The amount of time needed to walk from the least used parking lots to classes. Nelson is interested in the design of the campus parking system and is wondering if a change in the parking rules could improve the situation. He has found that the maximum number of available spaces is limited, and he believes that the current parking system is inefficient. He plans to conduct a study to determine the feeling of the residents about the current parking situation. He will present his findings to the Interhall Council and the residents at the first meeting of the group.

This photo clearly illustrates how far you walk in downtown San Luis Obispo where cars wait for a space to be made available. The waiting period, in many cases, can be longer than the maximum time required to walk from the remote parking lot. Some may contend that when the weather gets less pleasurable, the parking system layout does not facilitate comfort. No, comfort was not the tion said in a report calling for a complete overhaul of the degree structure in American colleges and universities.

The changes would save $10 billion in operating costs and at least $50 billion in construction costs before 1960, commission chairman Clark Kerr said in announcing its recommendations.

Shortening undergraduate study by a year would mean one million fewer students in 1963-64, a saving of 10 to 15 percent in operating costs and the need for fewer buildings.

The report was the first issued by the commission, created in 1967 to examine vital issues in higher education. The majority of its 19 members are business executives, attorneys, and politicians.

The length of time spent in undergraduate college education can be reduced roughly by one-fourth without sacrificing educational quality," was the commission's basic conclusion. Irrationality frightening

Editor:
In recent issues of the Mustang Daily I have noticed a disturbing pattern. Letters to the Editor, a distinct and frightening trend toward polemical thinking. The letters I refer to are those of Mr. Clayson, Mr. Loudon, and Mr. Lyn. Each of these letters has many good points and ideas, but many others are lacking.

Let us first look at Mr. Clayson's letter:

Clayson's letter highlighting Cal Poly as a conservative institution, but the non-involvement is also non-effective. It is merely peaceful and legal involvement.

Mr. Clayson is also correct in assuming that Agricultural Majors seem to have something in the form of"lions." This is definitely not wrong. Whether long hair or short hair, a student is a student and as long as he remains a student there must not be any harassment.

Mr. Clayson must also be commended for his observation that,"we, as students, have literally moved the country by our actions here." This is a healthy attitude and as long as peaceful but firm change is sought, through legal channels, our nation will continue to progress.

But, Mr. Clayson, if you will just remember that sincerely boredom breeds more sarcasm, and hatred more fear, then you might consider changing, not your convictions, but your posture for getting these points across. Perhaps you would consider changing your ideas! Don't destroy their effectiveness or bitterness if you wish to get somewhere.

Turning next to Mr. Loudon's letter:

I commend Mr. Loudon for his stand in defense of this school. Cal Poly is a fine institution, but Mr. Loudon is not helping to build its greatness as much as he could by his actions here.

First of all, Mr. Loudon, Mr. Clayson does not seem to accept his letter. The type he is so unhappy about. This college and country definitely have problems, but Mr. Loudon, these problems will be solved more effectively if we stop being polemical and try to attempt to understand what the problems are, how best to solve them, and then work peacefully, to solve them.

Mr. Clayson's attitude is not conducive to logical, and reasonable discussion. However, neither is ours, you, Mr. Loudon.

Finally, I hope that Mr. Clayson will join us. For all of you, Mr. Lyn, your use of some rather childish slurs such as "ignorant kids" immediately loses your effectiveness to many people. Your ideas, much like those of Mr. Clayson's, are healthy and you could be assuming that the only place for stupidity is in the grave.

However, Mr. Lyn, like Mr. Clayson and Mr. Loudon, you are basing your entire argument on a bit of type casting. Agriculture Majors aren't all bad! Perhaps not all Business Majors have that much "Ookie from Muskogee" in them.

I'm sure you understand this, but I will advise you as I did Mr. Clayson and Mr. Loudon about the importance of understanding the views of the other side. And they should try to understand your side.

