Hit-and-run accident victim loses faith

Editor:

Around 11 p.m. Tuesday night, May 14, I was a victim of a hit-and-run accident at the end of a hit-and-run accident. I was doing about 30 miles per hour on my motorcycle from John son Avenue near Laurel Lane when I was struck from behind by a car.

The car left me lying in the middle of the road. A few minutes later another car came by and its occupant asked me if I was okay, which I am very grateful for. I am writing this letter with hope that you will read and that it might be read by the person who hit me. I would ask of this person to report him- or herself to the police.

I ask not for revenge. In fact the police have told me that they would not be able to find the person even if the person admitted the accident.

I think, though, that the person will gain courage by reading this, and courage to take the risk.

You get the strongest feeling of being in the middle of the street watching taillights disappear in the distance. It’s too small to react in mankind just fades away.

I am one of those foolish, impulsive people who believe in the sincerity of others. My thoughts dissolved. But the hit-and-run accident does not end, the police have told me that they will not be able to find the person.

SNAP kills money

Editor:

Dear Editor,

I have read an article under the question, "Is SNAP killing the poor?" I have certain comments that I would like to share in this letter.

I am writing to you as a SNAP recipient. I have been receiving SNAP benefits for several years and I can attest to the positive impact that it has had on my life and the lives of my family.

First of all, SNAP has provided a consistent source of income for me and my family. Without SNAP, we would not be able to afford food and other basic necessities.

Secondly, SNAP has helped us to stretch our food budget. It has allowed us to buy more nutritious and healthy foods, which has improved our overall health and well-being.

In conclusion, I believe that SNAP is a valuable program that provides essential assistance to low-income families. I urge you to support SNAP and the work that it does.

Sincerely,

SNAP needs advisor

Editor:

I would like to use this opportunity to request that a faculty mem ber, who has a conservative political affiliation, be appointed as an advisor for the YAF club. The name of this group is "Young Americans for Freedom, Inc." (YAF) and is an organization that helps students learn about free market principles.

I am writing to you as a member of YAF, and I would like to express my support for this proposal. YAF is an organization that is committed to promoting free market principles, and I believe that it is important for universities to have a voice in this area. In addition, YAF is an organization that is open to all students, regardless of their political affiliation. This is an important value for our university, and I believe that it is important to support this organization.

I would like to request that you consider this proposal and appoint a faculty member as an advisor for YAF. I believe that this would be a positive step for our university, and I would be happy to discuss this further with you.

Sincerely,

Hayakawa cops 82 per cent support

Dr. H. I. Hayakawa, acting president of San Francisco State, was overwhelmingly supported for his action as that school in an opinion poll taken by the California College Republicans during Poly Royal.

Dr. Hayakawa received 82 per cent support from the 200 persons asked. Only 18 per cent voted opposition.

Among Republicans, he received 90 per cent support for his position and policy at San Francisco State. Among Democrats, 76 per cent agreed with him. And of all the affiliates, 46 per cent thought Dr. Hayakawa has done the right thing.

On the graduated tuition fee proposal, introduced by Assemblyman Robert Monagan (R-Tracey), it was supported by an overall 55 per cent.

Among the GOP, 65 per cent favored the plan. However, only 46 per cent of the Democrats supported the proposed fee.

Presently however, Mustang Junior Juniper in Sacramento report that Monagan, assembly speaker, has indefinitely pulled the bill, AB-484, out of committee because of insufficient votes for passage.

The source also speculated that Monagan will submit the bill if the University of California Board of Regents approve a similar plan.

On the third question poll, 67.2 per cent of those asked favored sex education in the public schools. Only 31.8 per cent was the margin of support from the KGB.

asked by the caller. Ramos re- fused to divulge the information. Than the threat came: "I tell you, if you endorse that Markowits, you won't be living much longer. And that paper won't last long on the stands, either." Ramos declined additional comment on the situation.

Ken Murray received his anonymous threat by phone on Monday night. He received it at his residence at Shannon Glen. According to what little comment he gave, his threat followed the same general pattern as that received by Ramos. Markowits received a threat on his life in the same manner but was not available for comment. Election Committee member Mike Roblson remarked that he and the committee as a whole were unaware that any threats had been made.

