Here Sunday

Jesse Fuller: One man band

It doesn't seem too difficult to combine the sounds of a guitar, a harmonica, a kazoo and a bass fiddle, does it? All it takes is four performers and the instruments, right?

Well, somebody forgot to tell Jesse Fuller that he needed three other people to perform with. Fuller has become a skilled musician with all four instruments and plays them equally well, at the same time.

The southern-born folk singer one-man band is performing this Sunday night at 8 in the College Theater. The concert is free to students but $2.00 for general admission.

It takes a little lumbering with the instruments to make it possible to play all four simultaneously. How is it done?

Well, first of all figure out what to do with the harmonica and kazoo. Since both require wind they have to be rigged up in the area of the mouth. Fuller managed to attach them to a wire and hang it around his neck.

Secondly, the bass fiddle and the guitar obviously can't be played at the same time. So, fiddle with the Fiddle, take off the neck and put five keys near the bottom of it so that when hit with a toe, they strike a string. Now that the bass fiddle is basically changed why not rename it? How about bulldog? That's what Fuller named it.

The song list that the 76 year-old Fuller plays is mainly blues, in the style of the late Leadbelly, a close friend of his. One of Fuller's more popular songs is in his own composition "San Francisco Bay Blues." Other songs are just everyday life blues.

Student blues lovers should appreciate this concert if for no other reason than that the price is right.

SIC: ice cream, rock and games

by Griff Boys
Staff Writer

The Pete Evans administration, doing all it can to avert a crisis in the Fall, proposed a Foreign Students Emergency Loan Fund Resolution, as the first act of the meeting. Many Important Items of the room la not very high on the list. The proposal, aimed at helping foreign students, appealed for all (or part) of the $6,000 now allotted to complete construction of an ice cream parlor in the CU.

The plan cited Article II from the Articles of Incorporation of the Cal Poly Foundation which reads:

"The purpose for which this corporation is formed are as follows: To promote and assist the educational services of the California State Polytechnic College or such institution as shall succeed to the properties and functions of said College, and to apply the funds and properties of said College;..."

Unfortunately, contracts have recently been negotiated to build the proposed CU harbor shop into an Ice Cream shop. This seemingly duplicates the facilities now available at the beach bar, CU burger bar, and vending machines scattered throughout the campus. The matter was left up in the air when an uncompromising attitude of the CU officials entered the discussion.

It seems that the College Union Board of Governors allocates business rights in the facilities with the Foundation providing the necessary funds. Both these groups seem to prefer their favorite flavor to encouraging foreign student interaction-education.

A roaring study break is planned for Sunday, Sept. 13 probably in the stadium. Bands to appear include Townes People, Wyndhamers, possibly Sarah and two more. Sound equipment for the dance-concert will be provided with compliments from Stereo West. Proceeds from the event go totally to the Foreign Students Emergency Loan Fund.

The assessment of student priorities, how it should be accomplished and the influence it will have on student spending in the future, was a topic for debate. Marianne Doshi, ASI vice president, suggested that a comprehensive Fall registration survey, headed up by one conducted in the Winter would be of immeasurable help in guiding ASI priorities. The council concurred unanimously by establishing a committee to form a Fall quarter survey.

Those who discovered the new ping-pong facilities in the CU as well as the 60 cent per hour charge will be happy to learn that ISI recommended lowering the hourly fee to 50 cents. Pool and bowling fees are already significantly lower than comparable off-campus facilities, and are not affected by any SIC surcharge.

Chumash Hall: floor in upheaval

by Cynthia Lyburger
Staff Writer

The next music group to play in Chumash Hall might feature rippling rhythm with a little help from the dance floor itself. Perhaps that upheaval on the floor of the room is not very high on the Richter scale, but considering that no major earthquakes have been reported in this area lately, this little ground swell might cause some excitement.

The floor, which covers about 400 square feet, is pregnant with moisture and not enough heat. The ventilating system in the building operates on the principle of mixing cold and warm air to maintain a constant temperature. The building, however, has been plagued with a heat pump that is a little less than dependable, according to Roy Gerstam, Director of Business Affairs for ASI in the CU.

