He's Out To Kill A Bill

Photo by Ellen Banner

Story on page 4
A 'Suitable' Speaker

Just who is a "suitable" candidate for commencement speaker on this campus?
In explaining the administration's decision to invite San Jose State University Pres. John Buniel to participate in the 1976 commencement exercises, Dean of Students Everett Chandler cited three qualifications. Among them was the lack of the time to contact the three speakers for the total amount of money involved in bringing the speakers to Cal Poly. At the last moment, the prevailing time problem caused the administration to disregard the recommended candidates and to settle, for a "suitable" candidate who could be contacted readily. John Buniel fits the bill.

But several questions arise about the "suitability" of San Jose State president when his record at that university is examined. For example, was Buniel suitable to University Pres. Robert Kennedy despite his firing of economic scientists at SJSU, or because of it? Was Buniel suitable to Kennedy despite his successful attempt to freeze SJSU student body funds, or because of it? Was Buniel suitable to Kennedy because of the opening of a beer bar on the SJSU campus, or despite it?

Frankly, Pres. Buniel's actions in regards to the proposed $30,000 reduction in the SJSU athletics budget are enough to make him an unwelcome commencement speaker to any student on this campus who supports the concept of student government at the university. Opposed to an immediate $30,000 reduction, Buniel proposed a three year gradual reduction of the athletics budget. When the students disregarded this recommendation, Buniel took to the SJSU student government to court...and won.

The president and his advisers cannot be knowledgeable about more than a small fraction of the relevant data. Yet the effectiveness of their decisions and actions depend on correct appraisal of the underlying trends and forces and of the significance of their choices.

Hence it is critical to have expert and objective intelligence and to utilize it. Experience shows how hard this is to achieve. Predicting the future is, of course, impossible. The strength of the director of intelligence and his agency and their influence on policymakers depends on correct appraisal of the underlying trends and forces and of the significance of their choices.
The Student Affairs Council strongly battled against the Associated Students, Inc. Bill 76-1 with a 15-9 vote that would have required another survey next spring before adopting the gradual budget adjustments among campus groups. SAC members were concerned about the validity of the survey.

Big Classes Get 'Hands Down' Response

By CRAIG REEM
Daily Staff Writer

Large classes at Cal Poly seem to put a crutch on potential student participators who feel inhibited by streaking out. Smaller the class the more active students are in giving the same incentives. For hold a class' attention for a full 75-minute lecture. He become partners in a free consulting service section they would gel points for participation and not measured participation. O'Connor associate professor in business, said that organizations and small businesses have been in marketing O'Grady said. But it made little difference. Now new students are divided into groups of business. They feel student druw from considerable experience with Bob Miller of Miller's business. They feel student druw from considerable experience with Bob Miller of Miller's business. O'Connor, the advisor for the program, feels student druw from considerable experience with Bob Miller of Miller's business. Miller is optimistic about the results. At the present I don't think anyone has asked a lot of questions," Miller said.

"I graduated in journalism and sold ads to small businesses, Jones said, and I wanted to know more about these businesses."

Jim Hunter had another viewpoint. "It really hasn't helped me because I'm involved in international marketing and I really don't have time to devote to the project."

"In a small class there is more give and take, and a more informal atmosphere," Laskey say. "In a large class, you can get lost and feel that what you say wouldn't be of any value."

"I don't believe in You (SAC) refuse to listen to 502 people," Bruce Orr, SAC Representative from Business and Social Science, labelled SAC a "failure" for not responding to the survey "which means they (SAC) don't care about what the students want."

By MARGARET DUFFY
Daily Staff Writer

The federal government and the business administration department here have become partners in a free consulting service for San Luis Obispo businessmen. Under the small business administration, 15 Cal Poly business students earn three units credit examining the operation of small businesses, and the applicants are picked on the basis of prior business experience. Several seniors and grad students are eligible for the program — with undergrads open to use the business experience as their senior project.

Students may apply for the program by submitting a resume according to Eugene O'Gorman associate professor in business, and the applications are picked on the basis of prior business experience.

The council may apply for the program by submitting a resume according to Eugene O'Gorman associate professor in business, and the applications are picked on the basis of prior business experience. The majority of the problems prevalent have been student participators who feel inhibited by streaking out.

"The council problem with the program according to O'Gorman is the students who have been inside the operation, the information confidential but to do the job.

Jim Hunter, a student in the class, said he felt the class would be beneficial to younger students.

