Disaster sub-plan complete

Evacuation sub-plans for the physically handicapped, individuals in the Day Care Center, and those reaching campus other than by car or motorcycle have been developed in draft form for review as part of the university's Disaster Preparedness Plan.

The procedures for the physically handicapped were developed with the help of the Disabled Student Services Office, and the sub-plan for those at the Day Care Center was prepared after consultation with Center personnel.

WATS phone line available

The university now has access to the State of California interstate WATS lines. This will enable employees to place out-of-state long-distance calls (within the continental United States) at an average savings of 25 percent per call compared to the regular long-distance rates.

In order to access the WATS lines, dial 8, then the area code and the number you wish. Both in-state and out-of-state calls should now be placed by dialing 8. Please check the front of the campus telephone directory for in-state locations which should not be dialed via the 8 level (ATSS).

Charges for the calls dialed at the 8 level will appear on ATSS printout, which will now contain a complete listing of these calls. Remember, the use of state-leased lines for personal calls is strictly prohibited.

Another promotion announced

The Personnel Office has announced another faculty promotion to be added to the list published in June. Sham S. Luthra (Computer Science and Statistics) has been promoted to the rank of Professor effective Fall Quarter.

Baker appointed to federal board

President Ronald Reagan has announced the appointment of Cal Poly President Dr. Warren Baker as a member of the Board for International Food and Agricultural Development. Appointed to a term running through March 1986, Baker was sworn in at ceremonies at the U.S. State Department. He succeeds C. Peter Magrath, president of the University of Minnesota, on the seven-member body.

The Board for International Food and Agricultural Development (BIFAD) was created by the United States Congress in 1975 to advise Agency for International Development (AID) officials.

Its establishment was part of Title XII of the Foreign Assistance Act, whereby the Congress declared that "in order to prevent famine and establish freedom from hunger, the United States should strengthen the capacities of U.S. land-grant and other eligible universities in program-related agricultural institutional development and research; should improve their participation in the U.S. government's international efforts to apply more effective agricultural sciences to the goal of increasing world food production; and in general should provide increased and longer-term support to the application of science to solving food and nutrition problems of the developing countries."

In addition to Baker, President Reagan appointed Dr. Duane Acker, president of Kansas State University; the Hon. Paul Findley, former U.S. representative from Illinois; Dr. Benjamin Payton, president of Tuskegee Institute in Alabama; and Dr. E. T. York, chancellor emeritus of the State University System in Florida. President Reagan has designated York, the only reappointee, as chairman.

Sonoma president resigns

Sonoma State President Peter Diamandopoulos has sent a letter to the CSU Board of Trustees indicating his desire to leave his duties at Sonoma, effective Aug. 15.

In his letter President Diamandopoulos indicated that the situation at Sonoma had become so polarized and the cause of so much public discussion that he felt it was in the best interest of the educational mission of Sonoma State University that he separate himself from the campus.

Trustee Chairman John O'Connell announced that the Trustees accepted President Diamandopoulos' decision, with regret, and unanimously voted to appoint him to a Trustee Professorship.
Student fees up $210 over last year

A full-time Cal Poly undergraduate will pay $707 in student fees for the 1983-84 academic year, up $210 from the $497 paid for the 1982-83 year. The increase was approved July 25 by the Committee on Finance of The California State University Board of Trustees to make up part of a $127 million difference between the budget they requested and the one signed last month by Gov. George Deukmejian. The higher fees are effective with the Fall Quarter that begins Sept. 19. Total fees for Fall Quarter alone will be $239. They are set at $234 for Winter and Spring Quarters, 1984. In addition, the trustees approved a $12-per-quarter surcharge for graduate students to offset the higher cost of graduate-level education. Student fees for the Spring Quarter that ended in June were $193, which included a $44 increase over last Winter Quarter’s fees of $149.

Part-time undergraduates — those taking fewer than six units — will pay $149 in fees for the coming Fall Quarter. Part-time fees were $130 last spring, $121 last fall.

The total cost for a California resident to attend Cal Poly full time for the coming Fall, Winter, and Spring Quarters, living on campus, is estimated by the Financial Aid Office at about $5,060. Students not qualifying as California residents also pay tuition — $72 per unit, or an additional $3,240 for three quarters with a full course load.

The higher fees are expected to raise $62.3 million for the CSU system. About $11.6 million of that will be used to aid students who otherwise could not afford to attend.

Questions about the CSU’s remaining $65 million shortfall are expected to be addressed soon by the Board of Trustees, said Jim Landreth, director of business affairs at Cal Poly.