With the good ole' flogging in from the ocean, the wood on the otherwise flat dance floor decided to swell just like a real wave. In fact, you might say there were low clouds Tuesday morning as the humidity in Chumash Hall reached 76 per cent.

This state of affairs makes it difficult—in fact practically impossible to carry on the normal activities planned for this room.

Which means no surfing, friends. What happens to the weekend's concert? Before anyone panics, the latest word from Gerstam is that a new heat pump came in yesterday and has been installed. With a little luck and the blessing from the gods of the ocean's depths, the wood may shrink back to normal within 48 hours and the concert will go on as planned.

The "Lon* Cat"—76 year-old Jesse Fuller, master of folk, jazz, spirituals and blues, will be here Sunday for free concert.
Why not give students a say?—dismissed teacher

Editor:

Approach your modest question concerning faculty selection. It is my belief that if the students had a say in hiring and firing we would have a better faculty. Students, as you know, have a professor for about 150 hours a quarter and it is difficult for them to miss making some reasonable assessment of his abilities during that time. His colleagues view him for about 1-100th of that time, if at all. He has seen him in action for considerably less time than the faculty. Yet in this topsy-turvy world it is the administration’s judgment which is most weighty, then the faculty’s, and finally the student’s. I suggest the following changes:

The students would first evaluate their instructors, placing them in three categories, “must have,” “maybe,” and “no dawg.” Only the “must have” could be referred to the higher echelons. The “no dawg” would have to go and the “maybe” would go the faculty. The students would then rank the youth, further out from the students’ “maybe” those who they consider they “must have” and others they might want to consider “no dawg.” Finally, from the remaining “maybes,” the administration would select those who they must have and couldn’t live with. There may be weaknesses in this method, but at least it would be where it belonged. After all, faculty members do lecture and students do spend much time listening. They also vote, fight out wars, and are called upon to make sense out of the messy world we are in the act of mismanaging.

Sincerely,

Ralph Vroman

Women’s Lib is not all that good

by Pat Thompson

State Senate Bill number 1447 may change this. It was introduced with amendments by State Senator Maldonado. On May 1st, last June into the California Senate. At that time it was referred to the Judiciary Committee where it has been for two months.

Senator Bill 1447 is one to remember. If adopted, it would change, whether good or bad, on the status of women, especially in marriage, will be remarkable.

Section 343 of SB 1447 says now that “every man shall support his wife, and his child; and his parent when in need,” if the changes are adopted the husband would be forced by law to support his wife, his child and his parent when in need.

It can be assumed then that the men would automatically get a free ride when they marry, for they will be in for a little surprise. That the bill passes.

Women’s greatest clincher for so many years has been alimony. Section 1211 now reads that “it is impossible that the husband is not liable for his wife’s support when she is living separate from him by agreement unless such support is stipulated in the agreement.”

Women’s Lib is great. Everyone has some opinion on it. A few men think it’s silly. A few women find it amusing.

If the women were to weigh the pros and cons of the bills they would probably discover that the disadvantages far outweigh the advantages they have had to date.

The Libbers, however, are slowly programming. If this bill passes, their rights as women will be equaled in many civic areas to the rights of men.

Student blood

‘Spirit of love’

Editor:

We understand some of you ask “why?” you gave blood for our son Chris. We want you to thank you all no matter what the reason and only hope it’s because you’re the real heart of the young world that truly wants goodness and love for everyone. We’ve read so much bad about young people, that we were really thrilled to see your response to our need. They say it’s better to give than to receive; but in this case it works both ways. You could have given us a million dollars and it wouldn’t have been appreciated half as much as the gift of life: by giving of yourselves. Your time, your courage and love that you gave by giving of your blood.

Our family has shed tears of joy and love for your way, for taking our problems into your hearts of your college family. We have carried this burden so long without outside help. Now we no longer feel alone thanks to the love for mankind you all have shown us by giving of yourselves to help our son Chris with his life-long fight for life.

From the bottom of our hearts we thank you all and wish you all as much happiness as you have given us. May God bless you all.

Gratefully yours,

The Christmas family

A question of balance?

Editor:

Since I am not attending Summer Quarter, the only campus news I hear is what I read in the Mustang, which a friend sends me each week. I have been following the actions of the Summer Quarter, the only campus news I hear is what I read in the Mustang, which a friend sends me each week. I have been following the actions of the Summer Interim Committee and am rather plagued by a recent action of ASI President Pete Evana.