"Young students tend to be egocentric," Hunter said, "they think everyone lives like they do. This class is a chance for them to learn otherwise."

Hunter, along with Ann Jones and Mike Buckingham with Bob Miller of Miller's Spanish Monarchies in helping with his business. Miller is optimistic about the results. At the present I don't think anyone has asked a lot of questions," Miller said.

"I graduated in journalism and sold ads to small businesses, Jones said, and I wanted to know more about these businesses."

Jim Hunter had another viewpoint. "It really hasn't helped me because I'm involved in international marketing and I really don't have time to devote to the project."

O'Gorman, the advisor for the program, feels student participators who feel inhibited by streaking out. The program gives students an advantage where it comes to job interviews. They have firsthand feel for business problems, that is very impressive to any business executive," O'Gorman said.

According to the brochure put out by the Small Business Administration, all businesses will receive a free computer and a free business report. About 120000 businesses across the nation are helped by the SBA at college and university campuses. O'Gorman, a former small business executive, says for a small business owner to be able to quality as a small business.

Free Aid to Businessmen Is Offered Through Poly

NOW AT WINWOOD SALON IS

Vivian
experienced and specializing in lunch hour appointments.

Also Featuring

Valerie
eXperienced in hair pressing

Salwinwood Salon
Below Santa Barbara Savings Building
Call 544-1101 For An Appointment

DELores, DONNA, KAREN OPERATORS
Speaker Lashes Out Against SB 1

By ELENÅ-MARIE KOSTER
Daily Staff Writer

If the Senate Bill 1 becomes law all Americans should welcome the new police state with open arms warned Frank Wilkinson, executive director of the National Committee Against Repressive Legislation, in a talk here on Thursday.

Wilkinson, who spent all of yesterday on campus, has actively worked with civil liberties since 1963. He claims SB 1 is the most repressive piece of legislation Congress has ever considered.

"It is also the longest piece of legislation they have ever considered. It is 758 pages long, once referred to as two pounds nine ounces of repression by the Society of Professional Journalists," he told a small group of students in Chumash auditorium.

One of the 500 papers against SB 1 complained that it was so complex that no Senator was intelligent enough to understand it.

SB 1 would expand the areas where wire tapping is permitted, limit such defenses as insanity and entrapment, and increase penalties for refusing to answer questions of smear subcommittees.

Possession of small amounts of marijuana, for personal use world bring 50-day imprisonment and or $10,000 in fines. Second offenses would be six months or the same amount in fines.

"Were Chavez to put up a picket line around Gallo Wine's offices to ask for higher wages than $2 an hour that they pay for snoop labor, he could be charged with trying to exact something of value from Gallo Wine. SB 1 would call for $100,000 in fines and up to 15 years imprisonment. The union would be fined $500,000 dollars," Wilkinson said.

In conflict with the Miranda ruling, voluntary confession, even if obtained by secret police interrogation without a lawyer present, could be used against the witness in a court of law.

SB 1 would excuse the "wrongdoing of a public servant" if the order was issued by the head of a government agency.

"This bill will bring official secrecy, where the only information available to the press would come from official handouts. Not only publishing but receiving secret documents would be punishable by seven years in prison and $100,000 in fines," Wilkinson said.

What started out to be an honest reevaluation of America's criminal laws turned into a criminal code that attack crime before it attacks first, as designed by Richard Nixon, he claimed.

"We need a new criminal code. What we have now is a loose collection of laws that have been interpreted and reinterpreted until they have almost lost meaning," Wilkinson said.

With that recognition Congress asked Lyndon Johnson, then president, to assign bipartisan 12-member committee to write a criminal code.

Johnson formed the National Commission on Reform of Criminal Laws in 1966. Headed by former California Governor Pat Brown, the members included three senators, three representatives, three federal judges, and three members at large.

"LBJ's small attempts at bipartisanism were not very successful. This time he managed to come up with not only a good cross section of parties, but a good cross sections of opinions within the parties," Wilkinson said.

Nationally Known Oceanographer
Claims Ocean Farms Won't Pay

The ocean will not be a valuable source of food production by agricultural means predicts Dr. William A. Nierenberg, a nationally known oceanographer.

"We at Scripps do studies and so far we can only conclude that trying to farm the ocean doesn't pay," said Nierenberg following his talk Thursday afternoon on campus. "We have plenty of sources for food production on land. Now that we've taken so much from the ocean, our concern is to conserve what we've got left."

