Bicycle riders will be cited for moving violations, specifically running stop signs without stopping at right angles, according to campus Security Chief George Cochlel of this university's Security Department.

Citations issued by campus security officers must be handled through the County Courthouse. Bicycles are subject to the same rules and fines as drivers of other vehicles according to article 1380 of the California Vehicle Code.

Bicycles ridden at night must have a white light in front and a red reflector on the back. Riders must ride as far to the right and stop at stop signs and stop lights, obey speed limits and yield right of way to pedestrians the same as cars.

There are 1200 bicycles registered at the security department but security officers say no more than half of the bicycles on campus are registered. Bicycles should be registered with the security department to guard against theft, according to Chief Cochlel.

To be eligible, an applicant must have taken prior to their term in office any three of Jill Hayes, and the approval of the President. To become editor, At least on #2 and no more than half of the students, according to Baggett. Robert E. Kennedy, university president, opposes tuition, for public tax-supported institutions of higher education.

"If we are to increase student costs on the assumption that the student benefits more from the educational experience than does the remainder of society, we are making a tragic mistake." "This mistake could lead us eventually into an elitist concept of education which, historically, has prevented many nations from achieving the level of prosperity enjoyed by the citizens of the United States of America," said Dr. Kennedy.

Everett Chandler, dean of students, was the first to sign a petition, and he encouraged the opposition. "Most of the campuses have been opposed to tuition, as long as I can remember. It is my conviction that the state and county should maintain a larger portion of the state higher education system. For one thing, college graduates are obtaining a higher income and pay higher taxes," said Dean Chandler.

Religious "involvement"

The university and student administrations took a solid stand against imposing tuition in the California State University and College system at a press conference here today.

Robin Baggett, ASI president, and Denny Johnson, ASI vice president, ran a campaign attack on any proposed tuition.

Petitions have been started and letters, as well as letters from students, will be sent to state legislators.

Support from local community security officers, local circulation newspapers, college newspapers, and campus radio stations is being solicited.

Intensive research on the voting records of legislators in behalf of all full-time oriented bills will be conducted, and progress in any new legislation will be released to the media and students, according to Baggett.

"It is mandatory that students be kept well informed. We must convince legislators that we know what we are talking about.

"There are no bills currently in the legislature on tuition, but we believe that the C.U.C.T. Committee of 1971 can that. One area is where students would pay tuition on a unit in excess of a part-time course, according to Baggett.

Wives to be honored

In annual 'PHT' rite

"Honor thy wife, and thy shall be so honored," So believes the husband when he receives his degree, and realizes how important his wife has been, be it financially or just in giving moral support and encouragement.

The Student Wives Club of this university has announced the annual "Hall High Through" (PHT) ceremony will take place Sunday June 2, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. in the Auditorium.

All wives whose husbands have graduated in December or March, or will graduate in June or September of this year, are eligible to attend. You need not be a member of the Club.

President Robert E. Kennedy will distribute the special PHT diplomas to the wives. Afterwards there is a reception and there will be entertainment from a local group and refreshments for the event.

The price is $8.50 for the wives and administration free for relatives and friends. All profits from this event are for the Meriter Hambly Fund, which provides financial assistance to those students who are having trouble with their child's medical expenses.

Susan Cassidy, who is on the committee for PHT, believes it a time to honor the wives and to show appreciation for all her efforts in helping their husbands down that rough road towards a degree. Be it financially or morally, the wives deserve the recognition.

Wives, faculty Wives and Mechanical Engineering Wives Clubs will assist in the preparation of the event.

For further information and an application letter, call Cassidy at 934-1050 after 5:00 p.m.

Chamber News

publication will inform public

In an effort to expand their role in the community, the San Luis Obispo Chamber of Commerce has initiated this monthly publication.

The Chamber News, edited by former KSBY-TV newswoman David Garth will inform the public of current community issues. Also included will be articles on business, civic, and chamber news. This is the first city organisation to put out a publication that is not restricted to members only.

According to Garth, the publication will be the chamber of commerce achieve its goal, that of helping to maintain a healthy, prosperous economy in this community.

Copies of the publication may be obtained at the chamber of commerce office located at 1000 Chorro. Members will be mailed their copy.