Mr. Lyn, you're right! We can't know for sure whether or not our ideas are correct for our society or campus. But look around very carefully. You may not have considered that people such as you, or Mr. Clayson, or Mr. Loudon who have not changed time and energy calling each other names or expressing our personal views, but by those who think positively and put their energies into constructive work for the betterment of all society. To all of those who sympathize with the views of any of the three writers I've discussed, let me say that: We have a great country, and it has some great problems. Let's all solve the biggest problems. Objectivity and non-communication, so we can solve the other problems on a more effective.

Post given to Kennedy

Election of Robert E. Kennedy, president of this college, to a four-year term as a member of the Board of Directors of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities has been announced by the association.

Kennedy, who served as a member of the board during the past year to complete the unexpired term of a former board member, was elected to a full 4-year term at the 10th annual meeting of the AASCU held Nov. 15-17 in San Antonio, Tex.

As a director of AASCU, Kennedy is one of a 12-member executive group responsible for management of the association through committees and professional staff employees, and for development of policies for presentation to the association membership.

The American Association of State Colleges and Universities represents 274 public institutions which are either wholly- or partly-state supported and state controlled. Some 25 per cent of the nation's undergraduates and almost 50 per cent of those preparing for careers in public school teaching are enrolled in AASCU-member institutions.

Kennedy, who has served also as AASCU Public Relations Committee chairman, was the presiding officer at one of the sections of the 10th annual meeting, the theme of which was "Presidential Leadership in the Total Learning Environment."
U.S. raids pack power punch

SARGON (UPI)—U.S. military sources said Monday the new American bombing of North Vietnam, billed as raids on antiaircraft sites, actually destroyed huge quantities of war supplies ready for shipment to Communist forces in South Vietnam and Cambodia.

It was disclosed that a total of 260 planes took part on the attacks Tuesday and Sunday, making the raids the biggest punch against North Vietnam since the bombing halted in November, 1968.

The Viet Cong denounced the attacks as a "grave act of aggression" and threatened reprisals "ten times harsher than the initial offense."

"They clobbered a supply dump just north of the Mu Gia Pass," an informed American source said the air raids, ready for shipment to South Vietnam and Cambodia. It is North Vietnam's main supply line to the south.

Official communiques on the bombing said the raids were in retaliation for the loss of an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance plane which was shot down over North Vietnam on Nov. 13. Three communiques said the planes attacked antiaircraft bases and "related facilities."

It became clear Monday that the "related facilities" included supply dumps.

North Vietnam charged that the American raiders struck as far north as the Hanoi-Halong area, and official U.S. spokesmen had left open the possibility Monday that some of the attacks may have been above the 19th parallel despite earlier Pentagon statements that this was not the case.

A Pentagon spokesman in Washington, Jerry Friedheim, said that 250 planes took part in attacks on "missile and antiaircraft, gunnery and related facilities along the approach routes to the Mu Gia and Ban Karai passes into Laos and the similar approach route north and west of the Demilitarized Zone."

It was known that North Vietnamese commandants had begun what appeared to be a major effort to resupply and reinforce Communist troops in South Vietnam and Cambodia for operations next year.

Washington officials said the new air raids were ordered to discourage Hanoi in any offensive plans.

The Viet Cong threat of reprisal was a chorus of Communist blasts against the United States that included announcement in Paris by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong diplomats that they would boycott this week's session of the Vietnam talks over the bombing.

The Viet Cong warning, broadcast by its clandestine radio station hidden somewhere in the Vietnamese jungles, said the bombing was part of a pattern in of "new and adventurous military actions" by the United States.

"The U.S. imperialism is hereby given the sternest warning that any of their criminal acts against North Vietnam will be determinedly rewarded by the South Vietnamese people which will be ten times harsher than the initial offense."

The threat was not taken lightly; terror attacks have followed previous Viet Cong warnings.

