Close finish stuns voters

by PAUL SIMON
Editor-in-Chief

Robin Baggett slipped into the driver's seat of the Associated Students, Inc. by the seat of his pants Friday night with a 8-vote margin over Steve Evans. The Baggett-Johnson-Lampson ticket swept into power in a fiercely contested, down-to-the-wire election.

Voters cast 3,178 ballots for Baggett and 3,160 for Evans, the current ASI president. Danny Johnson won the vice presidency over Jim Patterson 1,344 to 658, and Laura Lampson edged Max Rover 1,256 to 1,247. A total of 3,807 participated in the two-day election—a 31.2 percent of the 11,666 enrolled for the spring quarter, 61.3 percent of the student body as of Friday. Although the total turnout was 3,879.

The results, announced in Room 300 of the College Union, Friday night, produced contrasting reactions in the two camps.

In the ASI offices, large groups of Evans supporters glumly gathered. Bystanders approached them and offered encouragement. The ASI president said he sincerely hopes the ASI, which he described as a shaky Baggett administration, will only come behind me ... If they do, Cal Poly can stand ahead next year. "If they do," he added, "I will be in the administration next year. "If they don't," he said, "I will be back as a student." Implications of vote

A mere 23 votes separated Robin Baggett from Pete Evans in last week’s ASI presidential election. Less than four-tenths of a percent of those voting favored Baggett. He is now the president-elect.

It is not easy to analyze the election so soon afterward. Changes were made, issues were tossed to and fro and two major factions developed on campus. Evan though a record number of students voted, the vote was too close to say Baggett was the prime choice.

The new president more than likely will face pressure as he has never before faced. He must substantiate the faith placed upon him by his backers, yet almost half the voters believed in Evans’ work and Baggett cannot afford to let that go down the drain.

AEC: new Diablo talks

The Atomic Energy Commission has ruled in favor of a new hearing on whether or not construction on the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant will be allowed. After a record number of students voted, the vote was too close to say Baggett was the prime choice.

The hearing is, unofficially, to be held in San Luis Obispo within the next month, the exact date and place not having been decided. Principle factors in the decision are expected to be the accuracy of its scientists and engineers, who are building the two reactors, and the Scenic Shoreline Preservation Conference (SSPC) who oppose the construction.

Chief concern of the SSPC was expressed by spokesman for the group, Fred Eilander.

Poll asks for $ views

Everyone talks about budget priorities, but no one does anything about them — sometimes not even when they have their priorities established.

The chance was provided by a budget survey committee started by ASI and Finance Committee member Ray Rightetl. And a second chance is coming for those who missed the first one.

The group, composed of students from Finance Committee, Student Affairs Council and the schools at large, mailed out 1,000 invitations to students for a Wednesday poll party.

Perhaps the invitations should have been RSVP. for the all-night survey only netted 360 students, according to Rightetl.

What the committee got were answers from two percent of the student body instead of the five percent they wanted.

"I refused to present any report to SAC because I thought the poll, with only 250 people participating, was too small," said Rightetl.

"Hopefully, anyone who received a card in the mail and didn’t show up before will recognise the seriousness of the poll and come on either Tuesday or Wednesday." On Tuesday, the committee will present the survey and come on either Tuesday or Wednesday. The committee will present a report to the students on its findings at the SAC meeting Wednesday night.

"I don't know what I can say to make people realise how important this is. It's a real chance for students to have an influence on how their money — $80,000 of it — is spent."

Accuracy aids defense

The Air Force apparently has found a better way to defend the U.S. from attack. It has improved the accuracy of its missile by using the Advanced Metric Systems Analysis (ARCS) which will soon be used on Islands in the Pacific Ocean.

The one question asked most is whether Evans and his running mates will throw their support to Baggett and Donny Johnson. Can the two groups unite and find true happiness behind a man who rode the image of “Ag-Jock” to power?

More than likely not. Too much mud was slung during the election to be easily forgotten. Too much diversity seems to exist between the two concepts of getting business done.

A lot will depend upon Baggett’s reaction during the final month of this academic year. Where last year’s officers fell through, Evans will live up to his promises and show Baggett the ins and outs of the office.

But will Baggett’s support crumble now he is safely in office, or will some of those who worked so hard on his campaign now direct their efforts toward government? Since several students who knew very little of student government chose to spearhead Baggett’s campaign, we now challenge them to vindicate their enthusiasm for getting him elected.

Breakthroughs are being made in dorm reform, student legal and housing rights, community services, faculty evaluation, student input into college policy and many more. Every student should be an adminstrator. All point to the advancement of the college into the real word of changing times. We challenge Baggett to continue the progress he will inherit.

The college should move forward at all times, not backward. Baggett will have to work closely with Student Affairs Council and with all students, including the Students Rights Alliance (SRA), if he intends to come through ahead. He has indicated his willingness to do so; it is up to the people who put him in office, the students, to make sure of it.
Chicanos celebrate pride in heritage

Speaker greets emerging pride

by KAY READY

"Welcome to this festive occasion," spoke Javier Ruiz, guest speaker in Meca's week-long celebration of Mexican independence from the French. Chicanos students have been in the background for a long time, and, at last, they seem to be emerging on campuses all over the country. They are proud of their heritage and they want everyone to know about it, he said.

In honor of the celebration, Ruiz brought his own symbol of independence, the red, white, and green flag of Mexico. He spoke in the College Union plaza Thursday.

