Community service will be honored

If a student or group you know has provided special service to the community, here's a chance to make sure they get the recognition they deserve.

Cal Poly and General Motors have joined together to honor individual students and a student club for outstanding service to the community. Each winner will receive a President's Award from the university, and a GM Spirit Award, which includes three shares of GM stock worth over $200.

Nominees must have voluntarily performed a service (or services) which addressed an unmet social need. Service related to university course work or in paid positions may be included if the service performed extended beyond the class or work requirements. For instance, if an internship required 120 hours, but the service provided took 200 hours.

Individual awards can be given for service performed any time during a student's attendance at Cal Poly. The award for community service by groups will recognize activities that took place between February 1987 and Jan. 25, 1988.

Nominations close on Jan. 25. Awards will be presented on Feb. 18 during the Cal Poly Community Expo.

If you have any questions or would like nomination forms, please contact Sam Lutrin, ext. 2476.

87 graduate wins national competition

A 1987 Cal Poly engineering technology graduate has won the top award in a national competition in arc-welding engineering for his system to retrieve baseballs at a batting range.

The winner was Daniel A. Krohn, now living and working in Houston. He won Best of Program in the undergraduate division of the 1987 Award Program for the Advancement of Arc Welded Design, Engineering and Fabrication sponsored by the James F. Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation of Cleveland.

Krohn won a $2000 check for himself and a $250 check for the Engineering Technology Dept.

He designed and built his Automatic Baseball Return System at a San Luis Obispo commercial batting range as his senior project. The system collects both baseballs and softballs, separates the two, and feeds them back into automatic pitching machines.

A total of 17 undergraduates and 12 graduate students won monetary prizes in the 1987 Lincoln Foundation competition. The contest received several hundred entries from students at universities across the United States.

Travel rate schedule updated

Included in this issue of the Cal Poly Report is the updated version of the university’s Travel Rate Schedule, which became effective on Jan. 1, 1988. The schedule lists the revised reimbursement rates for the most common types of travel. The zip codes for Berkeley and Coronado have been added to the list of locations for which “high cost area” reimbursement may be claimed for travel on official state business. Mileage for privately owned aircraft has been increased from 42 to 50 cents per statute mile, and the minimum for mileage reimbursement for privately owned automobiles is increased from 20.5 cents to 21 cents without certification. A copy of this rate schedule should be retained for reference. For additional information please contact the Accounting Office, Admin. 129, ext. 2291.

The amount of registration fees for conferences and conventions which must be approved in advance by the President or his designee has been raised from $50 to $200.

Although the CSU board of trustees action covers only non-represented employees, Employee Relations has now met and conferred with the exclusive representatives for Units 1, 2, 3, 4, and 7 and, effective Jan. 1, 1988, these amended internal regulations apply to CSU employees in the units listed, in addition to non-represented employees. At this time, Employee Relations is still negotiating with unions representing employees in Units 3, 4, and 8, and employees in those units will continue to receive the current rates until further notice.