Nierenberg is the Director of Scripps Institution of Oceanography and Vice Chancellor for Marine Sciences of the University of California, San Diego. He has also held many prestigious research assignments, including NATO's Assistant Secretary General for Scientific Affairs, the President's Advisers Committee and Adviser to National Security Council and the Department of Defense.

Nierenberg does believe that the ocean is a valuable source of unextractable wealth, such as weather predictions.
Parents: The Most Experienced Sitters

by GINA ARRREYESA
Daily Staff Writer

A group of 15 families in San Luis Obispo are beating babysitter costs by joining together in a cooperative babysitting club.

"Everyone thinks it's the greatest thing going," says Karen Smith, who has been a member for two years. "I couldn't imagine not doing it in the summertime," she adds.

The Babysitting Club operates on an 'on call' exchange system. When a member needs a babysitter, she calls the club secretary, who in turn, calls another member for the sit.

Janie Goldberg, this month's secretary, finds the club offers more than financial benefits.

"It's like a brand new baby, you know you're leaving him with an experienced mother," she said.

"It's about looking after houses," says Mrs. Goldberg. After the kids are in bed, she has a quiet time to write letters or work on projects.

Each member acts as secretary for one month, rotating hours and days used by all members during the month. She does the calling and keeping up to date with current and notifying members of their balance of hours at the end of the month. The secretary also receives one and a half hours of babysitting time from each member for month... Most couples in the club have one or two children, although there are a few families with five and six. Most members don't mind babysitting for larger families, for example Penny Russa comments: "When they are more children they keep each other entertained."

There are no single parents in the club. "It's not because of discrimination," says Mrs. Goldberg. "That's just the way it is. Most single parents work during the day so they wouldn't be able to do that." Some of the members must leave their own children at home.

During the day a parent brings her children to the sitter's house, and at night the sitter goes to the house. This is just one of 25 roles followed by the members. The rules explain the duties of the secretary how cancellations are handled, how the sit operates and other basic agreements.

Deedra Givens, who belonged to the club in the 1990s, says the group has probably been in existence since the last 40s. At that time the club consisted of an equal distribution of young people, family, and married. This was to ensure that all members wouldn't be going to the same functions and therefore left without sitters.

Now it doesn't really matter that much, according to Janie Holland, president of the club. Almost half of the club members are wives of Poly professors.

Robert Foster, another member, finds that parents as babysitters "know all the tricks, so the kids of Poly Smith's parents." Mrs. Foster's husband has also sat for other families on occasion.

"A lot of children like it when a man comes," she says.

To get into the club, you have to know one of the members. The club operates on an "on call" system whereby each new member must be sponsored by a presently active member. The sponsor then is responsible for any balance - plus or minus - when the new member drops from the club.

When their oldest child reaches about 12 years, most members casually drop out. The ages of the children in the club range from new borns up to approximately 12-year-olds.

The club, limited to 15 couples, is now at its maximum capacity. Although, they haven't ever had a waiting list, president Janie Holland says they may have to start one.

The president is nominated from the club meeting which is held once a year. The president "builds the ropes" and responds to complaints made by club members.

Mrs. Janie Goldberg, secretary of the baby-sitting co-op, gives the same loving attention to other members' children as she is seen giving to her own, Mamie, left, and Adam, right, here. (Daily photo by Bill Faulkner)

---

'Swinnie-The-Pooh' To Be Staged Here

Welcome back to childhood. Alpha Psi Omega, the honorary drama club at Cal Poly, is inviting an extension for students to bring their youngest friends to visit with Christopher Robin in his nursery at the Spring production of Winnie-the-Pooh.

The play, adapted from the popular books by A.A. Milne, is produced by Alpha Psi Omega, and will be held Friday and Saturday, May 22 and 23 at 2:10 p.m. in the Cal Poly Film Theatre. Admission is free.

The adaptation was done by director Suzanne Cabig. Included in the show are "Pooh goes visiting and gets in a tight place." "Tigger has a birthday." "Piglet meets a Heffalump." and "Pooh and Christopher Robin come on an enchanted place and we leave them there."

The episode of the enchanted place is the final story in the Winnie-the-Pooh series.

Gahig designed the set and costumes to look as much like a real nursery as possible.

"The costumes are made out of the materials that are used. We have to make small sized, which Pooh and his friends were in reality. Most of the set in large building blocks which are stacked around nursery scenes," Gahig said.

