Evans, Baggett to battle again

by CATHARINE PHOENIX

Robin Baggett and Pete Evans will square off again in a new AER presidential election, Student Affairs Council (SAC) decided Wednesday night.

In a close vote of 12-10, the council called for a new runoff election for Wednesday and Thursday because of campaign irregularities.

Both the presidential and vice presidential positions are included in the runoff under the terms of SAC's decision. Laura Lampson was unofficially declared the AER secretary. SAC's decision followed six hours of heated debate, including statements by Richard Cassandra, the AER lawyer, on the legalities of a new election.

Cassel said it was within the power of SAC to declare a new election and that it would necessitate only a majority decision. He also noted both parties could still litigate, enjoining the other from assuming office.

A recommendation for disqualification of all AER office candidates, excluding Miss Lampson, was given by Elections Committee Chairman Jim Smith and precipitated the lengthy discussion over the complaints filed following the elections of the previous two weeks.

Elections Committee felt that the disqualifications should be considered primarily because of excessive campaign expenditures. The only thing that bothers me is their blocking my view.
EDITORIAL

SAC's 'Agnew image' overlooks free press

Freedom of the press means much more than some members of Student Affairs Council care to realize. This year Mustang Daily has attempted to present the most extensive news coverage possible, with its limited resources and facilities. Editorial comment has accumulated new when deemed necessary to enlighten the readers on matters directly concerning them. The power has not been used in any partisan manner.

In response to the demands of SAC members who have attempted repressive tactics against the newspaper, no action has been taken, largely because cooler heads have prevailed and convinced the others they were acting unwisely. The implied threat of control, though, continues to surface. We see this as a means to come to power without the power. Wednesday night SAC discussed employing Elections Committee to screen all letters to the editor involving the ASI elections. That is a blantant attempt at prior censorship in direct opposition to the principles of freedom of the press.

Similar attempts have been made at other times. Once SAC considered forcing Mustang Daily to refuse all campaign advertisements and several weeks ago someone made to force the paper to print a retraction concerning a letter to the editor.

Further, rumbles of freeing the paper's funds have arisen and then in direct retaliation to ideas espoused in the editor's column. Althought overlooked is that Mustang Daily, a totally self-supporting publication, is responsible only to Publisher's Board. The paper is included in the ASI bylaws it is established in the College Administration Manual (CAM). Publisher's Board has sole authority to direct the paper on matters of policy. ASI or SAC can only freeze the funds.

Would the students of Cal Poly like to see a minority of revenge-minded individuals halt the press? Hopefully not. There is too much to lose in such an action. And if they will not, then those in SAC publically speaking ill of Mustang Daily are spinning their wheels and are wasting SAC's time in foolish motions—"ha ha!"... the facilities and means to expose any corrupt administration's attempt to close down the Daily Sundial at San Fernando Valley State College earlier this year. The media is not infallible and to say it would be foolish. Given remarks by Vice Pres. Spiro Agnew in regards to the press, however, it is easy to understand the totalitarian state that might exist without it.

All SAC members do not carry vendettas. Probably most of them value the freedom of the press, no matter what editorial position is taken on issues. These people truly protect the welfare of the public.

Nuclear power impact

Editor

On May 17, hearings began in San Luis Obispo to explore the environmental impact of the Diablo Canyon power plant. It will do well for all those who care about the future of their community and nation to watch these hearings quite closely for until now few have been willing to look at the monstrous reality behind the reassuring slogan that "nuclear power is clean power."

To suppose that deadly, invariable nuclear pollution is actually a viable alternative to the viable but relatively inert pollution from fossil fuel plants is much like preferring to be hit between the eyes by a bullet rather than a custard pie because the bullet can't be seen coming. Scientific American in December 1967 tells us that if our present power needs were supplied by nuclear power plants, an annual supply of radioactive wastes would be produced equivalent to the fallout from 200,000 atomic bombs! The A.E.C. assures us that they will store this deadly waste in tanks that must be continually maintained for 400 years, but history provides us with a few examples of such continutiy in any such structure. Even ago Europe was in the depths of the Dark Ages and Christopher Columbus was not born for some 80 years.

A word about jobs: It is said that needed the Diablo project for the job is creating. If jobs have somehow acquired a value for our own sake, then the public and any good or harm they may do to the world and society, perhaps it is time we look a second look at such old stands as heroin dealing, pimping, and making-style contract murder. We may find their capacity to wreck a nation's and generation-of-yet unborn children small by comparison to the work being done in all heretofore-bene­fice by the men at Diablo Canyon.

