Poly Royal gas supplies may hold out, with luck

by DENNIS MCKILLAN

Efforts to ease the problem of a limited supply of gasoline for Poly Royal weekend are being made throughout San Luis Obispo.

An estimated 60,000 visitors are expected to attend Poly Royal this Friday and Saturday. David Garth, San Luis Obispo Chamber of Commerce director, predicts that if certain precautions are taken, the weekend will not be a disaster for motorists.

Garth said Monday that although there is a problem, indications say it won't be a disaster. He said most of the cars coming to Poly Royal will be from local areas. He estimated that 10,000 to 15,000 cars will come from outside the county.

He added that some gas stations in San Luis Obispo have saved gas for Poly Royal weekend and a number of distributors will provide additional gasoline for the weekend visitors.

Garth said cooperation from the stations hasn't been unanimous, however. He said 10 out of 60 San Luis Obispo stations would remain open.

Another problem which may arise, he said, may be with visitors from areas such as Los Angeles, where the gasoline crunch has eased and who may not exercise caution.

"Visitors should try and get gas outside the county," Garth stressed. "If a great number of people do that it won't be a problem."

The Poly Royal Board is advising students to tell their friends and relatives to take the following precautions:

-"Tell them to fill up their tanks before entering San Luis Obispo County.
-"Visit Poly Royal and leave sight-seeing along the coast for a later trip to San Luis Obispo.
-"Use the Poly Royal and leave leave cars parked and use the city bus system.

Alioto's pot stand attacked

Editor:

Students were treated to an emotional outburst last week when San Francisco's mayor, Joe Alioto, eventually showed up on campus to shed some light on the great issue of pot.

Expediency in political campaigning proved to be the downfall when the mayor informed us amazingly enough without creating a smile on his main-like face, that he believed reports that marijuana usage among students is a major reason in making who dared to include it in this evil weed. Really, Mr. Mayor, how stupid do you really think the students are? Could it be that the political mayor is catering to the 80 percent of the electorate who voted against removal of marijuana possession from the 1976 election? With a candidate like Bob Gifford taking a more realistic and de-criminalizing of marijuana possession as well as supporting other pro-student stands (registration fees at the state university, for example), it occurred to me last Thursday that Joe Alioto has very little to offer the student voter at Cal Poly.

We would like to convey a message to the students and staff of Cal Poly.

Dear Students and Staff of Cal Poly:

We want to thank those that donated their blood for the Annual Blood Drive, held Wednesday, April 17, 1979. We are grateful to those that gave their time helping with the organization of the drive. Every year help is needed during the drive and this year we had an excellent turnout.

The efforts of everyone involved resulted in a successful drawing of 182 pints of blood. Again we thank you.

Poly Royal rodeo

The six-man rodeo team competing in the Poly Royal rodeo include captains Dave Clark, high-point rider; Steve McDonald, Bruce Hunt, KIT Wilson, and Mike McAdams. Alternates are Steve Mitchell.

The women's team consists of Paula Calabrese, Linda Gill and Kathy Edens. Leigh Schneidt and Karen Anderson are the women's alternates.

The rodeo will be held Friday and Saturday, April 8 and 9, at 8 p.m. Men's events include bareback and saddle bronc riding, bull riding, ribbon roping, steer wrestling, calf roping and team roping.

Women's events are goat tying, barrel racing and breakaway. A $10 medal will be awarded in the highest scoring event among all contestants. The winner of each event will receive a gold and silver Poly Royal belt buckle.

Tickets are $6 in advance at the Administration Union Information Desk; $8 at the gate for reserved seats, $6.50 general admission, $1 for Cal Poly students and $1.50 for children 12 and under. Tickets may also be purchased at the gate.

"We can win it," grinned Bottcher.

"You're clicking," added Clark.

Two one-act plays featured this weekend

Two one-act plays - "Lose" and "Alfa De Cole" - will be performed at the Cal Poly Theatre during Poly Royal weekend.

Admission to the two-dramas is one dollar. Performances will begin at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday. There will also be a matinee on Saturday.

Student director Pat Chow says "Lose," written by Israel Horovitz, is a sophisticated modern drama and "Alfa De Cole" by Edna St. Vincent Millay is an anti-war play written toward the end of World War I.

SAC to discuss housing...

Holley said that if the program were to start in 1976, money would have to be available for a number of programs other than the state. Holley proposed that the program be linked with the Administration to get the program off the ground. According to Scott, Patlin, representative from architecture and environmental design, who asked that the item be postponed last week, the Administration should totally fund the program.

He said that SAC should at least look into the possibilities of SSA Administration funding.

"The matter should be looked at more closely, at least in my mind," he said.

In other scheduled elections, the Student Affairs Council will consider the new budget to use in the past and make recommendations to the Student Affairs Council on the matter.

The new budget will be formally approved by the Staff Senate. SAC will then receive 1974-75 student recommendations tonight from the Student Executive Cabinet. SAC will consider BAC's recommendations along with the recommendations from Finance Committees in making its final budget determination.

Although budget recommendations will be formally accepted by SAC tonight, no action or discussion on the matter is expected.

The 1975-76 AAB budget is the first budget in use in the new priority budget system in order to allocate money to funded groups.

The Student Affairs Council will meet at 7:15 p.m. in Room 230 of the University Union.

Don't horde gas

Families and friends visiting students during Poly Royal are going to find the gas shortage alive and well in San Luis Obispo. Involved officials have asked students not to make large purchases immediately before Poly Royal to preserve the limited supply available for visitors who must drive long distances home. In order to ease this surge cut again after the horde demands, please comply with that request.

Women pow-wow in center...

They include grandmothers, mothers with young children, and some who have never changed diapers. Their common ground is a concern for the women in the county and a willingness to help each other understand their work as individuals.

A spokesperson for the center commented, "Because of this diversity, discussion is lively and exciting. We basically agree on one principal point—we need a place especially for women; and that makes us need the help, the involvement, of all women. We need every woman's ideas. We need to know what each one thinks is important."

The next general meeting at the women's resource center is open to all women and will be held Monday, April 29, at 7 p.m. upstairs at the center.
