People helping people; that's what the People to People Club stands for, the International Council is for.

The club, with a membership rapidly growing every year, has been designed to bring together people from all over the world to share their backgrounds and experiences. Through informal exchanges of culture and discussion of problems we can get a better understanding and coexistence.

One major barrier to the ideal of worldwide friendship is Mary Jo Ribeiro, president, is well aware of the lack of interest by many American students. We wish we could get more American students to join our discussions in order to promote a better understanding and coexistence.

"Most of the foreign students feel they have a great responsibility to their country. They want to be able to help their individual countries when they have a chance. They're not interested in acquiring here is not only of little interest, but more importantly that gained through the exchange of ideas and viewpoints," she said.

One method of presenting the merging cultures of each country represented has been the devotion of each meeting's theme to a particular country. Students from a particular country discuss their culture and show—through music, art, and dance—what they feel is important about their country is all about.

"Miss Ribeiro complained, "One of the biggest problems in relating to Americans is the tendency for them to think of us in terms of one group, foreigner. "We want to show that we are as different as anyone else. Unfortunately, the truth is, we're too alike, too."

"Too often we stick together too much. That's why we wish we could get more American students to join our discussions and establish a meaningful rapport," she said. Membership in the club has dropped substantially in the last few years. There are over 30 regularly attending students but only 13 who pay dues. "This is due to a great extent to the increased tuition. Many students are suffering real financial troubles so the ones who can pay, pay and those who cannot, don't. We don't exclude anybody for lack of funds," Miss Ribeiro said.

The club has suffered by the lack of funds in its ability to sponsor more activities.

"We sponsored the International Talent Show this year and we will be having a banquet June 3 for the graduating seniors," she said. "Our last banquet, however, was not set with enough funds to have as many activities."

The tuition situation has more than put a damper on club activities.

No ‘married’ handouts

Editor:
I am married and have a child and I am going to Cal Poly. But I haven’t asked anyone to pay for my child, even though I am in favor of the day care center. I am probably like many people, many are over 26 years old that have not spent any time for their education as everyone else (not more so than some).

Yes, the married people are asking for support, not a hand out; there are too many people who want a hand out now a days. The married people want to get a day care center started that will eventually pay for itself (more than some AB activities) and get federal funding, but it is hard to start. As myself and many people who would like to have a day care center know that we will never be able to benefit directly from it (either because by the time it is established we will have graduated or the planned capacity is very small for the number of people that need the center) we would still like to see it established and feel that someone else in the future will have benefited its use.

But as was mentioned in an articles before, I do not begrudge anyone who goes to any of the many AB sponsored activities and married students help pay for and cannot attend. I feel we all belong to the same school and for the most part have the same goals and if we work together and pull together we will get further faster.

Guilt complex is ours from inhuman treatment

Editor:
This is a response to Tuesday’s letter and reaction to what has been aired since Nixon escalated his war. The letter expressed that World War III will definitely coming but we could prepare by accepting Christ and live an everlasting life. Remember we have to die first and if it is a cruel death or an inhuman life as the American people have perpetuated on the countries of Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia, then we deserve an everlasting life of guilt conscience.

Christ came to earth to do something about the condition here almost 2000 years ago, if “revolutionary” or “subversive” had been in the vocabulary, those words would have described Him. Instead of just letting the III come we can’t get together to stop the massive slaughter and immense suffering before it begins! Accept Christ if that is your way, but don’t try to do it alone.

The Navy recruiter was quoted as saying his service allowed the protestors to protest. Claiming that the war is necessary and the people who want to be left in power.

Senate’s role: not to ‘police’

Editor:
The May 11 article on the Academic Senate’s Ad Hoc Committee on Professional Responsibility completely distorted the role and power of the committee and the intent of the Professional Code. The role is not intended to be “enforced,” the role of the committee is “enforce” anything or to “police” anyone, and the committee has no power to make dismissal recommendations. In a telephone conversation with me, Howard Rhoads, chairman of the Academic Senate, repudiated the statements attributed to him.