U.S. headquarters Monday turned aside questions as to whether the planes raiding North Vietnam during the weekend were fired upon and whether any were lost.

Headquarters did announce the loss of another U.S. plane over Cambodia—an Air Force OV10 Bronco which crashed in Kompong Cham province, scene of a Communist siege. Both crewmen were rescued, spokesmen said.

In Vietnam action,.headquarters said four Americans were killed and four wounded when a reconnaissance patrol of the American Division detonated a booby trap while searching a bunker complex near Quang Ngai city Sunday.

In Cambodia, government spokesmen said Cambodian infantrymen ambushed a Communist river convoy less than 18 miles northeast of Phnom Penh Monday morning, took four of their boats and killed 56 men aboard.

Tenants not in shotgun sights

Yesterday's article in Mustang Daily concerning the meeting of the Tenants Association has sparked several misunderstandings. In the article, Randall Fry, the author, used the term "armed guards" to describe the Security officers who were present at the scene. The article conveyed the idea that a physical barricade of the Science building room had been established. Both Security and Bob Timone, assistant dean of students, have said that such was not the case.

Dean of students, Everett Chandler said that the story needed further comment. First, he said, was the strange circumstance surrounding the reservation of the room, then, its use, and finally, the action that was taken. Chandler said that the Tenants Association was not in attendance, and that the tenants group was asked to leave. They did so "with no hassle," said Timone.

"I had to go and make a phone call after I talked to two people at the door," Timone said. "The meeting was going on as we talked, we did not stop the meeting." Upon his return, Timone said, the group had left the room and gone to the snack bar. "When I saw them," Timone added, they let it be understood by gestures that they understood the reasons for their leaving. He said that there appeared to be no confusion as to why the meeting was moved.

With the recent airplane tragedies involving football teams of Wichita State and Marshall Universities, memories of this college's similar mishap 10 years ago have sparked the publication of Decade, a 10-page supplement to Mustang Daily. The editor of Decade, a campus organization, that same day, Chandler related, flyers were distributed around campus posted "illegally" on campus residence hall bulletin boards. These flyers proclaimed that the Tenants Association would meet in the same room that was scheduled for the AHEA.

Because of the conflict in scheduling, Timone was sent to the meeting. Chandler said the meeting was already in progress, and that no one was "barred" from entrance. Chandler also said that the AHEA was not in attendance, and that the tenants group was asked to leave. They did so "with no hassle," said Timone.

"Oh, I don't know Larry, I guess I like gas ovens better than electric ones. Why?"

Farm-City Week ends at Madonna Plaza show

Hay-lading, cow milking and a horse-shoeing demonstration are all new additions to the Farm-City Week program being carried on by students in the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources this week.

The observance of Farm-City Week (Nov. 26-30) began last Saturday with a parade in downtown San Luis Obispo. The parade began at 10 a.m. on the corner of Higuera and Pepper Streets and continued down Higuera to Madonna Plaza Shopping Center, where various displays were set up. Many items of farm equipment were in the parade, and will be on display at the shopping center this week.

An entertainment program began at noon with a horse shoeing demonstration. Many shoppers gathered for the demonstration and for the cow milking and haystacking contests held later in the afternoon. The crowd was also entertained by Gomez and the Buckaroo, a singing group from the Dairy Unit.

In addition to the program presented at the shopping center, each departmental club in the School of Agriculture will have displays in downtown store windows.

Pessimistic outlook for Pakistan

DACCA (UPI) - The massive machinery of relief has hurled into operation but there are malfunctions that threaten further loss of life from the cyclonic tidal wave which ravaged the coastal areas of East Pakistan 11 days ago.

There is here an almost paralyzing preoccupation with numbers. But the grim fact is that for the dead, however many there are, it is too late. It also may be too late for thousands of those who survived.

Relief supplies pile up in warehouses. Old national disasters get in the way of the larger question of saving lives of victims. Politicians who are out blame politicians who are in. Seemingly insurmountable logistics problems beg for expertise that so far has not asserted itself.

