NEW TAX

Council passes utility tax

by MELISSA RODRIGUEZ

Voting four to one the San Luis Obispo City Council Monday night passed the controversial five per cent utility Users Tax Ordinance of the City of San Luis Obispo.

During 30 minutes of discussion prior to voting on the matter the four councilmen and Mayor Kenneth Schwartz gave their various opinions why and why not the tax should or should not be passed and listened to several speakers from the audience voice their beliefs.

Councilman Emmors Blake has basically supported the utility tax and feels it is the proper kind of tax because it is under the direct control of the taxpayer.

"A person can repair a leaking faucet, mow the lawn, turn down the thermostat a little to cope with this small tax increase," said Blake.

"As far as people saying the tax is unfair because it taxes the matter user more than the lesser one I feel this is fair because in my opinion the larger user should be entitled to a discount, it is like the more groceries you buy the lower discount you get," Blake said the council chamber that the tax money would be spent on the Department of Parks and Recreation, expanded police protection, the purchasing of open space and continuing the tree program.

During a break in the meeting Blanks said that there is no reason for apartment owners to take the tax out of their own utilities.

Councilman John Brown commented briefly on his reason for favoring the tax during the meeting.

"The tax is as equitable as we can make it," said Brown. "It is taken in part from other cities in California and is an average tax."

The only member to oppose the tax was councilman T. Keith Gurnee. He opposed the tax for three main reasons.

"The first reason I opposed the tax is that it is a regressive tax," said Gurnee. "Sure one student doesn't make more than the $8,000 exemption but three students living in one apartment do make over $8,000 and thus are not exempt."

"Second, it is a discriminatory tax that hits students, poor, and old people the hardest."

"Third, I was in favor of the construction tax instead of the utility tax because the utility tax requires all citizens of the city to buy services and facilities demanded by a population that has yet to come into the city. In other words, all citizens are paying their city to be in the building industry."

Gurnee said that a rate based on per kilowatt hour would be a better idea than the standard rate placed on everyone. He also stressed that the council should tell the people how the money is going to be spent and make that clear to them where the money is going.

Councilman Myron Oraham supported the utility tax and preferred it to a construction tax.

"If the money was used for the schools or the community college I feel this campus deserves it," said Oraham.

"I feel this campus deserves the money although I am a university professor or not."

He believes that the $8,000 income adjustment is fair to the household.

"The state or federal government might establish this tax if we don't," said Graham. "Many charter cities are establishing such a tax."

"There are many areas in the city where people are making demands for things and we need money to fulfill them."

CRAKE IS UPSET--Mike Meiling, chairman of ABI finance committee, read a letter from Robin Baggett to the city council but the utility tax passed anyway.

A crane fell over during the construction of the new stadium addition. There were no injuries.

One side of the crane was resting on soft dirt and as the constructors were taking out the light pole the crane sank into the dirt and eventually it fell over.

The crane dumped gasoline and hydraulic oil. According to Douglas Gerard executive dean, the campus fire department did a good job cleaning it up.

Although the transmission was damaged, the crane was not delayed in work because another crane was brought down from Santa Maria.

SIC gives team funds for uniforms

A grant was made to the SIC to approve their bylaws. The original request was turned down on Aug. 10, because no representative from the team was present to answer the Committee's questions.

A request from Alpha Pi Mu for SIC to approve their bylaws was turned down for the second time as committee members indicated they needed more time to familiarize themselves with their proposal.

Bob Leavell, from the school of Industrial Engineering, and spokesman for Alpha Pi Mu, indicated that the bylaws was urgent because students working on organizing the club were becoming eligible for graduation and they wanted to have the society recognized.
Confession of a mole people

Hey. Don't let 'em kid you.

There's a plot, a very real plot, to get you. I've been watching lately and I see that you're worried about something. I can see the agony of doubt and apprehension on your face as you peer around the corner to see who's down the hall.

Then somebody walks up to you and, after you've jerked yourself out of your sweaty, smelly (ever noticed how you smell different in out of your sweaty, smelly) clothes in fright, asks you very disarmingly, "How's it going?"

But fear ye not, fabled student, because you consume a pack and a half of rolaids a day, can't eat, can't sleep, and can't seem to get along with anybody (even the goddamn dog) that doesn't mean that you're off.

Well, as you see, I've been watching, and can sympathize with your situation. The most important thing to remember is that you are not crazy. Just because you consume a pack and a half of rolaids a day, can't eat, and can't seem to get along with anybody (even the goddamn dog) that doesn't mean that you're off.

Money interests. It was Nelson Rockefeller who saved Nixon from political obscurity after his race for the governorship in California.

It is the financiers who have controlled every election since Woodrow Wilson, as they are doing in this one. They have been able to get into the position they are in, largely because of the establishment of the Federal Reserve System, who they created.

It was while working for Rockefeller that he rebuilt his image, and this is when Nixon sold himself to their interests.

Perspective; an enigma for many

by PAUL SIMON

The news media has a responsibility to report on what is happening and to bring to light what is not happening that should be or what is not right that should be right. How many times have you seen letters-to-the-editor signed by individuals who claim "I was there and it didn't happen that way at all."

Journalistic accounts of events can indeed be distorted, but more often than not disagreement with a written account is more a matter of a person's foreshortened perspective and less a matter of a reporter's deficiency.

Participation invited subjectivity. And that is particularly important to consider when you have double regarding the efficiency and objectivity of student newspapers.

The most proficient journalist on the one who can set himself apart from a situation and evaluate it as a whole with a perspective, that's the key.

To be honest, in four summers during which I have worked for the paper, I have never been questioned only twice. Perhaps I have been so seriously questioned only twice.

My own investigation of the use of student funds for speakers that produced information and debate, is for a few. Every one of the complaints came from persons directly involved in the controversy.

Where they being objective? Hardly.

The second question comes during the heated AES elections last spring and involved a direct quote I printed from one of those needing a voice off. My mistake, came, not as you might imagine, from misquoting anyone—here's where we have not never right— in the eyes of a few knowledgable.

Strong enough, slight criticism evolved from others who spectators to student affairs.

The next week's column entitled "Dr. Waldbanger's Winning Weapon."

The intelligent reader, however, would immediately recognize a few errors had he reduced his esoteric words to a misleading rabbi of nonsense. Nothing.

For my exclusive interview with Dr. Harvey Waldbanger, the good-... insight of summer, Sen. George McGovern would be president, if a proposal "Liberal" state. Contrary to what appeared in the column via a missing line, Dr. Waldbanger further noted Richard Nixon would establish a dictatorship in his "conservative" state if they wouldn't have him to kick around anymore. They wouldn't let him.

If anyone wondered at the mixup, fine and thanks for reading. If not, just consider the explanation an idiocy of a perspective-to-death journalist.

Volunteers are needed for Catch 22

Catch 22, a cross reference system being instituted for the library by Skip Kelley, needs a voluntary help to meet the Sept. 8 deadline.

Kelley is eating the help of at least 26 students, teachers or anyone interested in giving 10 hours of their time, one hour a day for the next ten days.

The volunteers will be carding and indexing volumes of material being prepared for the new filing system.

The file system will enable students to find rules, by-laws and governing codes pertaining to student organizations and administration policy in a matter of minutes. In order to meet the days demand for material to be prepared, Kelley needs help.

If you are interested in giving your time to the project contact Skip Kelley, Activities Planning Center room 117 in the College Union, the AES office or phone 311.

A Project Status Report giving comprehensive status of all capital outlay projects currently in active status was given to all department heads.

The following are some of the current projects now under construction, and some that have been allocated for construction in the near future.

Phase III of construction of residence halls located north of Yosemite Hall have a completion date set for January 17, 1973 at a cost of $3,333,316. The new residence halls will provide resident space for 400 students. A new dining facility complex located on the former site of the Ornamental Horticulture unit at Grand Avenue and Mountain Drive has been under construction since April 16, 1972. The original bid price of $1,004,900 has been increased to $1,092,000 due to required change of orders.

Expansion of the Mustang Stadium calls for a 1,000 seat addition to the steel bleachers. At a cost of $193,610 which will include the north side seating, improving the east side sound system, and painting the existing steel grandstand. It will be completed before the first official kickoff.

A $10,390,000 five story library building complex for the library. The contract documents are complete, and a request for construction bids will be made in the 1973-74 budget year.

As a result of the university's decision to construct a new library for 12,000 students, a project planning committee has been established to submit to the construction office the potential library to be used in the current year. As yet specific planning has not been undertaken.

A $190,000,000 new library building complex will be located west of the Men's Residence Halls. The contract documents are complete, and a request for construction bids will be made in the 1974-75 budget year.

For those who long to gaze at exotic beasts, a safari to Africa is not the only answer. A short trip to Buschton promises to satisfy such desires. For animals at Africa, USA, located on Highway 101, are lurking behind seemingly fragile iron fences.
Good percent are females

Janice Ducey

by JOHN HANSBURY

The figure looks sort of familiar, what with the cowboy hat, Levi's, western shirt, hand-tooled belt and boots. But wait a minute! If that shape belongs to a cowboy, I sure would like to spend next roundup with him. Actually, in case you haven't noticed, a lot of young ladies are enrolled in agriculture these days. In fact, 10 percent of the ag students put on their face before class, and I'm not referring to makeup. One such Annie-get-your-gun is Janice Ducy, a 19-year-old animal science major, who will begin the Agriculture Education program in fall. Based on a small farm in Riverside, Calif., Janice has taken involved with the 4-H, FFA, and a swim project, and a crops project. She is one of the only girls in other majors ever to be included in the Escalita Ranch project. Janice believes a long table in the Mustang newsmain, Janice spoke on various topics concerning herself and other women in agriculture.

Janice: Why would a girl go into agriculture?
Janice: Because that's where their interests lie. I personally wouldn't have come to college unless I could have taken ag. I want to teach ag.

Janice: Are you discriminated against in your ag labs?
Janice: No. Janice: Not really. They are a dress. My mom told me I could notice you if you show up wearing a dress. My mom told me I could notice you if you show up wearing a dress. My mom told me I could notice you if you show up wearing a dress. My mom told me I could notice you if you show up wearing a dress. My mom told me I could notice you if you show up wearing a dress.

Janice: If you're willing to work no. However, if you sit on the fence and let the guys do the work, it's your own fault. Some work calls for brute physical strength and a lot of girls don't do it. When you see what work is to be done, you should go ahead and volunteer.

However, there is some discrimination. Among the instructors have caught up with the present. When I was a freshman my friends would tell me not to take as much and so because he didn't like girls. You've just got to recognize the problem and meet it head on.

Janice: Are there any stereotypes that ag girls are put into?
Janice: Sure. For myself, I outgrew the belt and buckle stage. A lot of people live up to this stereotype when they first come in. It's the feeling of the Ag Department—a western atmosphere. Some of it is trying to be real, but the modern rancher isn't like that.

Janice: Do aggie girls feel left behind?
Janice: No. They've that isolated from other types of girls except for the 4-H, FFA, and other people's experiences.

Janice: What is the most exciting aspect of ag as seen from the woman's point of view?
Janice: I believe that the most exciting aspect is observing the many changes the industry is going through. There's the aggie stereotype doesn't exist anymore. You really have to be a top of management for women to express themselves. People really accept the girl. My mom told me I could notice you if you show up wearing a dress. My mom told me I could notice you if you show up wearing a dress. My mom told me I could notice you if you show up wearing a dress. My mom told me I could notice you if you show up wearing a dress. My mom told me I could notice you if you show up wearing a dress.

Janice: It depends on how much responsibility you've had before college. If you get some profit from your country upbringing, that attitude, that ag girls have an advantage over other kids.

Janice: Are ag girls preconditioned on how to act in college?
Janice: Not really. They are a lot more natural and friendly than the other people's experiences.

Janice: What with the type of work often required, do you believe it is difficult for a girl to keep her femininity?
Janice: Anybody is liberated if they are doing what they enjoy. For myself, I depend on people for support, but I still enjoy doing things for myself. Women's Lib had connotations. It's a humane point of view—accepting people for what they are first—not by sex. We have more opportunities for women to express themselves in other ways than first being a housewife.

Janice: How are you treated in non-ag courses, by the students and the instructors?
Janice: A friend of mine was in a psychology class and the professor wanted to know what she was doing there—so in psychology was too far above her. But most people are just curious. They usually expect the stereotype from you.

Janice: What does the social status of ag girls measure today and beyond that of a non-ag?
Janice: It all depends on your Test. We go fishing and craving. Movies. But there are so many activities such as the Drama, Men's Chorus, and there are plenty of fair to participate in.

Janice: In your opinion, what is a modern agriculturalist?
Janice: A combination of cowbow, yet, businessman—join all-trades. There are so many other angles in agriculture than ever before. We should put the top right on the whole thing if he is going to make it.

Janice: Would it be harder for a girl with a non-ag background to make it in ag than a girl with an ag background making it in some other field?
Janice: No. I know that people want to get back to the land. I would be hard for a woman used to being free—in the country—to go to live in the city.