Last week, I sat on the floor of an overcrowded recital hall in San Luis. It was a town meeting which was called in response to President Nixon's recent recitation of the war. Over 1,000 people filled the site to seek answers and to ask why. Didn't you people here tonight, would new representatives have as much as 116,000 new voters, some of whom who could help see San Luis Obispo become a haven for developers and trailer court builders. Some of these candidates have as much as $15,000 in war chests and more will be coming in. If you want to see a younger representative on our board of education (something with imagination and not just rhetoric) then find out about some who are helping. Last week, I sat on the floor of an overcrowded recital hall in San Luis. It was a town meeting which was called in response to President Nixon's recent recitation of the war. Over 1,000 people filled the site to seek answers and to decide what they as individuals could do. An elderly man rose from the back and shouted "If one half of you people here tonight, would work for new candidates (and new representative) we could change the entire direction of our country."

There was a tremendous applause to this statement and yet I can only wonder how many of those who applauded said actually work on campaigns between now and June 5.

If you are registered in San Luis Obispo County, you will be voting in the board of supervisors race. If you don't know about these men, I should tell you that these five individuals will decide the future fate of this entire county from San Simeon to Arroyo Grande.

One of these citizens is a student at Cal Poly. His name is Kurt Kupper and Kurt has a wide field of opposition including many men who would like to see San Luis Obispo become a haven for developers and trailer court builders. Some of these candi­dates have as much as $15,000 in war chests and more will be coming in. Insurance agents' practices questioned

by TOM MARSHALL

Significant numbers of students at the San Luis Obispo campus of the University of California have been contacted by insurance agents last summer, according to Richard Carael, ASI lawyer.

"Not all companies are reputable," Carael said, "I saw the need to check the information, but wondered where the students were located.

"Evans' concern is matched by that of a parent of a student from this campus who became a victim of a disreputable local agent.

In a letter sent to the college last year, the concerned parent said, "I realize it is 20-year-old boy is supposed to be capable of making his own decision, but I also know some agents are inexperienced and can be susceptible to sharp sales pitch. My complaint is that this type of advice given by an insurance company should not be allowed."

"These kids find themselves being sued, where in many cases they do not know they have an insurance policy," said Richard Carael, ASI lawyer. "Not all companies are reputable. Most of the people contacted were either juniors or seniors.

"Evans said he concluded the life insurance agency was the campus student directory, the Handbook and the card catalog in the College Union. There is the only place where a student's telephone number is available to the public.

"The answer was to get rid of the Handbook and the card catalog, but the administration are planning to use the Handbook," he said. According to Evans, he has been directed to pass a program to prohibit misrepresentation for an insurance company should not be allowed.

"Consumer fraud laws prohibit misrepresentation for an insurance policy."

Kites soar in canyon festival

For a day of fun under the sun, the Recreation and Tournaments Committee (RAT) is sponsoring a Poly Canyon Festival from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

A kite contest and gadgets in a coffee house atmosphere are planned for RAT's Saturday event. "Relax under the trees and let the sun shine on your face," said John Dunn, publicity chairman for the festival. Admission is 30 cents.

Prizes will be awarded for the best designed kite and for the best flight by a kite. RAT will have a kites contest, stand, but no food concessions are planned.

The coffee house atmosphere will be provided by the regular performers at the campus coffee house. The entertainers scheduled to appear are John Dunn, Tom Waters, Albert and Roe, Tony Lopes, John Blaslus, and Harlan Harland.

Abortion is an individual matter

by KINSEY BARNARD

"A fetus is a person," said Dr. Walter Barbell and Dr. Stan Dunm, both instructors of philosophy at San Luis Obispo College. The public discussion on abortion was offered by Shirley Bums, associate psychologist at San Luis Obispo County Health Center.

All three speakers agreed that abortion is a personal decision. The point of contention was whether or not the embryo or fetus is actually a person, therefore it is not morally wrong to abort it. "A major concern being debated is whether or not the embryo or fetus has achieved self-awareness, which neither the fetus or embryo ever achieved," Barbell said.

"Abortion is an individual matter and these gentlemen are talking about the embryo as though it were contained within some kind of vacuum. After all, the fetus is not the only person involved in the situation," she said.

The problem of social impact on the mother was brought forth. Dunm answered, "It is not the fetus that threatens the mother but the society in which she lives.

"Over half of the abortions being performed in New York are performed on married women," she said, "a major concern being socio-economic problems. Some people just can't afford to support or handle another child."

"Since no one has yet been able to positively determine at what point the embryo or fetus becomes a person, no positive answer was offered as to the morality of abortion. It seems the question remains a personal judgement."

Insurance agents' practices questioned

Lawyer says only a few are causing trouble

by TOM MARSHALL

"The average student is susceptible," Evans said, "I saw the need to check the information, but wondered where the student's parents were located."

"Evans' concern is matched by that of a parent of a student from this campus who became a victim of a disreputable local agent."