He spoke to a crowd that seemed to enlarge as his commanding voice urged attention to his messages for both the Mexican and other students in his audience.

He urged this audience to take a trip with him...a trip to the glorious days of Mexico that were sadly interrupted by foreigners.

According to Ruiz, those conquerors made the natives stop their old customs and ways of dressing, among many other things. The foreigners were invited to share the land of the Incas and they took it over.

Ruiz kept reminding his people that they were Incas in the true sense of the word, not Mexicans. Most of them are at least 80 percent Indian, with a variety of nationalities making up the remaining 20 percent, he said.

"The Incas have been just like us. Once, they were a strong nation of people with strong roots, but their roots were cut out from underneath them by the conquistadors."

stronger affirmative action program.

The discussions grew more and more heated until a group of about 40 marched to the administration building, overturned trash can on its steps and set the refuse on fire.

They rampaged through the first floor, rushed back outside to break more windows, then ran across the campus to the center for cuts and bruises he said—had fled from the campus.

No Injuries were reported when Identification was complete.

La Raza representative speaks on preserving Chicano culture

"Through trial and error we learned that good intentions were not enough. If we were to undo all the bad feelings built up against us within the FHA during the past 40 years, we were going to have to do our homework," Fernandes said.

He pointed out that four years after their work with the FHA began, the first reconstruction project was approved. Fernandes also touched upon the white behind returning to the barracks."

"The motto of the council is Brotherhood of Man," explained Fernandes.

Tennis team dumps Valley, takes crown

by KEITH ELDREDGE

Championships don't grow on trees, but the Mustang tennis team has reeled the first limb in its way to the national title. The nation is the champions of the California Collegiate Athletic Association.

The conquest wasn't secured until the third and final league round at Cal State Fullerton. The Mustangs won at No. 2 and No. 3 singles and took the titles Tuesday in the conference finals in a season.

The Mustangs now have the NCAA College Division national title within their grasp. The competition gets underway in early June at Kalamazoo, Mich. The problem that the team is facing is in the financing of a trip back to Michigan. "We hope to amass the sufficient funds to meet the need," said coach Ed. Jorgensen.

"By winning the league title we feel that we deserve to go," he said. "I feel that we are the No. 1 California College State College team out of 18 schools," he added.

"Sacramento State is the No. 2 team in my estimates and they are sending the full representation of four men," he said.

The Mustangs picked up six individual titles. Lambert is the No. 1 singles champion, Martin is the No. 2 singles champion, Coble is the No. 3 singles champion, and Ertolt is the No. 4 singles champion.

The duo of Lambert and Martin won the doubles title and Scullion and Ludes in weight up with the No. 3 doubles title.

The only action slated for the nationals before the nationals is the UC Santa Barbara Tennis Invitational. The locals are the defending champions of the tourney to be held May 19 and 20.

Baseball sweeps UCR and nabs second place

The Mustang baseball team dumped into a second place finish in the California Collegiate Athletic Association over the weekend when it swept a three-game series from UC Riverside while Cal Poly Pomona lost three to Valley State. The three wins also enabled the Califoritians to tie the school record for the most conference wins in a season.

The locals took the single game on Friday, 3-2, won the first game of the doubleheader on Saturday, 6-4, and lipped the Highlanders in the second game 1-0.

In the first game of the series, Mike Krukow gained his ninth victory of the season. The Mustangs, who trailed 1-0 through four frames, tied the score in the fifth inning. Pete Phillips reached first on an error, advanced to second on a sacrifice, took third on a wild pitch, and scored on another wild pitch.

The locals put the game out of reach in the sixth inning as they scored three runs. Steve McFarland started the rally with a single. Ted Bailey also singled, and Mike Krukow hit a home run to score three runs.

Mustang pitcher Dennis Race set the pace in the first game of the doubleheader on Saturday as he gained his ninth win. With their nine runs each, Krukow and Race tied another school record for most wins in a season by a Mustang.

With the score tied 3-3 through eight innings, the locals put another three run inning in the next frame to win the game. Larry Smith doubled, Jerry Bailey pinch ran for Smith, and Race pitched a complete game for the victory.

In the second game of the doubleheader, Doug Allerman pitched in his third win of the season. With the score tied 9-3 in the fourth inning, the locals put another three run inning to wrap up the game. McFarland started it with a single. Bailey walked, both advanced on a passed ball, and both scored on a triple by Sagarine.

If you don't feel that you can place in the top ten nationally, then you shouldn't waste the money," he added. Last year the locals ended up No. 6 and in 1970 they were No. 5.

"This year we have the potential to do better than last year," he said. "Then Lambert and Tom Martin are definitely our strong points, and we hope to get some help from our No. 3 and No. 4 players, Kent Coble and Harold Ertolt," he added.

The locals are waiting for the nationals after having cleared the first obstacle on the way to the national title, the league championship. They went into the final round robin tied with San Fernando Valley State with a record of 6-1-0.

Last year the same two teams were tied going into the final competition, but Valley State walked away with the title. This year the Mustangs took care of the Matadors by downing them 6-2.

Lambert, Coble, Ertolt, and Martin along with Scullion and I. odula wound up in the No. 3 doubles title. Lambert, Coble, Ertolt, and Martin lost their first singles match in two years as the Mustangs' No. 3 man.

"We went into the doubles with a similar situation as the first round robin tournament held in April. In that one we were swept in the doubles," said Jorgensen, "but this time we won two out of three."
