Biggest budget passed
$635,802 allotted
by JOE SANCHEZ
The largest budget in All-Scholarship history, $635,802 for the 1974-75 school year, was approved Wednesday night by the Student Affairs Council.
The council approved the budget to include $15,000 for the Student Union and $101,000 for the education, California Polytechnic State University, the California Polytechnic State University, and the Calfiornia Polytechnic State University.
The first budget to utilize the newly adopted priority budgeting system, the 1974-75 budget was approved in only three out of 10 budget meetings. The first budget to utilize the newly adopted priority budgeting system, the 1974-75 budget was approved in only three out of 10 budget meetings.

As expected, SAC devoted the Wednesday night budget hearing to cutting approximately $165,000 from the budget to bring it back into balance.

Although rumors had abounded that the Educational Opportunity Program (EOP) would be severely cut to make-up the Student Union, those rumors were put to rest by a recommendation made by Alex Long, representative for Agriculture and Natural Resources Management, followed by a vote of 9-1-1.

After the attemptive to override the Halley vote, the motion to cut all EOP subsidized groups one-year semi-passed in second reading. Chairmen of Committees election Rich Patin reported that the initiative petition presented last Wednesday to SAC was defeated. The limited SAC budget allocations to athletics to $10 per student was void.

Halley and Cross reported that the budget he brought back into balance by eliminating $300,000 in contingency funds and by cutting all groups which receive EOP subsidies by one per cent.

To back-up their proposal, Halley exercised his professional and a SAC amendment to increase the contingency fund by $200,000 and a motion to override the vote, made by Alex Long, representative for Agriculture and Natural Resources Management, followed by a vote of 9-1-1.

Plotkin seeks ideas, change, to end apathy

Hurtado feels in government from election

by LEI CURRIE

"I'm one of those strange people who has a committment to public service all my life," Bob Plotkin said.

The son of an Air Force major, Plotkin spent his childhood traveling around the country. He is currently a Junior Political Science and Regional Planning major because he was looking for a college with a reputation he could afford.

Plotkin has been involved since high school, where he was Student Body Vice-President and President.

When he came to Poly he felt like any new student-that the school was a big place and he didn't want to get lost in it. He entered studyabrication, government in March 1973 when he was appointed by the Student Senate Vice-President and President.

Through his position on the Board of Governers he was brought into various positions related with students and the administration, including the Student Senate Committee and the Board of Governors.

Last year, he ran for AIF President and lost. He feels that he was too inexperienced and too unknown, "I did want it, I was young," he said, "I just learned more and more.

In looking at Poly, Plotkin feels that the people are what makes the school a success. "Everyone is very friendly," he said.

However, he dislike the divisions that exist between the

Gable's mentor to host film

by DENNIS MCELLAN

When Adele Rogers-St. John first glimpsed Clark Gable in one of his early films, she knew immediately she had found the right star for a title role in "A Free Soul."

"A Free Soul," based on Mr. St. John's novel, was the legal opinion that marahed the beginning of a life-long friendship between her and the future "King of the Movies."

At 7:10 Saturday night in the Cal Poly Theatre, Mrs. St. Johns will introduce and show "A Free Soul." Afterward she will discuss the movie and her old friend Clark Gable.

The program, sponsored by the School of Community and Human Services, is the final event in the two-week long music festival. Admission is $1.00 and the public is invited.

"A Free Soul" is the story of a free-minded girl (Sharon Gable), who is brought up by her drilling lawyer father (Lionel Barrymore). The girl falls in love with an underworld gambler (Clark Gable) despite her father's objections. Gable is seen as one of the greatest screen legends of Hollywood's first 50 years.

Bob Moretti merits job as new governor

Editor:

While Jerry Brown proclaims his virtues, Speaker Moretti sets out to reduce property taxes. While Assembly Speaker Proposition 1, Brown's wealthy man's tax relief bill, Moretti goes to the people and tells it. While former Gov. Brown is out getting money for Junior, Moretti is out getting money for handicapped children. We need a man who has proved his ability to be, governor. Moretti's the man and he's proved it.

Campus police 'here to help'

Editor:

In response to the letters of Allia Vandenberg and Wayne Wrench of May 15 and 19, the University police is an organization on campus that is here to help people in need as well as to protect the student body and campus from irresponsible lawbreakers.

The incident of the student who had the epileptic seizure is common. The usual elapsed time between the time the Security Office was notified and the time the officer was back in regular service was 10 minutes, not as Allia said. This can be verified by the official radio log.

Also, a student got sick on her way to a chemistry experiment that went awry and was received in the Health Center within six minutes of the initial call. The Security Office is helping people all the time but often ends up playing nursemaid instead of dealing with mature people.

The priorities that officers are to follow are clear: first protect life and limb, then property: then enforce laws, in that order. The officers at this university give a damn and bend over backwards to give students a fair break but with some of the immature, narrow-minded students we have to contend with it becomes difficult.

Before someone jumps to prejudiced conclusions, they should look at the whole factual picture and not just bitch because they don't know how to do anything else.