The logjam eased somewhat Sunday when all available armed forces in East Pakistan were ordered into relief work, 10 days after the disaster. Pakistani military units took command of most relief operations at Deccq airport and heaps of relief goods were trimmed considerably by Monday.

When the magnitude of the calamity became known throughout the world nations responded with aid.

Pontification: Cardinals should retire at age 75

VATICAN CITY—Pope Paul VI, himself 75, has ruled that cardinals who are 80 or older may not vote for his successor, the Vatican announced Monday. He also barred cardinals over 80 from serving in the Roman Curia, the Roman Catholic church’s central government.

In addition, the Pope asked cardinals heading Curia department to hand in their resignations when they reach the age of 75. He said he would judge whether or not to accept these resignations according to the circumstances of each individual case.

The ruling was signed by the Pope Saturday and goes into effect Jan. 1, the Vatican said.

Vatican sources said the dual ruling was a gesture to liberals in the church since it removed several cardinals from positions of influence. Church liberals have complained that the College of Cardinals and the central church administration are dominated by conservative old men.

The Pope’s action revives speculation that he himself might retire before he turns 80, but 75, but Vatican sources tended to discount this possibility.

Since Oct. 7 when Nixon announced a major peace initiative. And it came as the foreign relations committee, chaired by Fulbright, announced it would invite Secretary of State William P. Rogers of South Vietnam.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — War critics accused President Nixon Monday of going back on his promise to end the fighting by ordering renewed air strikes against North Vietnam. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee set new hearings into U.S. policy in Southeast Asia.

In the first debate on the war in the Senate in almost two months, Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., accused the administration of “expanding the war across the Indochina peninsula.” He said it was “a clear failure (of Nixon) to keep his 1966 campaign pledge to the American people to end the war.”

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., said the administration was “tying the President’s hands by tying the President’s hands is the only way we can stop him from getting into the war in one year, said ‘If the American is Cardinal called for participation in a conference of two pilots in an unarmed reconnaissance plane,' said McGovern.

Scott. Touching off more than an hour of tense debate, McGovern accused the administration of “jeopardizing the lives of American pilots in Vietnam by reducing the number of forces without following the kind of diplomatic initiatives that would secure assurances of safety during the withdrawal process.”

McGovern, who introduced legislation to cut off funds for the war in one year, said ‘of tying the President’s hands is the only way we can stop him from tying our country down to a senseless war in Indochina, then we indeed should tie his hands and force an end to this conflict.’
Mustangs gauge Gauchos 42-7

by Eric Minkelstein
Sports Writer

Exploding with quickness and surprise, the Mustangs piled up 35 points in the first half while in route to a 4-67 rout of the University of California at Santa Barbara Gauchos Saturday afternoon in Isla Vista.

Combining an adequate running attack with a deadly accurate passing attack, and a rock-solid defense the Mustangs found themselves with victory number seven and a good chance to finish with an 8-2 record.

While the offense clicked in the first half, it was the tenacious, unyielding defensive unit that tore apart the Gaacho attack throughout the game. The pass rush led by Mark Sindel, Dave Quirk, Bob Cronin, Jim Robensky, and Colie Clark was successful in harassing a duo of Santa Barbara quarterbacks, dumping them seven times for losses amounting for 101 yards.

The defensive line stood out well, but one must give a lot of the credit to the defensive backs who covered the Gaacho pass targets so completely. And even when Randy Palimino or Dan Rodrigues, the Gaacho quarter­backs, could find an open receiver, very few passes were caught. The only consistency in the Gaacho attack was the ineptness that if a pass found its mark, without regard to how accurately it was thrown, it would be dropped. Had their receivers fared a bit better, if they had caught just half of what they had dropped, the game might have turned out a little different.