Included in the cast are Pazi Rushdicki as Winnie-the-Pooh, Mary Mark as Christopher Robin, Torey Santos as Piglet, Tracy Frennsmark as Eeyore, Dave Grijalba as Eeyore, and Lena Andrews as Eeyore. David Vesting will be the off-stage voice, telling the story. Sue Leslie will accompany Pooh Bear's songs on the piano.

Each year Alpha Psi Omega presents three children's theatre productions. Early this year the group produced two other popular children's stories, Tom Sawyer and Snow White.
New JFK Evidence?

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate Intelligence Committee said Thursday it has evidence that may show New JFK Evidence?

Senator John F. Kennedy and prominent Democrats in Congress continue to probe into the role of U.S. intelligence agencies in the JFK assassination.

The panel, in a closed door session, voted to give the evidence it has uncovered to a proposed permanent panel for further examination.

Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., who testified Thursday, said that the "Cuban connection holds the key in the riddle of the assassination."

"I think we now know where we could go to find out," he said. "It is no longer like looking for a needle in a haystack."

Schweiker declared to elaborate.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the committee chairman, said that a subcommittee which investigated the Kennedy killing would draft a report on the evidence. The full committee then will decide whether to make the report public.

Church, after announcing results of the committee vote, turned a news briefing over to Schweiker and Sen. Gary W. Hart, D-Colo. They all declined to say what evidence had been found.

Hart said it was not a question of the Warren Commission's findings that Oswald alone shot and killed Kennedy, "but why he did it and the effectiveness of intelligence agencies in their actions before and after the event."

Schweiker and Hart said evidence which later became available was not supplied to the committee by the CIA.

Church, after announcing results of the committee vote, turned a news briefing over to Schweiker and Sen. Gary W. Hart, D-Colo. They all declined to say what evidence had been found.

Hart said it was not a question of the Warren Commission's findings that Oswald alone shot and killed Kennedy, "but why he did it and the effectiveness of intelligence agencies in their actions before and after the event."

Schweiker and Hart said evidence which later became available was not supplied to the committee by the CIA.

Church, after announcing results of the committee vote, turned a news briefing over to Schweiker and Sen. Gary W. Hart, D-Colo. They all declined to say what evidence had been found.

Hart said it was not a question of the Warren Commission's findings that Oswald alone shot and killed Kennedy, "but why he did it and the effectiveness of intelligence agencies in their actions before and after the event."

Schweiker and Hart said evidence which later became available was not supplied to the committee by the CIA.

Frogs

The Annual Frog Jumping Contest, open to all frog owners will be held Tuesday, May 17, at 11 a.m. Prizes will be awarded to the winning frog and its owner. Entries will be accepted at the Los Angeles Public Library, 300, Pico Boulevard, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Frogs

The annual frog jumping contest, open to all frog owners will be held Tuesday, May 17, at 11 a.m. Prizes will be awarded to the winning frog and its owner. Entries will be accepted at the Los Angeles Public Library, 300, Pico Boulevard, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Leaders Dig Kinky Sex Psychiatrists

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) - Most of $100 an hour call girls, customers are political leaders and influential public business executives who prefer "kinky sex," New York psychiatrists reported Thursday.

Dr. Samuel J. Rothman and Dr. Barbara E. Bess present results to the American Psychiatric Association on what they called the first survey of its kind involving 42 high priced prostitutes and 10 "madames," who detailed the preferences and sexual activities of 5-56 of their customers.

"Sixty percent of all customers of the call girls and madames interviewed were highly political figures of significance or influential executives in public monopolies, such as telephone, power and light companies," J. Rothman said.

He added that the study, based on interviews with prostitutes working in New York City, California and Las Vegas, showed that "politicians and power brokers in general prefer 'kinky sex' where 73 percent of average citizens do not."

The New York doctors said the "kinky sex" varies frequently preferred by the high prices on hallucinogens, foreplay, cross dressing, receiving flagellation, bondage, humiliation and fetishism.

He said the high class call girls expect to make a lot of money this summer at the Democratic National Convention in New York City, which he called the prostitution capital of the United States.

Political Scientist To Examine Tensions In The Middle East

John Rothman, a political scientist who has researched the Middle East situation, will speak Monday on explaining why the United States should be supportive of Israel.

Rothman is sponsored by Chevrah, Jewish Students Union. He will present views different from last month's speaker, Dr. Alifred Littledahl.

Lee Shapiro, a member of Chevrah, says Rothman will explain how Israel, as the "last democracy in the Middle East and America's only truly allied," is supported by the American people, although Shapiro says, "there are people who are growing fearful in favor of the Arabs."

