Nine candidates vie for regal title

Johnson tells wish for mace over various ROTC troops in rooming rear. The Little Military Ball will be held in the Man's Gym on Sat., March 4 from 7-11 p.m. The Collegiana will provide the music and the cost of admission will be $1. Students may purchase tickets now in the Union for 50 cents or at the door on March 4.

Applications due for dorm jobs

Applications are being accepted until March 1 for Business Housing. Applicants should see Mr. Faye, South Gym, for further information.

A knowledge of the culture played, through instruction and discussions held voluntarily, which lead to increased awareness and understanding of the culture, is an important feature of the program.

The question as to whether or not the program is beneficial to the culture is a question of whether or not the program is beneficial to the culture. The program is beneficial to the culture in that it helps to increase understanding and awareness of the culture. The program is also beneficial to the culture in that it helps to increase awareness and understanding of the culture.

College prepares to limit enrollment if instructed

In a speech at the annual Spring, Dr. John W. Anderson, president of the California State Polytechnic College, said that as a result of student protests and the threat of further protests, the college is preparing to limit enrollment.

"With the word and the understanding and the understanding that the college must be able to support the needs of the college and the needs of the students, we are preparing to limit enrollment," Anderson said. "We must be able to support the needs of the college and the needs of the students, and that means that we must be able to support the needs of the college and the needs of the students."

"The college does not need to be a closed book in order to support the needs of the college and the needs of the students," Anderson said. "The college must be able to support the needs of the college and the needs of the students, and that means that we must be able to support the needs of the college and the needs of the students."

The enrollment for the 1971-72 term was 8,000 students, Anderson said, and the college was planning to increase enrollment to 9,000 students for the 1972-73 term. The college has a maximum enrollment of 10,000 students.

"The college does not need to be a closed book in order to support the needs of the college and the needs of the students," Anderson said. "The college must be able to support the needs of the college and the needs of the students, and that means that we must be able to support the needs of the college and the needs of the students."

Faculty members, including the president, are being asked to participate in an evaluation of the college's enrollment policies.

The evaluation is being conducted by the California State Polytechnic College's Office of Institutional Research and Development.

Evaluation goes ahead

"The evaluation is being conducted by the California State Polytechnic College's Office of Institutional Research and Development," Anderson said. "The evaluation is being conducted by the California State Polytechnic College's Office of Institutional Research and Development.

The evaluation is being conducted by the California State Polytechnic College's Office of Institutional Research and Development."
Man-on-the-spot...in California.

Last year, he was still in college. Now he's on his way to a promising future at the Bank of America — as a Management Trainee.

Bank of America is doing something different...It's different, because there's a continuing need for well-trained young men with ambition and ability potential to help in the development of new markets and new lending services.

A Bank of America Management Trainee will be the answer for tomorrow's world. At a Bank of America office.
Conservatively Speaking

by Bob Benson

My daughter, who is in her first week of college, asked me what I thought about political correctness. I told her that it was just a way of saying that everyone, regardless of their background, should be treated with respect and dignity.

Call it meekness, or a desire for harmony, but politically correct speech should recognize the diversity of the human experience. It should be a way of acknowledging the many different perspectives and cultures that exist in our world.

On the other hand, I also told her that political correctness can sometimes be overdone. It can lead to a watering down of language and ideas. Sometimes, it's better to be straightforward and honest, even if it means offending someone.

In the end, I told her, the key is to find a balance. To use language that is respectful and inclusive, while also being truthful and direct. After all, isn't that what politics is really all about?
Basketball prepares for second round action

The OCAA conference wrestling title was won by West Virginia State, with York College finishing second. The York team competed at the Division Three National Tournament in San Diego. York's 149-pounder, John Milos, finished in third place, with a 6-0 record.

Hitchcock, the York head coach, expressed his satisfaction with the team's performance. "We have won every match so far," Hitchcock said. "And we are looking forward to the state championship in February." Hitchcock also mentioned the team's upcoming match against LA State, which they are expected to win.

The York wrestling team is currently ranked third in the state, behind only West Virginia State and West Virginia Wesleyan. Hitchcock is confident that they will continue their winning streak.

OCAA title on line tonight

The OCAA conference wrestling title is on the line tonight as York College hosts Western Washington. The Western team has a 2-0 dual mark and a 5-0 overall record, while York has a 1-0 dual mark and a 3-0 overall record.

The York team is led by 149-pounder Kent Wyatt. Wyatt is currently ranked third in the state and has a 3-2 dual mark. The Western team is led by 149-pounder John Garcia, who has a 1-0 dual mark.

The match will be held at 7:00 p.m. and is expected to draw a large crowd. Both teams are confident in their chances and are looking forward to the match.

The winner of the match will advance to the OCAA championship, which is held in San Diego. The championship is eagerly awaited by both teams and will be decided in a grueling match of skill and strength.

Intramurals

The Intramural Sports Department is holding a meet tonight to determine the champion of the FFA Wrestling League. The meet will feature several high school wrestling teams and is expected to be exciting.

The meet will be held at 7:00 p.m. and is open to the public. Admission is free of charge, and a large crowd is expected.

The Intramural Sports Department is proud to showcase the talent of the local high school wrestlers and is looking forward to a great evening of wrestling.