Closure criticized

Editor:

With all the other "official institutions" falling around my ears, the last real bastion of faith and certanity has finally bitten the dust. Cal Poly is not a university, but another stale college system.

Who's decision was it to close the library, or the fact that the students and the UPC to organize a boycott of / ? Before someone jumps to prejudiced conclusions, they should look at the whole factual picture and not just bitch because they don't know how to do anything else.

Student urges boycott of Reagan talk

Editor:

Are we budding intellectuals so easily impressed that we're willing to let any "big name" speak at our commencement without matter what his philosophy?

The fact is, we all, un-thinking ly invited Reagan to speak, not as a speech writer, but as a man who has been involved in regressive legislation. If this administration is to cut off college funds, special education funds, and welfare funds, we must stand up.

I'm not sure which makes me sicker: the fact that he was asked to speak here, or the fact that he accepted. I would like to see some amount of conscience demonstrated on this campus when he comes. I urge the students and the UPC to organise and boycott this insult to our intellectual endeavors and to our college system.

Hotline needs places to crash

When the night is cold and the cash is low, a weary traveler through the San Luis Obispo area needs worry about a place to stay. All he has to do is arrange up a daze and call Hotline.

The San Luis Obispo County Hotline provides instant information about the draft, abortion and birth control, and even helps to put the cold and tired under a roof.

"We get a lot of calls from people traveling through the area who need a place to stay," said Hotline volunteer John Barrett. "We keep a list of places on file where they can stay for the night.

These "crash pads" are approved by the Hotline staff, and the traveler is need of a place to stay is matched with a room, a couch or a sleeping bag on the floor.

But Hotline is in trouble. There aren't enough crash pads to go around.

"We need more places on file," said Barrett. "To volunteer your place for a crash pad, just call Hotline and tell us what facilities you have to offer and how many people you can handle.

The crash pad program is four years old, and has been a useful service to both travelers and community residents in need of a place to stay for a few days until their home situation has improved.

Bicycle rally scheduled for

A Great Western Bicycle Rally—including rides, a hill climb, a bike rodeo and a banquet—will be held this weekend in San Luis Obispo.

Sponsored by the Los Angeles Wheelmen, the rally will begin with registration today at the Department of Parks and Recreation and will continue through Monday, May 9.

Activities include 12, 30 and 60 mile bike rides, and a 12 mile ride from San Luis Obispo to the lighthouse in Pismo Beach to San Simeon. A bike rodeo will be held Saturday from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. in Santa Rosa Park. In addition, a hill climb is scheduled for 10 a.m. in Buena Vista Park. A box lunch picnic is also planned there from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.

An informal banquet at 8 p.m. Sunday night in Chumash Auditorium will top off the weekend's activities.

Further information may be obtained by calling the local chairman of the rally, Larry Saxon, at 544-M1S.

Film festival to show final flock of series

The classic motion picture "A Free Soul" will be presented Saturday, May 16, as the final program of the campus film festival.

Starring Lionel Barrymore, Norma Shearer and featuring Clark Gable in his first movie role, the film will be presented at 7:10 p.m. in the Cal Poly Theater. Admission will be free.

The program will also include an introduction and critique by Adela Rogers St. Johns, who wrote the original screen play for the film.

"A Free Soul" is described by critics as the fictionalized biography of Mrs. St. Johns and her father, famed trial lawyer Earl Rogers.

Rogers was known as an innovator in trial procedures and was once described by author Erle Stanley Gardner as "the prototype of Perry Mason, hero of my many detective novels.

Mrs. St. Johns, who has lived in San Luis Obispo county since time to time over the past five years, wrote numerous screen plays and was a syndicated reporter for the Hearst newspapers. She is also the author of a number of best-selling books.
PINBALL TOURNAMENT

All contestants competed on one of three pinball machines in the games area of the University Union.

RAT, which stands for recreation and tournaments, was responsible for the recent pinball tournament in the U.U. games area Tuesday. This event, which seemed fairly popular by the amount of people that turned out, was one in a series that Rat sponsor during the year. John Olson, also known as J.W. Rat, seemed to have things fairly well under control during the entire contest. The lucky winners were: Richard Scotty with $88.40 total prizes and in second place, Greg Nolo, with a total of $66.00. The first place prize was $88.00, and the second prize was $66.00, both of which make the contest well worth it.
Bowie back with a new single

by BLAIR HEELING

It looks as if David Bowie, without a demo tape for us all to identify with this year, until the American release next month of "Rebel, Rebel" (RCA), the latest from David Bowie (who has chosen to be known only by his last name since rising from retirement).

From the album Diamond Dogs, out this week, this week's hottest single was released by RCA in this country as a result of promotion, a social document on radio stations across the country that were already playing the imported single. Unfortunately, U.S. copies are edited almost in half and the song's been filled with engineering gimmicks, but it's still worth calling your favorite radio station to request.

Also out on RCA is the new Kinks single, “Money Talks,” which rocks heavier than anything they've done in a while and gives good signs for the also newly-released Preservation.

Hurtado puts students first...