"We will present the facts that are happening today," Shapiro says, "and try to present an equitable and answer period with no card system," he says Littledahl, as last month's speaker, answered only hand-picked questions from cards presented by the audience.

But Don, an advisor to Chevrah, says Rothman will not be presenting an answer, but as presented with the Israeli-Middle East affairs.

Rothman will present documented facts, Lee says. He's a mobile lecturer and has expertise on the "Middle East situation," Lee says, adding that the question and answer period following will continue as long as needed.

"The issue is not Arab versus Jews, but academic freedom - the right of anyone of opposing viewpoint to speak," Lee says.

"It's a great step, we want everyone's opinion to be expressed," Lee says.

Rothman will present his "Middle East: Can Democracy Survive?" talk Monday, May 17 in Chevrah Auditorium.

"The program will begin at 7:30 p.m."

Public Foro To Discuss Sex Bias

A public forum and discussion forum will deal with Title IX and how it is related to sexual discrimination in education will be held May 17 in the corner of Upneumum Chambers in the Courthouse Annex.

The session is being sponsored by the County Commission of the Sierra County, Chamber of Commerce.

Title IX is a federal law which prohibits discrimination in schools that receive federal funds. It effects almost every level of education from kindergarten to post-graduate school.

Although physical education and interpersonal sports have received the most emphasis in regards to Title IX, it also effects discrimination in counseling, grants and scholarships, housing, admissions to special schools like medical schools and graduate programs.

"Title IX will mean that there can't be discrimination on the basis," Mrs. Flagg said. "It means that if girls are refused to be admitted to a school as long as they want to have sex is wrong."
Algumni Gridders

Play Tomorrow

By RICK BEATTY
Special To The Daily

The Cal Poly Mustang gridders will seek their fifth straight victory over the Alumni team this Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in Mustang Stadium.

The annual affair has, on occasion, turned into a test for the varsity squad although the Alumni provides new surprises each year.

Mustangs head coach Joe Harper is looking for a good game and had these thoughts about the Saturday contest:

"We're looking for a game-type experience with as few errors as possible." Another of Harper's interests is for the Mustangs to function as a team.

Based on playing experience, Harper put this team's present strength with the offensive and defensive lines.

The offensive line has guard Bob Freiberg and Kevin Kennedy, and center Gordon Shaw, all of whom are seniors.

Of the defensive front, senior ends Mark Funk and Rick Bonar, and junior tackles Vic Clark, Tom Ray, and Ken Kittredge.

With the graduation of quarterbacks Cliff Johnson and Rich Robbuhl, the Mustangs had no one holding the reins going into spring practice.

Bob Amato, a transfer from U.C. Riverside, has thus far answered Poly's quarterback woes and will start this Saturday against the Alumni.

Tailback Bob Tradew and fullback Jeff Jones, another U.C. Riverside transfer, head up the offensive backfield along with Amarsi and Warner Jimmy Childs.

The linebacking corps is yet another strong point of the 1974 Mustangs. Senior, Scott Keardon, and Junior Tony Raynes will head up the outside linebackers, while the middle unit will be filled by senior Dan Nantashy.

Senior strong safeties Billy McCadden and corner Steve Spere, another senior, will lead the defensive backfield against the Alumni along with sophomore free safety Randy Smith.

The Alumni team will be featuring players both old and young. Some of the older members returning are three members of the 1973 Camellia Bowl team: fullback Mike Baril, McNamara, and offensive tackle Fred Nørseth.

Another Camellia Bowl member returning Saturday will be Dave Quirk, the defensive tackle, who intercepted a pass in that game and ran 63 yards for a touchdown.

Softballers Vie

Coach Mary Stallard units her Cal Poly women's softball team into the Fifth Annual U.C. Riverside Tournament this weekend as the Mustang team concludes its second season of intercollegiate competition.

Cal Poly takes first record into the tournament which begins today and concludes Sunday.

Cal State Dominguez Hills is Cal Poly's first round foe and will be scheduled for 5 p.m. today. Host U.C. Riverside will be Poly's 7:30 p.m. opponent.

Poly Track Team In Tough

CCAA Championship Meet

With two straight runner-up finishes in 1974 and 1973, the Cal Poly track team figures to be hard pressed to finish high in this year's edition of the California Collegiate Athletic Association championships this weekend.

Acting Coach Eddie Cadena takes his team to the crossroads of the state, Cal State Los Angeles, knowing that his team's chances hinge on how well his field event performers.