"I realized it is 20-year-old boys are supposed to be capable of making their own decision, but I also know some agents are inexperienced and can be susceptible to sharp sales pitch. My complaint is that this type of advice given by an insurance company should not be allowed."

"Consumer fraud laws prohibit misrepresentation for an insurance policy."

"I referred all responses to Carael for consideration. I wholeheartedly support the students," Evans said.

"I've been working on this problem for about six weeks and have already received some complaints through Evans and other sources.

"They are all identical," Carael said, "Consumer fraud laws prohibit misrepresentation for an insurance policy."

Jumpin' Jitsu, it's Judo

by JANINE TARTAGLIA

Not quite in the tradition of Dick Tracy's sidekick Joe Jitau, the judo club of this college is sponsoring their third annual Invitational Judo Tournament Sunday in the Men's Gym.

More than 100 judo contestants from this college and throughout Southern California will participate in the 1 pm event. Sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union, the men's tournament will be held by the Judo Club. Judo practitioners at Cal Poly are divided into white, brown and black belt classifications.

Registration will take place from 11:30 am to 1:30 pm. The entry fee of $1 can be submitted at the tournament or through the Judo Club. Judokes practitioners in recent tournaments have won medals.

Judokes practitioners are divided into white, brown belt and black belt classifications. These categories are based on the experience and proficiency of the player.

With contributions such as these, the big polluters and their allies have raised $61,600 so far to finance their campaign against the Clean Environment Act, Proposition 15, so they can afford plenty of radio and TV time, newspaper and magazine space, billboards and political consultants to help get their message out.

Unfortunately, nobody's showing that kind of money on the People for the Clean Environment Act. We've raised $127,600 so far, from more than 7,000 small contributors. And most of that money has already gone out for things like rent, telephone, paper, etc.

If we're going to get our message out, it's largely up to you. We're putting up hundreds of thousands of leaflets explaining the Clean Environment Act, and if you'd help us distribute them to the brown, shopping center, brunch and steak crowd. In fact, we know the Clean Environment Act will pass. In fact, a massive personal contact campaign would actually be more effective than a massive media campaign. (Just ask those folks in Dade.)

So, to paraphrase John Kennedy, you know what the Clean Environment Act is. And you know what you can do for it. Please call now to volunteer, even if you feel you can only give a few hours. We need 200 volunteers for the campaign until after Election Day. If you don't like working in a campaign, we need some people to run things, make phone calls, and do the legwork. But if you want to volunteer, please call.

SAC was adjourned.

After hearing Careel's legal opinion concerning freedom of the press and Glen McCollough's (chairman of the Publishers Board) argument that SAC had no authority or jurisdiction over Mustang Daily, Carl's motion was withdrawn.

Another meeting was then called for Thursday night and SAC was adjourned.

Football hosts Sat. alumni game

A number of football personalities from out of the past will converge on Mustang Stadium Saturday to meet the Mustangs in Saturday's annual spring game. Gametime is 1:30 p.m. for a contest that should be an interesting match of conditioning and exceptional talent. The 73 Mustangs are the ones with the conditioning. For them, the work began five weeks ago and they now have nearly 30 practice sessions behind them. For the alumni, practice will begin on Saturday—in the afternoon.

Steve Breanahan, who will quarterback the returning grade, pointed out why little time is spent in preparation: "If we worked out in pads before the game we'd be sore during the game." As a result, the practice sessions are held in a loose atmosphere, something alumni coach Tom Lee feels will be an advantage in the game.

"These players are more relaxed and a little more mature, and we have a lot of good talent," he said. Lee expects around 20 out-of-towners to join the 18 alumni, and many of the prospective starters were members of all-conference teams while playing football here. The alumni won last year's game 16-7.

Joe Harper, head coach of the Mustangs, considers the contest an opportunity for the younger members of his team to gain some good game experience. He said, "I don't think there will be much domination by either team. It should be a very tough football game."

The following is a list of prospective starters:

TENNIS TEAM IN 'WARM-UP' FOR JUNE NATIONALS

The Mustang tennis team, champions of the California Collegiate Athletic Association, faces its last formal tournament this weekend before the NCAA tournament.

The UC Santa Barbara Gaucho host an intercollegiate tennis tournament today, tomorrow, and Sunday. Mustang natters are the defending champions.

"It was quite an honor to win it because there were a lot of fine schools entered in the tournament," said coach Ed Jorgensen. "We would like to repeat as champions, but the competition is going to be pretty tough."

The tournament allows only four-man teams. Representing the Mustangs will be Dan Lambert, Tom Martin, Kent Coble, and Harold Errett. Lambert and Martin will pair for the doubles slot with the duo of Coble and Errett. Jorgensen said the tournament will be a good warm-up for his team in preparation for the nationals in June. The same four players will be entered in all events of the tournament. Any type of competition will be similar.
