Thulin Selected Dean of the College of Agriculture, Food & Environmental Sciences

Andrew Thulin has been appointed dean of the College of Agriculture, Food & Environmental Sciences. He has served as interim dean of the college since July 2013. Prior to that, he led the Animal Science Department for 15 years. Thulin earned a bachelor's degree from Cal Poly in 1977 and master's and doctorate degrees from Kansas State University. Student Successes

Cal Poly biological sciences senior George Brusch was awarded a National Science Foundation (NSF) graduate research fellowship, which will fund three years of his doctoral work at Arizona State University beginning in fall 2014. The fellowship program supports outstanding graduate students pursuing research-based degrees in science, technology, engineering and mathematics. A first-generation college student, Brusch entered Cal Poly in 2003. Emotionally and financially unprepared, he dropped out after two years. Seven years later, he re-enrolled with new resolve and never looked back, earning a spot on the Dean's List seven of the last eight quarters. The NSF fellowship is often awarded to students who have already completed one or two years of graduate school, but since returning to Cal Poly, Brusch has focused on research at a level that's unusual for an undergraduate, even for Cal Poly undergrads. Campus Announcements

Enhancements to Workstation Security and Productivity in Process

Work is underway to enhance campus workstation security and workplace productivity. The effort started earlier this quarter and will continue through October. ITS and the campus IT community are coordinating the configuration of workstations into the new Active Directory infrastructure and will be working to make the transition as smooth as possible. Once a workstation has been included in the new AD, departments can take advantage of secure transmission of files between workstations and file servers, regular software updates, and self-service "click-and-install" access to many campus software packages, including Adobe Creative Cloud and Microsoft Office. Employees new to a department will automatically be added to permission groups once their employment is reflected in the Human Resources system. This will allow new personnel to access appropriate workplace resources like file server folders and printers without any additional manual configuration. For more information, contact the AD Migration Team at ad-migrations@calpoly.edu.

Student Ensemble to Stage "RSVP XIX: 'Vox Balaena'" Concert June 5

The Cal Poly Music Department student production ensemble RSVP will stage "RSVP XIX: 'Vox Balaena'" at 8 p.m. Thursday, June 5, in the Performing Arts Center Pavilion. This marks the 19th season of this transmedia series celebrating electroacoustic diversity and compositional risk. Transmedia refers to storytelling in the digital age, weaving together separate plot threads by way of traditional and new media outlets. Inspired by the great life, plight, size and songs of humpback whales, the production takes the audience on a visual, sonic, introspective tour of these mammals and humankind's relationship to them. The show exhibits a wide variety of musical styles and also includes dance, voice recordings, photos and video. Much of the background material came from some of the world's foremost whale researchers. "The production is in four movements: the first taking a historical view of whales, the second speculating a view from the whales' perspective, the third addressing the horrors of whaling, and the fourth suggesting a future relationship of humankind with other citizens of the planet," said Antonio Barata, RSVP artistic director.

The concert will open with Tchaikovsky's overture-fantasy "Romeo and Juliet," a musical portrayal of Shakespeare's drama of the same name. While the music does not follow the exact sequence of events found in Shakespeare's play, it depicts Friar Lawrence with a religious chant in the woodwinds, Romeo's declaration of love with a soaring melody, and the duel between the Montagues and Capulets with aggressive gestures. It responds to the lovers' tragic death with a final lament. For more information, call the Music Department at ext. 6-2406.
