Another ASI run-off needed

Still no majority in presidential vote, Bishop is new veep

by PETE KING and MARK LOOKER

The 1976 presidential race, with all the usual tension, trauma and outbursts of temper, is still very much undecided.

Once again, student voters have failed to give either of the presidential candidates a majority of the ballots cast so as to win an ASI election. Mike Hurtado, however, was elected as the new ASI vice-president.

In the presidential balloting, Rob Chappell secured 4002 votes to Mike Hurtado's 3775. Some 169 write-in votes, however, kept the candidates from achieving a majority.

With the race still undecided, a second run-off will be held next week. There has been speculation that a write-in blank will not be provided on the ballot for this vote. This would almost assure a winner as only an exact tie would send the election into yet another run-off.

Typical of the trends seen so far in the election, after the results were announced Thursday evening, talk centered around accusations of political wrongdoings.

Hurtado said that he was not surprised with the result of the election. He was not looking forward to another week of dealing with what he called "Watergate tactics."

Chappell said that he expected to win the election outright. He blamed the Mustang Daily for "fooling the general public with biased reporting and editorial policy."

With all the claims of unfair tactics already on the line, the presence of still another election flap was not welcomed by ASI election administrators.

According to Election Committee advisor Bob Walters, the amount of ballots cast does not match up with the number of students who registered to vote. There were 4910 votes counted, but there were only 4637 students who signed their names on the closly watched lists at all the ballot booths. In order for a vote to be valid, a student must sign his name to the list.

The discrepancy between these two figures immediately squirmed allegations of ballot stuffing.

Walters, however, said that there is usually about 50 students who for some reason fail to sign their names while voting. While he admitted the figure in this vote was much larger than that norm, he said he wasn't going to make any assumptions whatsoever until he had a chance to recount the signatures.

For vice-presidential election Bishop, there naturally was the joy of winning. He said he was surprised by the margin with which he won - 2950 votes to Roland Hills 2171.

Veterans education allowance

Veterans who will be attending classes for Fall Quarter under the G.I. Bill should apply for or confirm their VA education allowances before the end of this quarter.

All veterans who are planning to attend school in the Fall should check with the Veterans Clerk at the Veterans Rep Office before the end of this quarter.

SAC decides tow policy

The Student Affairs Council is still hooked on the low-away policy at this campus.

The council voted overwhelmingly Wednesday night to again endorse this university's policy of towing away vehicles parked illegally in red, parapergic, bus and special parking zones. Cars that impede the flow of traffic are also towed away.

Only two representatives voted not to endorse the policy.

Salvador Monsen and Fred Heron, both from the School of Architecture and Environmental Design, said it was unfair to tow away a student's car just because he was parked illegally in a special zone.

They said cars parked in similar zones downtown are only ticketed and the same policy should be in effect on campus.

The rest of the SAC reps agreed with Joe Tolle, ASI representative to the Traffic Management Committee, who said cars illegally parked in special zones should be towed away because of the hazards and dangers they allegedly cause.

Parked cars People with unpaid parking tickets are advised to pay them before May 19.

When the new computerized ticketing program goes into effect next Monday, people who haven't paid all their previous parking tickets will be mailed a Notice of Intent to Issue Warrant. If the person does not appear in court or the bail is not paid, the license plates may be impounded or other action taken.

The notices are expected to arrive at people's homes within 10 days of the warrant being issued.

People who have not received a notice are advised to pay their debts immediately.

Refugees
Editor:
I am appalled with the concern given by the people of this country to the Vietnamese refugees. For approximately the last twenty years we have been involved in the war fighting for the South Vietnamese. Many thousands of our own men were sacrificed for what has turned out to be a useless cause. Now because of our involvement we are forced to carry the entire population of South Vietnam. I am not trying to justify our involvement or for that matter the war itself for the people probably would have had a better life without our help. Damn it, what is it going to take for the people of this country to open their eyes? There are so many people in this country who are poor and homeless. What are we doing for them? Many of our people are not able to get welfare or any of the other benefits that were created for such people. These Vietnamese refugees are being given the red carpet treatment, why? What will they now be given benefits that so many Americans are not given? Will they turn on us and damn us so that many other foreign people have? What are we doing for the thousands of orphan children in this country? If we cannot first provide for our own American people then we should not welcome others.

I have to question the article appearing on Page 7 of the Wednesday, May 14th edition of the Mustang Daily, concerning the Cal Poly Northridge Swimming Team. On this campus, combining the men's and women's teams with the various clubsports, we have over 30 different types of athletic teams competing with other colleges and universities. Approximately two-thirds of these teams compete at a national level. So my question to the Mustang Daily is, "Why are you going off-campus to other universities in order to cover sports?"
I think the Cal Poly student body is not particularly interested in how GSN swim team did this year, and that the students might be more interested in what our swimming team did. The Cal Poly swimmers finished ninth in the nation. We had seven All-Americans, broke four conference records, and rewrote all but two of our school records. In addition, all of this year's record-seeking will be returning next year. We have at this school a young, powerful, building, national-class team, worthy of the best possible coverage. So why does our newspaper give only cursory coverage to many of our sports programs, not to mention the many agricultural teams, then produce feature articles on our competitions?

