The recommendation of the 1975-76 All budget was presented to the Student Affairs Council last week.

The recommended 1975-76 All budget was presented to the Student Affairs Council last week.

The budget for the Accounting Office for this university, applications to work for the Accounting Office at Summer Quarter and subsequent quarterly reports were all taken Friday, May 11. Only the first two hundred applications were accepted. If you are interested in applying, report at the Auditors window, 1818 Administration Building, May 11 after 8:00 a.m.

Visitors to last weekend's Poly Royal participated in an extravaganza of exhibits, demonstrations and gastronomic delights. In spite of the elaborately prepared way of festivities, approximately 1,000 members and some folks had more fun in the archie patio pond. Approximately 48,000 cars made their way onto campus during the two-day festivities. For listings of the winners in various exhibit categories see Mustang Daily throughout this week.

Watergate swamps sides

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The crisis tide of the Watergate scandal Monday swamped aides from office Attorney General Richard D. Kleindienst and three of President Nixon's White House aides - R.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John W. Dean III. The President's announcement announcing he had fired Dean and accepted the resignations of the other three was read at the White House while Nixon remained in isolation at his Camp David retreat in the Maryland mountains, where he had been deciding how to cope with the crisis.

He scheduled a 5 p.m. EDT nationwide radio and television address to report to the people on the ramifications of the building last day of Democratic National Committee headquarters - a

Design trophy for landscaping

Winning a trophy in landscape design requires patience, planning, and detailed work. This competition did not fall through students, John Mendosa, Martin Hartman, and Larry Mendenhall as they won the Morgan Hill to a place known as Green Arrow Nursery.

To get the end for the green area, the group decided to put on a display at Morgan Hill to a place known as Green Arrow Nursery.

The classic Soviet film "Potemkin" will be shown free of charge at the annual university community tonight at 7:30 in Santa Barbara. The film was produced by Sergei M. Eisenstein with a commission from the Soviet Government. Although Eisenstein had already received recognition in his art, "Potemkin" elevated him to his highest position as Russia's greatest film maker.

When he began work on "Potemkin", Eisenstein encountered several key incidents in the nation-wide uprisings of 1905. This concept changed when Eisenstein went to Odessa to include a segment in his motion picture of the famous revolt of the sailors aboard the battleship Potemkin. When the sailors rebelled, Eisenstein was convinced that here was the heart of the entire film. These steps, upon which the film's events were methodically shot down hundreds of miles of Russian roads with the rebel soldiers, became Eisenstein's symbol for the entire Russian revolution.

Students and faculty are encouraged to attend the History Department's potemkin film "Potemkin" film slated tonight.

EOP faces same fund cuts as others

Student Affairs Council will step into the annual quagmire Wednesday night when they schedule budget hearings for groups who feel they've been slighted.

With requests for ASI money, totaling $123,000 more than will be available next year, Finance Committee and Student Executive Cabinet have slashed, balanced and trimmed requests into a neat package that seems unlikely to please many groups. In the forefront of the protestors are the Educational Opportunity Program proponents.

The EOP budget battle promises to stretch into hours of accusations and counter-accusations of racist attitudes. SAC will undoubtedly be told that they are too white and middle class to understand the necessity of EOP.

Temper will flare as EOP students relate head-luck stories and question values that place funding football above funding deprived students. All in all, what will end up being discussed is the worth of EOP.

But the worth of EOP is not at question. Few would argue that the program has no value, or that it does not fill a socially-desirable function. What should be argued when the EOP budget comes up for discussion is whether or not ASI should be financially supporting the program.

ASI is designed to create services and activities for students. Not to provide loans or scholarships for a few at the expense of all. Almost every ASI-budgeted group could not exist without its annual stipend, and most have had to reduce programs in recent years as the money situation tightened.

EOP, on the other hand, gets the majority of its support from the state and has been expanding every year. In its budget request, the EOP office said 300 students are expected in next year's program, in addition to the 450 students currently enrolled.

The program has requested $30,000, the majority of which will go to 460 grants for 60 students. Six thousand dollars is budgeted for a tutoring program, orientation and a student assistant.

It would be impossible for SAC to cut the EOP allocation entirely from the budget—ASI support for the past three years is an obligation that at best could be phased out slowly.

But the amount should be trimmed to $10,000—enough to pay administrative costs and grants for 10 students—to reflect the fact that ASI cannot support a growing Educational Opportunity Program created by a state much more able to handle subsidization of students.

Don't change your summer plans

If you're going to spend a lot of this coming summer around the water—sailing and swimming—you'll want the protection of Tampax tampons.

Girls have frequently wondered about swimming during those difficult days. Old-fashioned napkins make swimming impossible, but with Tampax tampons the message has always been: 'Go ahead and swim.' You're dependably protected internally. And you never have to worry about anything showing under swimsuit because internal protection is invisible protection.

So don't change your summer plans just because your period might interfere. Tampax tampons let you sail, swim, water ski, sunbath—just like any other day of the month.

Habituated observer doesn't understand lingo

Letters to the Editor:

Regarding Mr. Fowler's letter of April 3rd it is intuitively obvious to even the most habituated observer of the current borborygmic social scene that some members of this philosophically credentialed academic did not quite fully linguistically comprehend the monumental importance of his statements.

Mr. Fowler finds himself seriously aggrieved at the exasperating peculiarity of intellectual insight displayed in the rebuttals of several students to his ob- servant. Almost every ASI-budgeted group could not exist without its annual stipend, and most have had to reduce programs in recent years as the money situation tightened.

The Mustangs jumped out to a quick 5-0 lead when Marple led off the game with a single. Radican sacrificed him to second, and Oliver brought him home on a single. Oliver was out trying to stretch his single into a double but Pete Phillips followed with another single. Phillips advanced to second on a pass ball and scored on a single by Larry Rivera.
