length. Chancellor Dumke recommended what he termed the most realistic approach to the problem in view of the critical time element involved in the formulation of a qualified faculty for next session."

His recommendations provided the basis for the resolution which was later adopted to immediately transmit to the Governor and Legislature for their urgent consideration.
Track team tackles Gauchos, Aztecs at Santa Barbara

Fresh from their victory over the University of Bellingham and Cal Poly at Pomeroy, the Mustangs believe they will attempt to make it tough this year as they face the University of California at Santa Barbara and San Diego State tomorrow on the Santa Barbara campus.

According to Coach Walt Williamson, "It should be a tough afternoon for us. San Diego right now is the strongest team in the California Collegiate Athletic Association, and Santa Barbara beat us earlier in the season by 24 points. We were without the services of Gary Carlo then, and we are in the same boat now."

Williamson added that the Mustangs should make a good showing in the field events and the hurdles, but the sprinters might be weak.

Commenting on several of the events, he feels, "The best race of the year for the event: Godfrey of Santa Barbara is right behind him, and he is expected to do well on his home track. Ben LaVille, Cal Poly javelin specialist with the third best toss in the nation this year, will face UCSD's Jim Clarke. Both men have met previously, with LaVille having a slight edge in wins."

Gary Walker, Mustang utility man should have no problem in his specialty, the 120 yard hurdles.

Starting time for the meet will be 1:30 p.m. for the field events, and 2:30 p.m. for the running events.

The Philadelphia Phillies once won an opening game from the New York Giants on a forfeit. That was back in 1907, when the game was awarded to the Phils on forfeit in the eighth inning. They were leading 9-0, at the time on a snow-banked playing field. The reason for the forfeit was the fact that the fans were throwing snowballs at the players. It had snowed the day before the game at the Polo Grounds in New York and when a snowball whizzed past umpire Bill Klein's ear that was it. Bill called the game.

The uniform of the Houston Astros has a star on the stockings, a large orange star on the cap and a white star on the Texas flag-patch on the left sleeve. One of the players commented the other day: "We have stars everywhere but on the field."

Stan Musial may be the only baseball executive with a uniform number. The St. Louis Cardinal spring training scoreboard lists every uniform number issued by the team. Opposite No. 6 the notation reads—"Stan Musial, vice-president." Television sports producer Jim Colligan (of the American Broadcasting System) was surveying the new Houston astrodome for camera angles. He noticed that the dugouts were 60 feet long, about twice normal size. Colligan asked why the dugouts were extended and was told by a Houston club official: "Everyone wants seats behind the dugouts, so we just made them longer."

It's doubtful the 1965 World Ski Championship alpine events will be switched to Squaw Valley, Calif., from Portillo, Chile, says a high-ranking skiing official.

J. Stanley Mullin, Vice-President of the International Ski Federation, said last night there is no basis for switching the site unless it is made under the assumption that Portillo is not capable of providing facilities.

Mullin wrote in response to Squaw Valley promoter Alex Churin's recent pitch to change sites.

The Alpine events, such as the giant slalom, were awarded to Portillo and the Nordic events, cross-country and jumping, to Oslo, Norway, in 1965. The International Ski Federation's regular meeting June 5 in Romania will receive progress reports from Portillo and Oslo," said Mullin.
Players are key for gridiron defense

The 215 pound guard team shuffling out of the game, accompanied by an exuberant cheer from the bleachers, made it look like a high school game. The players were key players, key men in the game. The future of the team, the future of the season, rested on their shoulders. They were the ones who had to lead the way, who had to set the example.

Merlens to compete against Fresno State

Coach Richard Anderson's men are at Fresno State College for the California Collegiate Athletic Association championship, held today and tomorrow.

Commenting on the championship, Anderson said, "San Diego State College and California State College at Long Beach will battle it out for the title with San Diego given the edge."