The Mustangs wasted little time getting on the scoreboard, as quarterback Don Milan threw the big bomb to Mike Amos for 48 yards and six points on the first play from scrimmage. Amos, only a sophomore, caught two other touchdowns, six receptions in all for 153 yards. One might say he had a fantastic day but, then it would seem he's had great games all season.

Palimino, the Gaacho's starting quarterback later injured through much of the game and replaced by Dan Rodrigues, led Santa Barbara to a score immediately after Milan's surprise attack. With better than ten minutes to play in the first quarter, the Gauchos had finished their scoring for the day, while the Mustangs had barely begun.

On the second series of downs, Milan "couldn't get an attack moving and on third down and five hit Amos, unexpectedly, with another bomb, this time for 40 yards and six more points. Tom Valos converted the extra point.

The score, 14-7, returning the subsequent kickoff to the 43 yard line, the Gauchos were penalized for clipping, bringing the ball back to their own seven. Unable to move, Santa Barbara punted, a short 27 yard boot, returned by Gary Fawcett from 94 yards out to score. Valos, who did not miss a point after all day, added another point and the Mustangs were suddenly in complete command 21-7 with five minutes still to play in the first period.

The second quarter, a bit boring and dry, let's say uneventful, dragged on until just over two minutes were left in the half. Steve Bresnahan replaced Milan at quarterback when he suffered a minor injury.

The Mustangs began to move from the Gaacho 40 after another poor punt gave them excellent field position. Bresnahan mixed Pass and run with success, a surprise attack. With better than 17 minutes remaining in the game, Bresnahan delivered a 17 yard pass to Randy Palimino, the Gaucho's defensive line, intercepted a Palimino pass, returning it 34 yards to the Gaacho 26. Bresnahan with time running out hit Aaron Webber for 26 yards and another score. The Mustangs left the field at the half with a well-cushioned 37-7 margin.

The second half, was marked by a hard fought defensive battle and lacked the offensive ex­citement of the first half. The only score coming on a one yard plunge by John Miller after a Bresnahan engineered drive of 33 yards following a fumble recovery by defensive end Mike Williams. The Mustang defensive unit provided a tremendous show of power and penetration, sleathering through blockers to reach and dump Santa Barbara quarterbacks.

Mike Amos hauls in one of six receptions against Santa Bar­bara last Saturday. Amos' six catches were good for 183 yards and three touchdowns.

Talented Ritchie leads ruggers

by Bill Mathews
Staff Writer

What sport is more brutal than football? Can you name another sport on this campus that features a long-haired, bearded coach? Rugby answers both questions. The same individualism that marks the sport of rugby is also reflected in the coach and captain of the Mustang Rugby, Dave Ritchie.

Ritchie has been coaching the Mustang club nicknamed the "Griggs," for the past three weeks. The thirty-man club has benefited greatly from Ritchie's extensive knowledge of the game. Ritchie first learned the finer points of rugby under Dennis Storr at the University of California at Los Angeles. Ritchie was the first team's scrum halfback, on a team that was number one in the nation. Scrum halfback is comparable to the quarterback in football.

An interesting note is that UCLA's scrum halfback from last year was chosen to play for the California all-stars which toured Australia and New Zealand, the rugby centers of the world. The team compiled a fantastic 8-1-1 record against the best competition around. When Ritchie was attending UCLA, he played ahead of this same halfback.

Consequently, it is safe to say that the Griggs possess one of the finest if not the finest scrum halfback on the west coast.

Although diminutive at 5'8" and 150 pounds, quickness and vast knowledge of the game make Ritchie a great Rugger. He is molding a club that should be able to compete with almost any on the west coast. Last year in his first campaign at this campus, Ritchie led his club to a 15-0 season.

This season he looks for a better performance from his team. Several Griggs who will be helping, Ritchie are forwards Gary Acquace, Vic Riviere and backs Shane Wallace, Jan Funk and Gary Abate.