As I understand it, Evana recently refused to sign a contract finalizing a $6,300 expenditure for providing pre-season meals for the football team. His action was met with opposition by SIC members who voted to allow Roy Geraten to sign the contract. Evana reportedly vetoed that action and an attempt to override his motion failed. The final result was, apparently, that members of the football team will have to provide their own pre-season meals.

What I don't understand was why Pete Evana is interested in something that was settled last spring by the Student Affairs Committee and earlier in the summer by SIC. The pre-season meals were provided for by SAC in the form of a budget appropriation in the amount of $7,600. It would take a two-thirds majority vote of SIC to change the budget, and once the matter of pre-season meals was discussed by SIC members at one of their first meetings and the expenditure was not questioned at that time, I doubt if an attempt to amend the budget would succeed.

So, if I may ask, just what is Pete Evana doing? I realize that I am at a disadvantage by not being there to see first hand what is going on. And I would appreciate it if you would fill me in if some new rule has been created which would allow the ASI president to completely disregard the expressed opinions of his chief governing body and the bylaws of the ASI which gave the responsibility of creating this year's budget to last year's SIC.

Free rock fest here tomorrow

"The Everlasting Living Jesus Music Concert" has finally made its way up the coast to San Luis Obispo.

Calvary Chapel in Costa Mesa, one of the central starting points for the Jesus revolution, will be presenting a Maranatha Concert tomorrow and Sat. night at the Cal Poly College Auditorium starting at 8 p.m. Two of the groups performing will be Country Faith and Selah. Admission is free.

Divers to meet to see speaker

The campus skin diving club will meet next Monday at 9:30 in Science North Rm. 201. On the agenda will be a representative from the Port San Luis Harbor who will show plans and a model of the proposed thing. A 13 mm film and open discussion is also slated. For information, check with acting Vice-President Zeb Concrow at 403-585 or Bill Nune at 403-585.

What's your reaction to the Jesus Movement?

The Jesus Movement has touched a nerve among students, faculty and staff alike. The question is--is it affecting you or just something that's popular right now? I doubt it will last very long.

Enroll now If you want to get in Prospective students desiring to enroll in The California State Colleges next spring should apply prior to August 31 to receive maximum opportunity for admission, Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke announced today. Chancellor Dumke said prospective students applying during August will receive equal consideration for admission within categories, priorities and quotas established by individual colleges and systemwide policies. Systemwide policies assign highest priorities to veterans and to community college transfers. Prospective students filing on or after September 1 will be considered late applicants. They will be admitted on a first-come, first-serve basis if space is available following processing of applications received during August.

Weather has no affect on CUS

The Concert Under the Stars drew an enthusiastic crowd last Sunday despite the cooler weather. The evening began with the return of Gary East - this time with a female vocalist at his side.

A little jamming (while waiting for the next group) previewed a portion of Widow Maker, and introduced the audience to the harmonies of Kevin McCracken, Scotty Jackson and his female partner, Marty Billmeyer, entertained with a country-folk style featuring "You've Got a Friend" by James Taylor and Marie Haggard's "Oaklee from Muncie.

The audience heard some more country ballad by Widow Maker and Kevin McCracken as they slipped the otherwise silent moments while their drummer set up. A change of sound for the evening was heard as Widow Maker finally came on with their drummer and brass sounds. They played "Operator" by the Grateful Dead, a Delaney and Bonnie tune, and "Take Five," among others.

Although this is the last Concert Under the Stars for this summer, Pat Modica, concert chairman, says that concerts of this type may possibly be arranged for the Fall quarter.

Cornucopia of delicious delights found in store

by Malcolm Ross

Hidden away in relative seclusion in a building labeled Food Processing is the Campus Food Store where student food products are sold.

The store, like the dairy plant in the same building, is run by the California State Polytechnic Foundation. It has been at its present site in the area next to the Agricultural Engineering Laboratory for about 11 years.

"People who have been here 10 years stumble onto the store and say they didn't know it was here," said Carl Mey, manager of the store and dairy plant and instructor in the dairy department.