Hurtado was named dean of students in a sign of changing attitudes and he realizes that he is in a critical position, on the same level as other administrators.

He feels the only way to get students to start caring is by making the campus more attractive to them. Although he says he's been talking to students and others, he feels that the only way to change things is to get students involved. He also says that students are more concerned about their own lives than about the university.

The Semas girls

Sisters three, they all rope for Cal Poly

by Bob Cox

Collaen, Kathy and Leigh Semas are bit different than the norm you would normally expect to find at a California university. You would never know it by looking at them.

They're of medium height and build, very pretty and have that deep rich tan that comes from spending lots of time outdoors. Casually, yet tastefully dressed, they exude an air of relaxation and confidence.

In short, they're attractive enough to make any campus male break his neck trying to snap around for a second look. Looks, however, can be deceiving.

There's a lot more to these girls than just sugar and spice. Under the decidedly feminine appearance of each one lies a tough customer once in the roping arena.

The Semas sisters are, all intents and purposes, the women's rodeo team at Cal Poly. At any one time they are sure to compose at least two-thirds of the three-woman team.

Collaen, who is just finishing her final year of collegiate eligibility, is the team captain. Freshman Leigh has been the third active member of the team steady, while Kathy, a sophomore, has been the alternate.

It seems natural that with this background the Semas should come to Cal Poly in order to rope. But it didn't start out that way in the beginning.

Collaen, 3, an Ag Business major, was more interested in showing cattle. But when she got here her friends were trying out for the team, so she got involved too. That set the precedent for her younger sisters.

Kathy, 2, also majoring in ABM, summed up the reason she and Leigh came to Poly.

"Cal Poly was the best rodeo school, they were the champions and that's where I wanted to go."

The most talented one of the sisters could be 10-year-old Leigh, who wants to be a vet. Still Gibirrof the former team advisor said:

"That Leigh could be a team all on her own... (continued on page D)"

Hurdler 3rd in nationals, softball team finishes year

Cal Poly sophomore Janet Sauterd finished in a third place heat at the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women track championship this spring.

Mila Steward competed in the 440 meter hurdles. Her time of 58.7 was just one-tenth of a second slower than the second place finisher.

Meanwhile, the winner set a new national mark by reaching the tape in 13.9 seconds, a time that eclipsed the old mark by a thousandth of a second.

According to women's track coach Ernie Pelicans, Miss Steward might have placed in the 330 yard dash too but a chill injury slowed her at the finish. The women's 440 yard relay team also competed at the meet in Houston, Texas. A foul-up in the tape killed the women's chances of placing.

The women's softball team ended their season on a down note in Santa Barbara.

After walloping the Santa Barbara City College nine by a score of 18-0, the women stumbled away a constant to the University of California Santa Barbara, 13-4. Against CBC the Mustangs scored by as much as five runs in the early going but a slow run by Peggy Green sparked a Cal Poly consistent rally. The right defensive play of shortstop Jo Prendergast and left fielder Pamela Lopez held Santa Barbara to only a run in the final inning.

Cowgirls

Shaney and Daily Bomen, the parents of the cowgirls, are ranchers in Auburn, California. On a ranch everybody helps with the work, including the womenfolk. And with only one man in the family, as in this case, the women have to become proficient at chores the men might normally do, like roping. Mrs. Bomen was an outstanding roper in her own right, even before marriage and children. Good enough in fact to beat men in competitions.

Colleen said, "Our mother was the kind of person who, if she could do something, was going to do it, and it didn't matter what sex she was."

A pro-women's libber right?" Nope, says Colleen.

"It wasn't really women's lib, but Mom was good enough to win ropings on she roped. If she beat the man, fine, but she didn't think of it as a man and a woman."

With an arena on the ranch at home the girls grew up roping. Kathy's inclination to alternate by her younger sister doesn't seem to have created any hard feelings.

"It bothers me I guess, and it makes me try harder," said Kathy. "But when you want to alternate you have a chance of making it and Kathy says she's different about it just because it's Leah."

The girls are unanimous in their opinion that what they're doing is no formations. It doesn't have anything to do with women's lib. They are members of the team. They make a team."

"You can be champions about it. I mean there's a limit to how far a team can go.

"Roping is a lot like a rodeo, it's a family business."

The girls are alike in many ways, yet each seems to have her own peculiarities.

Colleen, maybe as a result of her added maturity, seems to be the most easy going and most disengaged of the trio. Leah has a mercurial air about her, which could also be partly attributable to age.

Kathy seems to be the most gung ho, closest to rodeoing. The Daily declares her training is continuing roping in the future. She's even given some thought to riding bulls in the professional women's rodeo, a dangerous undertaking.

"Linda Gill and I were going to try it we rode some bulls at Lee Reesor's. We'd get knobby on my head a couple of times and decided that I wouldn't do that to my body any more."

Pretty, bright, talented and witty, the Bomen sisters are interesting young ladies.

As is evidenced by the fact that the most recent Westward Bound, a movie and television series, it doesn't have anything to do with women's lib.