Students need materials to build booth

The Vietnamese students on this campus have asked for help in acquiring building materials for their booth at Poly Royal.

And students should have asked for students, faculty or people from the community to assist them. Specifically, they need wood, hardware, paint, and other miscellaneous things.

The best source for obtaining these materials is the local phone book. The Chamber News will be happy to help get the necessary materials for the student booths.

The Chamber News can be contacted at 934-3102, 934-6713 (ext. 601) or 934-7753.
Representatives from eight student radio stations, including this university's station KCPR, met here Saturday to discuss the possibility of forming a West Coast collegiate radio organization.

In March, KCPR General Manager Steve Ruegula and station advisor Ed Zucholli sent conference invitations on behalf of the station and the journalism department, to 38 university fm and current carrier radio stations. Unlike the air frequencies transmitted by antennas of fm stations, current carrier signals are sent through cables to specified buildings with receivers to monitor their programs.

After registration, the 40 representatives held a general meeting to discuss the current problems faced by student stations and the potential need for establishing a radio organization.

Jim Irvin, director of broadcasting at KUOP, Stockton, sighed the main problem faced by student stations to be public and national agency neglect of the small stations' worth and needs. He described this neglect as an "unfortunate product of the creation of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB) in 1967."

The government established this agency to distribute federal money to the 80 non-commercial stations in the United States. Given a limited budget, CPB had to set up stringent criteria to limit its contributions to stations with 800 or more watts of power, at least two production rooms, 54 hours a week air time and three professional full time broadcasters on their staffs.

This criterion eliminates most university and high school stations in the nation.

"The agency feels the power is too low, the personnel turnover too rapid and the program inconsistency of our student stations inadequate to serve a substantial audience. The establishment of a student radio organization could prove them wrong," Irvin said.

All representatives agreed the combination of 80 student stations could serve a two-fold purpose. The organization would first serve its members by providing opportunities for representatives to discuss their stations problems with others who have shared the same experiences.

Secondly, the organization would bring the needs of all student stations to national attention. A majority of student stations were subject of speech and judgement in science.

A Physics Ph.D., of well qualified authority will speak on "Structure and Judgement in Science," today at 11 a.m. in Science EIM. Dr. William T. Scott, is a professor of Physics and director of the Interdisciplinary Program in Philosophy of Scientific Inquiry at the University of Nevada-Reno.

Scott's research has generated publications in the emerging specialty of atmospheric physics. He is also doing work in the developing fields of electromagnetic theory, quantum mechanics and relativity.

Scott, along with being well known in the publications of his works, teaches in both the Physics Department and in the Center for Religion and Life at the Reno Campus. He has also received the Peace Prize from his institution in physics.

Senior's Week

Seniors planning to graduate in June are urged to meet with a counselor in the Evaluations Office, Administration 218, to help prepare for a successful exit.

"With graduation only eight weeks away, it's crucial that seniors to purchase a Senior Week Activities Card, which serves as a pass to a variety of different activities during the week of June 8-14. "For $9.50, a senior can attend the annual steak barbecue, senior brunch and senior ball," said Bennett. The fee also covers the expenses of the traditional tree-planting ceremony and senior class gift. The card may be purchased at the Cashier's Office, University Union 212.

Bennett also noted that applications for graduation must be turned in by April 28. Applications for graduation must be turned in by April 28.

The Tigers Tumble

UOP killed in baseball

Sparked by clutch hits by outfielder Dave Fowler and first baseman Ted Bailey in the second game, the Mustang baseball team swept two games from the University of Pacific Monday and Tuesday.

The Mustangs, who now have a 2-4 record, took the first game on Monday 1-0 and won a squeaker in the second game on Tuesday 8-7, in 11 innings.

In the first game the Mustangs were tied with UOP for five innings before they broke the game open with two runs in the sixth frame.

Shortstop Gary Knuckles started the winning rally as he lined a single to left. Doug Forgels followed with a run in the ninth inning and forged ahead with a run in the tenth inning.

Second baseman Oliver started the eleventh inning Mustang heroes off with a walk. He stole second and took third on the overthrow by the catcher. Bailey followed with his second clutch hit of the game to score Oliver and give the Mustangs the win.

Freshman pitcher Steve Fulginiti picked up his first win.
