DUMKE FOUNDERS DAY ADDRESS MARCH 7

The Chancellor of the California State Colleges (soon to become the California State University and Colleges) will be the featured speaker on Founders Day, March 7, 1972. Dr. Glenn S. Dumke, by academic training and background an historian, will address faculty, staff, students and the public in the Men’s Gymnasium at 11 a.m.

When he was appointed chancellor by the Board of Trustees in 1962, Dr. Dumke had 22 years of extensive educational experience. In the years since he has become one of the most widely-known educators in America, heading one of the largest systems of higher education ever created, and administering with a firmness that has evoked both criticism and praise.

Chancellor Dumke was featured last November in West Magazine in an article "Between Marine Corps and KaffeKlatsch." The author of the article reported two views of the 55-year old chancellor: "The first is that Dumke is the very model of an academic administrator. The second is that Dumke is a disaster."

Earlier the Christian Science Monitor reported: "Chancellor Dumke feels strongly that college campuses must not lend themselves to becoming political agencies. And he says that if they do, the academic operation will lose its integrity."

In 1968 Dr. Dumke's warnings against the long-term effects of campus violence were featured in an interview in U.S. News and World Report.

The background of the man who has attracted such nationwide attention is one of a typical scholar-turned-administrator.

A noted authority and eminent scholar in the field of Western American history, he began his teaching career in history at Occidental College in 1940 and was promoted to the rank of full professor in 1950. At that time he held the Norman Bridge Chair of Hispanic-American History. In 1950

Dr. Dumke was appointed dean of the faculty at Occidental, a position he held until 1957, when he was named president of San Francisco State College.

During 1959-60, while serving as the fifth president of San Francisco State, he acted as the principal state college representative on the Master Plan Survey Team which formulated recommendations for the coordination, expansion and differentiation of function of the various segments of public higher education in California. These recommendations were adopted by the Legislature in 1960, as the Donahoe Higher Education Act, and appeared in A Master Plan for Higher Education in California, 1960-75.

In November, 1961, Dr. Dumke was appointed vice chancellor for academic affairs for the system; in this capacity he directed the curricular programs of the state colleges until his selection as chancellor the following year.

Chancellor Dumke received his AB (1938) and MA (1939) degrees at Occidental College and the PhD (1942) in history at University of California at Los Angeles. He has been awarded seven honorary doctoral degrees.

Throughout his career Dr. Dumke has been a key participant in organizations involved in higher education. He has served, since 1968, as the first chairman of The California Council for Economic Education, and, since 1967, as a member of the advisory committee of the Western Regional Institute of International Education. He was recently a board member of the American Council on Economic Education. He is also the current representative of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities to the Air Force ROTC Advisory Panel.

Under Dr. Dumke's leadership the state colleges have made great progress in the breadth and quality of their academic programs: superior teaching is the paramount function of the colleges; faculty research is now recognized as appropriate; doctoral degrees are awarded jointly with the University of California; degree programs and course offerings have been strengthened as a result of systemwide academic master planning; honors programs have been set up for especially talented students; special programs have been developed for disadvantaged students; an overseas educational program has been established with 10 cooperating foreign universities; and policy has been adopted for the orderly development of educational television. The system has also received university status through recent name change legislation.

A complete schedule of Founders Day events will appear in next week's Cal Poly Report.

Although legislation to establish Cal Poly was signed on March 8, 1901, the Founders Day observance has been set for March 7 to allow maximum faculty and student attendance at the Founders Day address at 11 a.m. on Tuesday.