According to him, no action has been taken or is planned by the Elections Committee at this time. "We're concerned with several other irregularities in the election at the moment," said Roblson.

According to Mustang Daily Circulation Manager Karen Betchart, the last edition of the Mustang Daily was "taken off the stands in great quantity before the students can pick them up."

The alleged destruction of the newspapers was brought before the Student, Publisher's Board Wednesday night.

Brent Kestch, adviser for the student newspaper, asked the board to investigate the possibility that the papers had been destroyed in connection with the ASI election.

Not too long ago a picture such as the "The Killing of Sister George" would have little or no chance of being produced, let alone the chance of it being shown at a local theater. This weekend it will be showing at the Fremont Theater in downtown San Luis Obispo.

This film deals with a very timely subject: that of homosexuality and, in this case, lesbianism. Besides this aspect of the main character, the film also deals with her inability to cope with the life that she has built around herself, the life that others have built around her, and her recourse into alcoholism.

The homosexuality in "Sister George" does not take a major role in the theme of the movie, but it does seem to appear as one part in her downfall as an actress. For it is because of some jealousy on the part of another lesbian in the management section of the studio in which "George" works that partially responsible for her being "killed," or rather, written out of the television series that she almost made her own character.

As in daily life, "Sister George" has all the typical ups and downs that everybody goes through, for "George's" success does not go to her head. Most actresses that achieve the success that "George" does in the film move into a large and very well-furnished mansion, but not "George," for this is not in her character. She stays in the same humble flat that she and her lesbian protege lived in even before the television show brought her such widespread acclaim that the film portrays she enjoys.

Some of these ups and downs occur at the same time, as in the instance when she is about to perform her final scene of her TV show, for it is her last film in the spotlight and she cannot bear the feeling that she is a has-been.

The Killing of Sister George is full of moments that have both their sad and their funny side, for "George" is both a tragic and a comic heroine. Thus is the story of an actress that has been stabbed in the back and left to bleed to death on the roadside, as the bandwagon that she started rolling goes its own way.

This is a movie that all should see while it is here in town for its brief stay.

Educators get break from 'To Sir' flick

Sidney Poitier fans will have a hard time doing so, but the 'To Sir, With Love' flick is a top effort. The menage is a fine one. The purpose of the author's presentation is to evade a sense of despair, to help the reader's mind. Despite the fact that the book ends on a note of pessimism, the book should be read by as many people as possible, to increase their understanding of the black man.

In the foreword United States Senator Fred R. Harris says, "I can only hope its message is heeded. The message is simple - that despite the passage of five civil rights bills since 1957, despite the erosion of legal support for segregated institutions", both public and private, it is still no easy thing to be a black person in America."

‘Black Rage’ explains psychology viewpoint

by Mary Hurft

Staf Fanner

"It is the first book to examine Negro rage from a psychological viewpoint. This was the interpretation made by Gloria Smith of the Counseling Center when she reviewed Black Rage at the Books at High Noon luncheon Tuesday. The authors of the book are William H. Griner and Price M. Coble, both assistant professors of psychology at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco and psychologists in private practice.

Mrs. Smith referred to the book that states that the authors "are black psychologists who, from their own lives as black men, bring unique understanding of the anger among the black man's breast and the history that white racism that put it there."

According to Mrs. Smith, Negro rage, the book's message, is a grim one. The purpose of the author's presentation is to avoid a sense of despair, to help the reader's mind. Despite the fact that the book ends on a note of pessimism, the book should be read by as many people as possible to increase their understanding of the black man.

Explains recruitment policy

PURCELL GRATEFUL FOR SUPPORT

"Our No. 1 goal is to perform well," stated Coach Richard Purcell as he explained the position of the cinder squad and coaching staff concerning school support.

In recent articles in Mustang Daily, some of the track team expressed disappointments for the support they receive from the student body. Lack of adequate funds for equipment, road trips, meals, and uniforms, were among the handicaps the runners mentioned. Coach Purcell hoped that the student body would not misunderstand the statements and think the track team was not thankful for the support they receive.

