A graphic display of student education in various phases of home economics won the sweepstakes award among all departmental exhibits for the Home Economics Club at the 42nd annual Poly Royal. Through graphics and touch/feel exhibits, the display explained how the students learned about clothing, textiles, foods and nutrition in the classroom and in the laboratories. The sweepstakes winner was chosen from among the first place entries in each of six instructional schools at the university. The School of Architecture and Environmental Design, which does not operate on a departmental basis, does not enter the competition.

Competing for the sweepstakes awards were the Crops Club (School of Agriculture and Natural Resources), the Economics Club (School of Business and Social Sciences), Journalism Department (School of Communicative Arts and Humanities), Transportation Engineering Department (School of Engineering and Technology), Chemistry Department (School of Science and Mathematics), and the winner from the School of Human Development and Education.

The Journalism entry, entitled the "Lead of the Pencil," or the way the news is gathered, processed, and distributed, won the theme prize for its portrayal of methods of 42 years ago and of today. The entry included displays of older publications and conducted tours of the present journalism laboratories. The Chemistry exhibit which included a magic show was declared the most original, and the Crops Club exhibit showing stone fruits from cultivation to processing, the most educational. The winning exhibits were among the 51 departmental displays and 100 other special interest exhibits viewed by Poly Royal visitors.

Cal Poly men's and women's rodeo teams were both winners at the Poly Royal Rodeo, on Friday and Saturday (April 26-27). Teams from 20 colleges and universities in the western region of the United States competed in the event which played to a standing room only crowd on Saturday.

The Cal Poly men's team, engaged in a nip-and-tuck battle with California State University, Fresno, for the western region championship, had a 242½ point edge on the Fresno team in the competition. The men's team results were Cal Poly, 643, Fresno, 400½, and Merced College 276. Winners among the women's teams were Cal Poly, SLO, 270; Fresno, 165; and University of Arizona, Tucson, 125. Both the men's and women's all around performers were also members of Cal Poly teams.

TENNIS COURT LIGHTING APPROVED

Cal Poly has been advised by the Chancellor's Office that they have approved the design of the tennis court and outdoor basketball court lighting project for construction. It is anticipated that bids will be opened the early part of June. Hopefully, it will be possible for the successful contractor to complete the construction work prior to the beginning of the Fall Quarter, 1974.

This project has had extensive consultation with not only the Physical Education staff, but also the tennis court lighting "client group" that was established specifically to review this particular project. It is estimated to cost about $65,000 at contract level, an increase of $2,000 to $3,000 over the original estimate due primarily to cost index rise.

Vasconcellos' interest in higher education led him to his present position as Chairman of the Joint Committee on the Master Plan for Higher Education (composed of members from both Senate and Assembly) which is conducting a comprehensive study of California higher education. He is also chairman of the Education Subcommittee of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, which reviews the state budget for education, and Chairman of the Joint Committee on Educational Goals and Evaluation (which has members from both houses of the Legislature as well as the State Board of Education), which is urging community participation in determining goals for public elementary and secondary schools.

"MAN IN MEXICO" PROGRAM SEEKS HELP

The Cal Poly Educational Opportunity Program in cooperation with the United States International University, San Diego, is sending 25 students of low income background to study at the USIU campus outside Mexico City this summer quarter. The summer session will include eighteen academic units of social science and ethnic studies courses leading toward an understanding of roots and culture of the Mexican and the Mexican-American. The course of study will include seminars, workshops, and archeological field trips.

The 25 students selected are from three ethnic groups: Anglo, Black, and Chicano - making this program one of cross-cultural emphasis. The students will be concurrently enrolled at Cal Poly and USIU which will make them eligible to receive financial aid during the summer quarter. However, loans, grants, and scholarships that the Financial Aid Office can provide will not cover total expenses. An additional $3,000 to $5,000 must be raised through various campaigns. The program is requesting tax deductible scholarship contributions which may be made to the "Man in Mexico" account at the Financial Aid Office. Coordinators of the program are Christina Camacho (Counseling), Ernesto Padilla (Educational Opportunity Program), and David J. Sanchez (Head, Ethnic Studies).

• ACTIVIST DICK GREGORY WILL SPEAK

One of the persons most involved in the radical social movement experienced by the United States in the 1960's, Dick Gregory, will air his often controversial views at Cal Poly on Thursday (May 9). Gregory will speak on the topic, "Social Problems: Social or Anti-Social?" His lecture will begin at 8 pm in Chumash Auditorium. General admission tickets for the lecture are $2 for the public and $1 for Cal Poly students. The Speaker's Forum of the ASI is sponsoring the program.

Ironically, it was his sharp sense of humor that gained Gregory the notice needed to pursue the role of activist. In 1961, the black comedian received a big boost in his entertainment career when he was chosen as a last minute replacement at Chicago's Playboy Club. In a few short years, Gregory rose to the top of the comedy profession. He is credited with opening the doors of the white-dominated entertainment industry to black comedians, according to Bob Thiele, Speaker's Forum chairman.

Opening up the entertainment business was just the beginning of Gregory's career as a civil rights champion. As the movement gained momentum, Gregory participated in every major civil rights demonstration in America. While his notoriety as an activist increased, however, his billings as an entertainer dwindled. His involvement in the civil rights movement and Vietnam protests reportedly cost him over a million dollars in cancelled bookings, travel expenses, and legal fees.

Gregory now speaks on more than 300 college campuses each school year. He has also written six books, including his autobiography, Nigger. "There is a great social revolution going on in America today," he says. "And the great thing about it is that it is not black against white. It is simply right against wrong." Gregory has received two honorary doctor degrees. Malcolm X University, Chicago, awarded him the Doctor of Humane Letters degree, and Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, the Doctor of Laws degree.

VACANT FOUNDATION STAFF POSITION

The following vacancy is listed on the Foundation staff of the university, as announced by Jack L. Fryer (Foundation Personnel Officer). Interested persons may call at the Foundation Personnel Office, University Union 212, ext. 4613, to make application. Cal Poly is an Affirmative Action Employer.
Intergovernmental Personnel Act. In 1970 the federal government passed the Intergovernmental Personnel Act, which has been described in Encouraging Notes before. One aspect concerns the loan of a federal employee to an organization such as ours; an exchange of specialists is also possible. Thus it is possible for one of our audio-visual experts to work in a federal agency for a year or two and have a government audio-visual expert come here. There is no central clearing house for such loans or exchanges; the details begin in specific offices, and the procedure is neither simple nor quick, but it can be done. Although this office need not become involved in such a loan or exchange, we will gladly help.

The second aspect concerns the plan implemented through the states. One portion of this program is for the improvement of personnel management within local or state government. Grants of this sort might go to the City or County of San Luis Obispo, for example. The University might become involved by supplying consultants. A more likely program for us is a training program for state or local government employees. The third aspect is a fellowship program for state or local government employees to take advanced training, and some of these fellows might choose to come to Cal Poly. The programs require a 25% matching contribution, but any contribution either in cash or in kind from the local government is considered matching if we wanted to have a training program under our sponsorship.

The state program encourages draft proposals, and will work with anyone interested in applying. The deadline for formal proposals is June 28, 1974.

This office has a copy of the application forms and instructions. For more details you may write to Michael Poggenburg or Michael Tompkins or Lee Casaleggio at:
