Money matters discussed at finance confab

The Finance Committee requested the chairman of Athletic, ASC and Publications Boards to explain their deficits in current financial statements at next Monday's meeting.

In the ASC financial statement of March 31, three boards show a combined deficit in reserves of $61,811. Bic Depper, Business and Social Science representative, said he would like to hear the board chairman from these programs explain why they are in the hole and how they expect to raise their deficits.

In other action, the Finance Committee discussed ASC's control of club expenses. Steve Prevsl and Bruce Meiring, ASC agriculture and natural resources representatives, said they were concerned about possible interference in 70's and roller games. Mike Meiring, ASC committee chairman, suggested possible joint sponsoring of events by ASC and clubs could benefit both.

Meiring and Dave Oldfield, ASC program manager, discussed the budget cuts made at last week's meeting and expressed hopes ASC will be able to support some of the more valuable activities and raise the contingency fund from the recommended level of 8.5% to 10%. Oldfield said the tight limit has been caused by the limited enrollment for the past three years following a period of large expansion.

Farr to reveal his story

William Farr, the Los Angeles Times reporter who was jailed 48 days last November for refusing to disclose confidential news sources he used in a Charles Manson murder trial story, will speak here Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Union 208.

Admission to the lecture, which is being sponsored by the university chapter of the Sigma Delta Chi Professional Journalistic Society, will be 75 cents for students and $1 for non-students.

Farr, 38, free from jail pending the outcome of two court appeals at the state and federal levels, is expected to discuss his involvement in the Manson trial and the efforts he is having on the insurance of a free press.

His involvement in the case comes from a story he wrote for the Los Angeles Herald Examiner concerning information he had received about a bizarre plot by Manson and his "family." In March, Elaine "Bibi" Benjamin, Richard Burton, Tom Jones and Steve McQueen, Superior Court Judge Charles Older, presiding over the trial, asked Farr to reveal his sources of the story. Farr refused on the grounds of Section 1917 of the Government Code which protects newsmen from disclosing confidential sources, and the matter was dropped for the time being.

Seven months later he left the Herald Examiner to work as the Los Angeles Daily News and subsequently Older summoned him to court once again to ask for the identity of the news sources, this time stressing that Farr was no longer protected by the Shield Law since he was no longer a working newswoman.

Vowing to "keep his word," Farr again refused and this time was sentenced by Older to an indefinite stay in jail. According to Farr, he held the key to his jail "in his mouth" since all he had to do was talk to get out, but he never talked and he was 48 days behind bars because of it.

Now temporarily free, Farr will be speaking at this university and has indicated he will stay "as late as people want to ask him questions."

Petitions can be filed for potential ASC candidates

According to Bob Walters, advisor to ASC elections committee, filling space for candidacy of ASC officers and Student Affairs Council (SAC) members April 11 - 15.

Potential candidates must file a petition for a position in the Activities Planning Center on the University Union. If the potential candidate meets qualifications and obtains at least three per cent of the signatures of the ASC, he will be eligible to run.

The deadline that the petitions must be in is April 15, 4:15 p.m. A candidates meeting will follow immediately after this deadline date in UU 307.

Candidates must have completed at least 90 units of collegiate study and shall not graduate during the term in which they are eligible. They must earn a 2.0 grade point average.

Active campaigning will begin on April 10 and elections will be held May 8th and 10th.

Cal Poly's oldest building is slated for demolition this summer to make room for a new architecture classroom and lab, and a campaign to save the building has begun.

"The Campus Planning Committee decided that the site on which Ag Ed stands was the best available, as it is contiguous with present and future architectural facilities, and it was fully discussed by the groups concerned," said Phillips.

The Campus Planning Committee is composed of the Cal Poly president, admissions vice president, staff senate representatives, academic senate representatives, student representatives, dean of the school of Architecture and Environmental Design.

"This new building is needed if we are to maintain enrollment in architecture. Without this new building we will not be able to continue in our program in architecture here, said Dean Oldfield, dean of the School of Architecture and Environmental Design.

"Undergraduate and graduate students must have earned no fewer than 60 quarter units during the 13 months immediately preceding the term in which filing occurs and candidates must earn a minimum of seven units during the term in which the election is held, maintaining a 2.0 grade point average.

Active campaigning will begin on April 10 and elections will be held in May 8th and 10th.

A run-off candidates meeting will be held at 10 a.m., May 11, and run-off elections will follow on the 17th and 19th of the same month.

A SAC workshop consisting of outgoing and incoming representatives will be held May 13-14 to familiarize the new members with their duties as school representatives.

"All SAC candidates running for election in the school of Human Development and Education should be reminded that the number of their representatives has dropped from four to three due to a drop in the school's registration," Walters said.

Students battle demolition date for old Ag Ed

by ROBERT TERRILL

Cal Poly's oldest building is slated for demolition this summer to make room for a new architecture classroom and lab, and a campaign to save the building has begun.

The Agricultural Education Building has been condemned for some time and was scheduled for demolition in the 1986 Campus Master Plan. However, said Peter Phillips, Cal Poly facilities planner.

"The Campus Planning Committee decided that the site on which Ag Ed stands was the best available, as it is contiguous with present and future architectural facilities, and it was fully discussed by the groups concerned," said Phillips.

Western board on SAC docket

Action at tonight's BAC meeting will center on creating a western program board, minor requirements in the Economics Department, and a possible change to the Poly Royal Code.

According to Laura Lemmon, ASC advisor to the SAC program board would hold activities, such as a western night, and try in generating income to replace some of the funds that go to agricultural activities.
The other day a man asked me to expound the feminist ideal of the male-female relationship. Considering one thing at a time and possessing a great take-off point, that of already being summarily dismissed as a radical, helter-skelter kludge-wad for the world's score as a woman's life (Mary, they heard us talk), I began with one of the fundamental confrontations with male prejudice in every woman's life.

One day you're walking down the street, feeling groovy because you just passed that economics exam, and a carload of men pulls up alongside. Hanging out all the windows with delighted leers slathered all over their faces, "the boys" loudly comment on your legs ("look at those wheels!"); your bottom ("what a set of buttocks!"); or your behind ("nice ass she's got there, huh?") or any combination of the three. Instant humILIation.

Now let's not mistake me here. Every woman alive knows from experience the difference between a genuine compliment of admiring stare and this brand of catcall. In any case, she can say thank-you and smile. To the second there is no way home.

Or maybe the day comes when you're in a serious discussion on the merits and disadvantages of the nuclear family with your boyfriend and he suddenly laughs and tells you how "cute" you look when you're trying to be serious. Memories charge in all of those other times he stopped a discussion that you were Equal to just in that way.

Or you're in the room, and Lendy to be your partner in the block and they kept trying to "give you" an extra turn at bat, when you were the one tagging runners out at third and hitting the ball over the fence without undue strain. All some playing man's role.

Or maybe it was the day you heard your last bearable dismissal of your or another woman's opinion with the old standby, "What's eating you, on the rag today?"

The list of particular experiences goes on ad infinitum. One common factor to them all is the complete absence of a socially-acceptable rebuttal to them. Rather than join the detractors, the woman is compelled to do nothing.

The common expectation of the male participants in these events is for the woman to "act like a lady" and not to possess just express the freedom to learn to learn of her freedom.

Yes, in Time everybody groves old though beneath your weathered skin your years speak at yesterday and a time past of the cares and sensitivity which made you.

But isn't that funny? Some architects have dreams of... so under all eye vision and always for new building in the challenge of leadership I've said how long before concrete age old?

Sorry to see you go,

Don Wardlaw

Jews vs. Palestinians

Editor:

On last Friday an article under the title of "Israel didn't elide the plane" attracted my attention and since a good number of people do not have the slightest idea about Zionist or Jewish dilemma, I decided to write a little about it.

The fact that Zionist propaganda was accepted by world Jews and was allowed to shape the attitude of Jews toward the Palestinians is quite puzzling. In fact, astonishing.

There were always Jewish dissenters and I will present their dilemma, I decided to write a little about it.

In 1939, the Jewish-American anthropologist, Goldenweiser noted that Jews in Palestine were prejudiced against Palestinians and considered them inferior. Based on above facts, it is obvious that the brutal act of Dachau was not only the state of Nazism but the brutality of whatever the state which attacked the Jews and the Arabs with hostility and brutality.

In 1948, another Jew, W. Brunn, wrote: "We who are suffering persecution through the years still claim all human rights for ourselves, are going to Palestine reversing the role."

In 1929, the Jewish-American anthropologist, Goldenweiser noted that Jews in Palestine were prejudiced against Palestinians and considered them inferior. Based on above facts, it is obvious that the brutal act of Dachau was not only the state of Nazism but the brutality of whatever the state which attacked the Jews and the Arabs with hostility and brutality.

A special note to prospective elementary teaching candidates (now freshmen through Juniors). There will be a meeting in Poly Theatre at 11:00 a.m., April 12, according to Mrs. Alvah Davis, director of the Children's Center. The meeting is scheduled to explain the new credentials legislation because "most students will probably find it necessary to transfer their major to the new Liberal Studies Major." Mrs. Davis added that the sale was initiated and carried out by the parents' club within the center.
‘To Implement Ideas’ is Machado’s ambition

Elimination of further flood threats and the utility tax are two major goals of San Luis Obispo mayoral candidate R.M. (Bob) Machado.

A native of the San Luis Obispo area, Machado is concerned about the possibility of further flooding as well as the preservation of natural resources.

According to Machado, the creeks should be cleared of debris and hazardous trees removed from the banks. He proposes an annual inspection and cleaning of these channels.

Another answer to the threat of flooding is the construction of check or flood control dams north of San Luis Obispo on San Luis Creek and Sisener Creek to control water entering the city limits, according to Machado.

Machado believes these safeguards can be implemented without destroying the city’s natural beauty.

“All of us in this area are ecology minded or we wouldn’t be here,” Machado explained.

The second of Machado’s goals is to eliminate the five per cent utility tax.

“I want to see the utility tax postponed or eliminated and property tax reduced as long as we have this federal revenue starting,” Machado explained.

Machado added that if the 11-year-old construction worker is concerned also with the lack of recreational facilities in the city, bed tax revenue could be spent to increase facilities such as a miniature golf course or tennis courts, according to Machado.

“We could use a bigger recreational center. Any facility does not have to be built with one group or use in mind,” Machado explained.

Machado said he favors the establishment of a city transportation system and the enhancement of the downtown area.

R.M. Machado

‘Slow growth’ Stone’s plank

Heavy emphasis on community services, the housing problem and slow controlled growth of the city are the plans constituting the political platform of city council hopeful Norman A. Stone.

His slender bearded face, accentuated by wire-rimmed glasses and shoulder length hair pulled back into a ponytail, conveys sincerity when he says, “I am running mainly because I haven’t seen any representation for the little people, who constitute a vast segment of our community.”

Stone’s answer to funding more community service programs is to increase the city’s tax base through the solicitation of non-polluting industries and eliminate city promotional advertising, while expanding advertising of community activities.

“Activities will do the job better than we could ever advertise the city,” Stone commented.

Another untapped source of revenue, according to Stone, would emerge with the annexation of this university. Stone proposes annexation would mean an income of $80,000 in state taxes for the city.

Currently unemployed, he has been active in the Economic Opportunity Commission, the local peace movement and Green Roots II, of which he is a member of the board of directors.

Can he implement his programs and ideas into the city governmental system?

“My ability to work with people of all different persuasions enables me to work with almost anybody. The city council is in a position to very closely direct the progress of our city. It is inclined now to be very interested in our environment. These are compatible to the needs of the people.”

According to Stone, the paramount goal of his candidacy is to maintain integrity of the community—ecologically and size wise.

The 38-year-old candidate received a bachelor’s degree in animal husbandry from the University of California at Davis in 1968 and has taken graduate courses at this university. If elected, he intends to work with the community and this university to alleviate problems such as flooding.

Biologists seek photo entries

Tri Beta biology club is sponsoring a photo contest of biology-related pictures for Poly Royal.

The pictures will be divided into groups for zoology, botany, and general scenery with classification for color and black and white. Jim’s Campus Camera is offering a $10 gift certificate for the best picture. An honorable mention will be awarded the best picture in each category.

The pictures will be displayed with the biology exhibits during Poly Royal.

Any size of mounted print will be accepted until April 30. Prints may be turned in by persons other than Cal Poly students and staff, said Les Jenes, organizer.

Pictures must have the photographers’ name and phone number on the back and be turned into the biology department office. Members of Tri Beta will judge the photos which may be picked up after the show.

CITY COUNCIL APRIL 17
Norris uses his balance to run for city council

"Balance is my thing," that's what I stand on." That's how city council candidate Jesse Norris summarizes his campaign platform.

A very active citizen in community activities, Norris said he was drafted by numerous people in the community to run for the council seat.

A graduate of this university, he received his bachelor's degree in animal husbandry in 1987 and is employed as a vocational educator with the County Office of Education.

The 48-year-old educator has been active in the Economic Opportunity Commission, the restoration of Banning School, the County Historical Society and is on the board of directors of Achievement House.

In an expanding city like San Luis Obispo, Norris believes he can bring a balanced viewpoint to a city council.

"There is a need for a balance between the two extremes. I feel people want a balance because they can not afford either extreme," he said.

He expressed a desire to protect the environment and utilize the city's natural beauty to promote recreational programs within the community.

"We have to do everything necessary to preserve our beautiful surroundings and the way of life. I'm enthusiastic about a stronger recreation program both for youth and senior citizens. I want to utilize the school grounds and the city schools' cooperation in recreation programs on the campuses after school," he commented.

Can an educator, turned politician, successfully implement his ideas into the realm of city government? Norris thinks so.

"I'm sure going to work toward the achievement of them. I'd have a definite impact on the city council, no doubt about it. I have very broad-based community backing," he explained.

Homosexuals speak out

The status of the court case of the Gay Student Union and various aspects of homosexuality were the subject under discussion Tuesday night on Study Break, KCPR radio's public service program.

The conversation led by Liane Lustaite, newswoman for KCPR, and Steve Ruegnits, station manager for KCPR. Robert Christensen, former president of the GNU, and Dave Vogelpo, secretary-treasurer of the group, explained the legal position of the Associated Students Inc. case against the university in behalf of the GNU.

Recognition of the GNU as a campus club was denied by Superior Court Judge Richard Harris on March 8. Harris upheld the university's rejection of the group's bylaws on the grounds that the membership and voting rights clauses discriminated against heterosexuals, denying them full membership rights in the club.

Student Affairs Council, the Gay Student Union, and the ACLU has voted to continue the case in the appellate courts hoping to gain a reversal of Harris's decision. When asked to justify the use of GNU funds for further appeals, Christensen said that the ACLU had been told that there was a good chance of winning the case in the appellate courts, in the event that the decision is overruled, the ACLU would regain $3,000 of its expenses, which have run up approximately $8,000 to date.

Christensen said that the disputed clauses in the bylaws would have been omitted in the beginning, had the GNU anticipated the problems. The clauses giving only associate membership to homosexuals were included out of fear, the former GNU president said.

Had RAC not voted in favor of continuing with the suit, the American Civil Liberties Union would have appealed the case with financial backing from the GNU.

Opening the program to telephone calls from listeners, Ruegnits fielded the questions, which ranged from various inquiries about homosexuality to comments for and against the GNU effort.

Archie prof will present art etchings to students

When Ronald Morgan says “Come up and see my etchings” he is not issuing the usual invitation favored by gentlemen of an earlier period.

Morgan, a member of the architecture faculty, will be discussing his art work during a presentation entitled “Graphic Processes As Creative Exercises,” scheduled for Thursday in Union 309 at 11 a.m.

In addition to his experience as an instructor, Morgan has done extensive work in design for firms in Philadelphia and San Francisco, as well as presenting several one-man shows of his works at University of California at Berkeley and other places in the Bay Area.

This is an architect’s model of the proposed architecture classroom and lab building. It is scheduled to be built on the land the old Ag Ed building stands on.

()chitects, and tearing down Ag Ed to build a new building is wasteful and does not coincide with that training,” said Bette.

“Ag Ed has functioned in the past, is functioning now practically 24 hours a day, and is considered by all members of this committee as the best lab in which they have worked at Cal Poly,” said Reid.

The committee is circulating petitions, displaying signs and posters, writing letters to government officials at all levels, soliciting support from many groups including the Alumni Association, and publicizing their campaign.

Both spokesmen said that their lab’s Poly Royal activities will be focused on saving the building. “We are having a Band and Paint-in at 10 a.m. this Saturday in Ag Ed, and everyone is invited to stop in and see what we are doing to save the building,” said Reid.

Football rebuilds team

by KEITH ELDREDGE

The Saturday morning sky was clear and the temperatures would nudge the 80's by mid-morning. Before the morning passed away, a never ending cycle would begin to repeat itself.

When Mustang head coach Joe Harper talks, everybody listens. The team is shown during first day of spring practice with Yokemite Hall in the background.

The pentrating sound of cleats could be heard making their way to the track field adjacent to the Men's Gym. Shoulder pads were being tightened and scuffed green helmets were making their acquaintances with odd-shaped heads.

The official start of the college football season comes in the fall, but preparations formally began Saturday, April 7 with the initiation of spring practice.

The spring sports (baseball, track, tennis, etc.) will receive all of the attention, but the gridiron heroes will tell with the necessities that go into making a well-tailored team...maybe another Camella Bowl team.

But, to return to the Camella Bowl head Mustang coach Joe Harper must do some major reconstructing. The entire defensive front line and three more defensive positions must be filled as well as six offensive spots.

Harper, in his sixth season as top mentor, is equipped with the he has had during i, even though the