As Purcell put it, "We want to do the best job we possibly can. We would like to have as few conflicts as possible with the student government. We would like to feel it is behind us in our efforts to produce a winning team. We certainly don't want to cause any antagonisms."

Purcell went on to say that many of the problems that disapponted the team members could not be helped. "We have the largest track team on the West Coast which means our expenses are greater. We have to be large because we can't afford the money in the form of scholarships to recruit the big name athletes. We have to recruit many athletes in the hopes that some of them will develop into the kind of men we need."

"We could trim the size of the team, but we don't feel this is what the student body wants. With a team the size of ours, we can compete against and win against the schools with more money to spend on scholarship for outstanding athletes. Also our large size gives more individuals a chance to participate in the sport, and the coaches feel this is important to the program."

"We realize that our team is not the only team here that has the same type problems. We certainly don't want to give the impression that we don't appreciate the support we received from the student body and the administration."

POLY OBFECTS FRESNO'S HOPES FOR CCAA CROWN

Poly clinches its third straight season against a Fresno State nine that it is campaigning for "A" CCAA championship. The Mustangs are out in the role of the "spoiler" they seek to dethrone the Bullies with a slight upset.

Bat-titting Poly center fielder Mike Marostica and right-handed pitcher Dean Treasnor, dependables Lee Smith and catcher Mike Nielsen, are key figures in the Mustangs' upset hopes.

Marostica, who has been on a hitting tear the past month, went 3-for-5 with two doubles, Cal Poly won 6-0 and tied for third in league action.

The Bulldogs are one game away from having Coach Pete Beiden reach a milestone in the baseball coaching world. That is winning 600 games. Beiden, commanding his final season at the helm of the Fresno baseball machine after 22 years, has won 599 games and lost 264. His charges will be determined as they step onto the Mustang field.

Women's track meet slated for Cal Poly

How many of you guys are getting tired of watching the same girls walk, by in the dining hall or on their way to classes? Why not get a chance of scenery and attend the annual women's track meet to be held May 17th on the Mustang oval? The meet is the fifth invitational contest sponsored by CAPHER, and is under the direction of the Women's physical education department.

The meet will begin at 12:30, with three divisions included in the day's competition. Colleges, high schools, and junior high schools from throughout central and southern California will combine to compete. Presently there are 16 entries in the afternoon contest.

Events include competition in the javelin, discus, high jump, shot put, long jump, softball throw, 440-yard sprint, 880-yard sprint, 80-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 150-yard hurdles, and 80-meter hurdles. Ribbon awards will be issued to the outstanding girls in each event.

Cal Poly Pomona swept last year's collegiate competition with 43 points, to out-distance the Mustangs, who finished second with 83. Pomona wrapped-up third place by gathering 20 points in the day's activities.

High school trophies went to Lompoc high school, San Luis Obispo high school, and Arroyo Grande. Lompoc was the leader with 57 team points, while NLO followed with 41, and Arroyo Grande finished with five.

Mustangs bomb Marines with last inning attack

Tuning up for this weekend's series with Fresno State, Cal Poly rallied for three runs in the bottom of the ninth to win Monday's baseball game with the San Diego Marines, 7-5.

Down to their final out, pinch hitter Dean Treanor drew a walk to give the Mustangs a new base runner. A single by Dean Treanor drew a walk to knot the game at 4-4. Poly's first tally in the eighth. Rich Montgomery's hit, the third of the inning, chased home the runner who scored on a sacrifice fly single to right to win the game.

Bob Votory staked Kenan to a 2-0 lead by homering with a mate aboard in the fourth. The Marines added a pair in the sixth on Votory's double, a walk two passed balls and a sacrifice fly.

Mustang Steve Blumner singled in the doubling Kenan for Poly's first tally in the sixth. Then on a fourth ball to George Clenean with the bases loaded a passed ball let in three scores to knot the game at 4-4.

Rich Montgomery's hit, the fourth of the inning, chased home two, runs as the San Diego club took a 6-4 lead in the eighth.

Until the ninth all of Poly's six hits came off the bats of two men—three apiece by Blumner and Santa Maria's Kenan, who slammed a pair of helpful doubles.

Catcher Rich Tarlow had three hits while Votory and Tom Garrett combined for two hit apiece for San Diego.