He feels that with six places being assigned points the Mustangs may have a definite say in the outcome of the championship. "I think we will do no worse than fourth and may very well be in the thick of the battle for third place with California State College at Los Angeles," Anderson added.

Permitting for the Mustangs in their last match of the season will be Larry Tomlin, a distance runner/long jumper, Dave Meuer, who acts both for basketball, and Harold Bodie, who is also a distance runner. Last week, victory over Cal Poly at Pomona brought the Mustangs record up to an even 4 wins and 4 losses. The final league standings will be decided in today's match.

Netters nip Pomona

Failure to win the split, a factor which plagued Coach Ed Jorgensen's teams last week, was finally dispelled against San Diego State last week proved to be a barrier in the road when the Mustangs nipped Poly Pomona.

There was no element of revenge involved with the Mustangs out to secure things with their third place position. The three Mustangs dropped by the face should be seen both of them in their next year.

With the three Mustangs dropped by the face, they should be seen both of them in their next year.

Mustangs outpoint eight at Arizona rodeo

Cal Poly's rodeo team outpolled eight fences to capture first place in the annual university of Arizona rodeo last weekend.

Chalking up 437 points, the Mustangs were nine points over Arizona State (365 points) and half a point over the University of Colorado, who took second and third respectively.

The bareback riding event went to Cal Poly's John Garcia, 2b, with Mustangs U.C. Adams and Bob Flaw thing for third.

They captured the team's second straight win in the bareback event and also in the bull riding. They had an 8-0 defeat.

In the saddle bronc, Mustangs John Garcia, 2b, was the winner with a high score of 82. The Mustangs had six wins and four losses. The Mustangs now have a 2-3 record in the CCAA.

Coach Jorgensen rates LA as a slight favorite in the championship. "I think we will do no worse than fourth and may very well be in the thick of the battle for third place with California State College at Los Angeles," Anderson added."

HORSEMAN MEET

Long Beach State

Friday, April 9, 1966 — 7.

Horsewomen meet Long Beach State for the first time in the history of the beach city this weekend.

Out of action for two weeks due to the recent climatic disturbances, Coach William Hedges' horsewomen will be confronted with their first CCAA contest of the season in the Forty-Niners. Their schedule opened last week with Valley State postponed due to threatening skies and was rescheduled for May 14 and 15.

Hicks will go with the ace of his squad on Sunday's killing, calling on Steve Fox, who has compiled a 5-1 mark in intercollegiate play. Terry Cox gets the call in the first game of a doubleheader in Saturday with Pete Coccio working the outfield.

Team leaves for Tanzania

By CAROL MILES

Roger L. Sterling, an instructor in Business Management, is a member of a team of educators that will travel to Tanzania.

The four-man team will spend two years in Tanzania under terms of a contract which has received final approval.

The team will provide educational assistance at Dar es Salaam Technical College.

The team's work is being coordinated with Western Electric Company, which has signed a contract for the development of a technical college in Tanzania.

The team's mission is to assist in the development of the college and to provide educational assistance to students.

The team is headed by Roger L. Sterling, an instructor in Business Management, and includes Melvin B. Belcher and Donald K. King, who will be the team's assistant members.

The team will be housed in a dormitory provided by the government of Tanzania.

The team's work will be focused on the provision of educational assistance and the development of the college.

Cash gift helps students buy needed equipment

A recent gift of $225 from the Western Electric Corporation will be used to purchase equipment for the college's business department.

The equipment will be used to train students in the fields of accounting, marketing, and management.

The gift is part of a larger $425 donation from the same source, which will be used to purchase equipment for the college's engineering department.

Farm Bureau Federation opposes federal deficit

The Farm Bureau Federation opposes federal deficit spending.

The federation, which represents farmers across the United States, argues that deficit spending is unnecessary and不利于 agriculture.

The federation's opposition is based on the belief that the federal government should focus on funding programs that benefit farmers and rural communities.

The federation has been active in the Farm Bureau Federation, opposing federal deficit spending and advocating for policies that support agriculture.