Airport terror

Tel Aviv (UPI) - Three Japanese gunmen opened fire with automatic rifles and grenades in the crowded passenger terminal of Lod International Airport after disembarking from an Air France jetliner Tuesday night, killing at least 50 persons and wounding at least 80 others.

The national radio said 30 to 50 persons in the terminal, mostly arriving passengers or persons waiting for them, either dropped to the tiled floor or fled for cover in rest rooms and the VIP lounge while airport police battled it out with the gunmen.

"There were bullets flying all over," said Dorit Shril, a policeman at the airport.

The estimated 260 to 300 persons in the terminal, mostly arriving passengers or persons waiting for them, either dropped to the tiled floor or fled for cover in rest rooms and the VIP lounge while airport police battled it out with the gunmen.

The informal meetings are held every Friday in the International Lounge from 1 to 3 p.m.

Summer spirit

If you feel you don't want to become spiritually lifeless this summer, perhaps the Thursday night's Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship (IVFC) meeting will help you.

Dr. Robert L. Crash from the speech department here, will be talking about "How Not to Fall Away During the Summer."

The meeting will be held in Beach 11th at beginning at 7 p.m. The public is invited.
Hamer wins another

by MALCOLM STONE

Dave Hamer is in Eugene, Oregon in pursuit of the NCAA University Division championship in the pole vault, after winning the College Division title at Ashland, Ohio Saturday.

The sophomore vaulter was the only bright spot in an otherwise dull showing for the Mustang track team. The Mustangs tied for 18th with host Ashland College and Pullman State, scoring only 14 points.

Hamer cleared the crossbar at 18-6 to clinch the title and a new NCAA record as well. The old record was 18-5 set by Peter Chen of American University in 1986.

Hamer's 17-4 vault at the West Coast Relays two weeks ago had established him as the favorite, but he almost let the title get away. In fact he almost didn't place.

He passed at the opening height of 16-0 then missed his first two attempts at 18-4. One more miss would have eliminated his shot at the title and the record. When he did clear the height he was in fourth place only because he had fewer misses than the next guy.

Hamer then gambled that some of his competitors would falter at 18-0 and passed. Then he cleared 18-4 on his first try, but he had company at that height.

Van Devies of Northern Colorado and decathlon winner Don Albritton of Northeast Missouri also made the height.

At that point Hamer took command of the event and cleared 18-4 on his first attempt and the other two failed.

Hamer decided to attempt a personal best of 17-4 which he did not achieve. After a wait of 15 minutes that was required to measure the record and reset the bar at 18-4 he was not even close.

"I had to wait so long after clearing 16-4 that I got cold and lost my concentration," Hamer said. "I had a slow start and had a problem at 18-4."

"I had to vault right after running the anchor leg of the 440 relay. I was worried after missing twice but after I made 18-4 I was okay. I feel like I have more 17-footh vaults in and one of them may come next weekend in Eugene, Oregon."

Hamer may need much more than 17 feet to be in the race at Eugene. Steve Smith of Long Beach State is the favorite with a best 17-4-

Coach Steve Simpkins also took freshman high jumper Tom Murphy to Eugene. Murphy won the California Collegiate Athletic Association title, but he was fifth at Ashland at 5-10.

Hamer's father Robert Hamer was at Ashland to see his son become this college's 18th national champion. In track and field the Mustangs rank first along with North Carolina Central with 11 Champions.

Unofficial results of a faculty library sub-committee survey on library utilization and collection development show that some 90.4 per cent of the questionnaires were returned.

Of 799 questionnaires distributed approximately 430 were returned and the Faculty Library Committee deemed the responses "favorable."

The questionnaires were distributed among the faculty to gather information that would aid in improving the library's collection and services, and to make the faculty aware of their responsibility in the collection development of the library, according to L. Harry Bruzae, director of the college library.

Carleton Winlow, from the architecture, department, and Ding Breckshen, of the school of Social Sciences and Business, who made up the committee were assisted by the professional library staff in preparing the questionnaire.

Faculty members were asked to respond to questions concerning their use of the library, class assignments that required use of the library, what they thought of the library's collections and services, and if they thought the library tours and lectures sponsored by the library.

Results of the survey will be distributed to each department for consideration, Winlow said.