He said the store is more of an extension of the dairy plant than of Food Processing. The cashier is the only fulltime employee, and all the stock clerks are students from the various departments involved.

Sale items include poultry, fresh fruit and vegetables, flowers from ornamental horticulture, milk and milk by-products from the dairy plant, and jams from Food Processing.

"The store doesn't establish the prices, the poultry department determines the prices. The store once went under its cost, but the store and the dairy plant are not making money.

"On this price business, the prices are the same as when I came here three years ago and our ingredient costs have gone up. We did raise our prices on Saturday afternoon, but Mr. Nixon came on Sunday and that was the end of that."

Moy said the primary purpose of the store is the "good experience merchandising" and to offer an outlet for the products being produced.

He said, "The students are in business to make money like anyone else, but the store and the dairy plant are not making money.

"On this price business, the prices are the same as when I came here three years ago and our ingredient costs have gone up. We did raise our prices on Saturday afternoon, but Mr. Nixon came on Sunday and that was the end of that."

Moy said. "The poultry prices are very competitive with downtown stores and he added "on my own observation the crops are also."

The State sets the price of milk in order to assure adequate supplies for all parts of California year-round, but as producer-distributor the campus store is allowed to sell for five cents less than downtown.

"At all times our milk will be lower than downtown, because the price is set by the state and we sell at the lowest price we can legally do," Moy said.

"Our mild cheddar cheese sells for 80 cents a pound and I don't think you can get it any place in town for less than 90 cents or 91," Moy said.

"All of these projects are supposed to break even and hopefully make a little to meet operating expenses."

"About 15 years ago the dairy plant was making money. The store is usually within a few hundred dollars of breaking even. Sometimes it does, sometimes it doesn't."

"When the freezes lift I imagine there will have to be an increase in the price of by-products. Of course, there won't be an increase in the basics unless the State raises the price."

The man in MAHEE 313 had light-brown hair falling straight from a center part to below his chin. His drooping moustache, wire-rimmed glasses, tall, slender build, and bright clothes confirmed the guess: "He must be just a student waiting to see Dr. Featherstone." Wrong. It was Dr. Featherstone himself.

Featherstone relaxes easily. When asked if it was "Dr." Featherstone or "Mr.," Featherstone he laughed, "Just call me Jay."

Featherstone's educational background includes attending Ramset Polytechnic Institute in N.Y. where he received his master's degree and PhD in mathematics.

Featherstone says students in his classes have become used to his appearance, and by now, have no reaction to it. However, he added, "I have gotten a bad reaction from a few students on the street. I have had no reaction whatsoever from the administration."

Featherstone said his fellow-instructors in the Math Dept. give him no hassle about his appearance.

During his first year of teaching here, he has not been idle. Last Fall and Winter Quarters he helped co-ordinate the "Project F" drug abuse seminars sponsored by the Speaker's Forum. He is now in charge of organizing a tutorial assistant's program to help Equal Opportunity Program (EOP) students, poorly prepared in math, achieve the necessary mathematical background.

Featherstone muses on the intellectual climate of this school. "The state college system is very conservative, and this is the most conservative of the schools in the system. There's a very anti-intellectual atmosphere at this school."

This attitude, he says, is a factor in keeping a large teaching load on each instructor, and it cuts down on much of the time needed for preparation and additional study. Featherstone worries that 80 years from now, without additional intellectual pursuits, his knowledge and degrees will be outdated.

When asked his views on the new student body administration, Featherstone asserted, "I think that we are finally walking up. At least we want to do more than run the Senior Prom." He said the Evans-Doshi administration, while far from being extremely radical, was a step in the right direction.

Track and swim meet scheduled for Sept. 2, 3

The intramural department of physical education on this campus has announced that a track meet and a swim meet will be held next week for all interested staff members, faculty members, and students.

The track meet will be held on Thursday, September 2 at 6 p.m. on the new track, and there will be open and novice divisions for men, as well as for women. A clinic will be presented one hour beforehand.

The swim meet will be held on Friday, September 3 in the men’s pool with registration beginning at 4 p.m. Events will begin at 5 p.m.

Intramural plans also call for a ping pong tournament to be held next Wednesday, September 1 at 6 p.m. in the men’s gym. Sign-ups are now being taken.

For more intramural information call 546-2704.