Robins
Editor:
While passing between the Journalism and Computer Science buildings, Tuesday morning, May 13, I noticed a pair of robins enjoying the "rites of spring" on the lawn. Unfortunately for the robins, an old man also saw them and proceeded to shoo them away by clapping his hands. I was dumbfounded and said, "Birds aren't allowed huh?" The old man admonished me to, "Grow up." I am 'grown up' to the age of 21 years, the bird-chaser was at least twice that. I was in no way offended by the actions of the robins. I could understand if he were chasing away a pair of elephants, or horses, or even humans, but ROBINS??

Showdown: Trackmen vs. CCAA in finals

The Musung track team could win rights, possibly more, in the California Collegiate Athletic Association track and field championships this weekend.

Bill Coach Steve Simmons rates, defending champion Cal State Northridge "the best to beat" in the competition Friday and Saturday at Mt. San Antonio J. C. track at Walnut.

The Mustangs haven't won more than six events the CCAA meet since 1969 (eight) and 1970 (nine) when they were winning conference championships.

A few stars to watch are Clancy Edwards, the defending champion in the 100, figures to repeat in that event and add the 200 little title. He did not compete in the lorigon race a year ago although that is his best event.

Other Mustang favorites and their best marks are:

Kevin McNamara 5.7 in 440 intermediate hurdles. Jim Schankel 29:29 in 6-mile. Jerry Haagen (16:4) in pole vault, and the mile relay team which logged its best time of the year last weekend at the West Coast Relays, 3:16.0.

Simmons also rates his 440-yard relay team with a season's best of 48.2. Dave Marlow with a 1:54.5 in the 880 and Schankel 5:32.3 in the 8-mile as threats for CCAA titles.

The destruction high hurdles, 440, 100, intermediate hurdles and 200, are slated for Friday. Hammer throw, triple jump, discus and 8-mile finals are scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Along with the semifinals in the mile, 440, 100, 880, intermediate and 200. The final live decathlon events are set for Saturday with the 16 other championship events beginning with field events in the afternoon.

While Northridge is the team to beat it looks like the teams will be much more evenly matched than a year ago," Simmons commented.

The champion Mustangs piled up record 143 points in 1975 while the Mustangs were second with 68. Cal Poly Pomona was third at 61 followed by Cal State Fullerton, now a member of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, with 51, and Cal State Bakersfield and U.C. Riverside tied for fifth with 4 points.

The Mustangs should have place winners in every event except the hammer throw and shot put. We must get a good share of seconds, thirds and fourth as well as win the events where we are favored in order to challenge Northridge," Simmons added.

Musung Junior Ken Haagen, who cleared 168 last week for a lifetime best, poses a threat to the CCAA pole vault record of 19-5 set in 1974 by former Mustang Dave Hamer.

Few records figure to be set.

"The conference meet always helps us prepare for the NCAA meet and this should hold true again this year," said Simmons.

The Mustangs won the mile relay in a CCAA meet record rising time of 3:12.8 and placed second in the 440 relay.

The Mustangs, who have qualified to win the West Coast championship and are one of the last 16 teams, will be out to fight off a determined Fresno State team.

The final standings will take on added importance this year as millions of dollars in scholarship money will go to the winning school and top individuals. Each event can earn scholarships provided by the State CCAA Tourism Committee.

The Mustangs go into the finals with $475 points to $49 for Fresno. The Bulldogs would need to come up with their third highest points total of the year. 96.5 points to tie the Mustangs, since the standings are based on each team's top five performances.

Team advisor Ken Scotto says his team is ready to go: "All the guys are healthy, except for Rosev (Lee), who's out for the year with a knee injury. The guns are really banged up for this one."

Free Moore is entering all six events and he usually only works out. Lou Burgener is entering the steer wrestling, something he usually doesn't do. They'll likely be ahead of any bull they can get one."

John McDonald could be a key for the Mustangs success hopes. The little junior from Lompoc is second in the all-around standings with 816.5 points to 1009 for Fresno's Dudley Little.

McDonald is the leading bullrider in the region and the nation with 495 points. He's won the event at those rodeos. He's also third in bareback riding with 345 points. McDonal has also picked up second in team roping and saddle bronc riding.

Moore is third in all-around standings with 810 points. Bruce Hunt sixth with 585. Moore is second in saddle bronc and fourth in bareback riding. Hunt is third in both the calf roping and steer wrestling.

Burgener is fifth in the bareback standings and sixth in the bull riding.

Fresno's top event should be in steer wrestling where Lompoc's Mike Williams are 1-2. Brnford and Jani Rouds to the Mustang courts behind the Men's Gym. Both teams will go to the NIRA title four times while Fresno is still looking for its first championship.