The championship meet was originally scheduled to be held in San Luis Obispo but was shifted to Los Angeles after Mustang coach Neve Simmons moved on to Carroll, Ore. in January.

Cal Poly has operated its program all spring under the guidance of Cadena, a former Mustang distance runner.

"Unless our field events people come through for us, we'll be in trouble in the conference meet," Cadena said. "I think that the Mustangs have been inconsistent in the field events all season."

Poly has some other problems coming into the conference meet, also. Freshman Bert Williams, a starter, suffered a bruised foot while running the intermediate hurdles at the West Coast Relays last week. The injury could limit the number of events he enters as well as hurt his efforts.

Anthony Reynoso, the team's top distance runner, is battling the flu while miler Randy Myśliwiec has been ill. Senior Kevin McNamara, the defending champion in the intermediate hurdles, suffered a shoulder dislocation in practice Wednesday.

With a healthy McNamara and pressure from Los Angeles State, the Mustangs figure to struggle the CCAA mile relay record of 3:12.6 set by San Diego State in 1973 and tied by the 1974 Mustangs.

Cal Poly was blanks in 1973 and winning the College mile relay at Fresno. The performance by Mike Baril, McNamara, Williams and Kenton Lloyd earned the 1974 Mustang Division II second place effort of 3:10.88.

"We can run under 3:10 if we get strong competition," Cadena noted prior to the injury of McNamara. The practice mishap leaves the Mustang mile banton hopes cloudy.

Classifieds

Announcements

For Sale

Services

Housing

For Rent

Automotive

Lost & Found
Jani Rouda
One More Hurdle

Women's 880-yard runner Jani Rouda
(Daily photo by Ellen Banner)

Running: It feels good to hurt, but also requires a lot of mental discipline.

By KATHY SOHNSON
Daily Staff Writer

Although track season for the women is over, Jani Rouda and four other members of the women's track team will have one more hurdle to go over this weekend — The Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women - Nationals in Manhattan, Kansas.

Rouda has been running for the last seven years, originally getting into track while in high school.

"It was running the 800 for the President's Fitness Test and the top girl on the high school track team. She yanked me into the coach's office, and I started running from there," Rouda participated in the 440, the mile relay, cross country, and the 800, which is her best event. Rouda's best time in the 800 during her high school days was 2:23.6. Rouda, a physical education major from Santa Ynez, recently qualified for the nationals in the 800 yard run for the second straight year at Cal Poly. She was also a member of the mile relay team and the women's cross country team.

Rouda says she feels better about going into nationals this year because she knows more about what will be going on. She feels the competition this year at nationals will not be as tough as last year because the women from UCLA are out for the Olympics.

The only time Rouda has faced Knudson was last year at the nationals. Knudson broke the AIAW record with a winning time of 2:09.5. Rouda finished twelfth with a time of 2:17.6.

When comparing herself to Knudson and Hopper she says, "What I want out of track is personal achievement, both of them are trying out for the Olympics."

Rouda plans to run cross country and put more time into training for the 800 next year and says that the Olympics for this year are definitely out of the question.

Last year at the nationals, Rouda ran her personal best, 2:17.6. and feels that this year she can do the same. Her ultimate goal is to run 2:08 in 2:12.6. She feels she can do it this year as the nationals if the day is right, and her physical and mental condition before the meet are good.

Rouda started the season in a slump, but times were 2:24.5 and 2:22.6 and believes this is too much pre-season training.

Rouda says she was ready to quit, but she received much support and encouragement from the men's track team and their coach Ed Galenda. Galenda is responsible for all the training Rouda has been given this year.

Working out with the men's team gave her the inspiration that Rouda needed to continue her running career.

Disciplining herself on every day doesn't come easy for Rouda, but says, "I do have a desire, to be good and in shape. It is a way of life, it feels good to hurt, but also requires a lot of mental discipline."

Rouda looks at the 1980 Olympics as a possibility, but not until 1983. She depends on how she does this week in Kansas.

SB 1: Police State

Continued From Page 4

After five years of work the commission came up with a compromise bill.

"It was not what everyone wanted, but we could have lived with that bill. It was more conciliatory and more palatable than the volatilous SB 1." Wilkinson said.

Wilkinson and other members of the American Civil Liberties Union feel that the opposition to the bill is such that the legislation could be worked out in time.

The commission presented that bill to Congress and President Nixon in 1971. The house commission took no action, and has not to this day.

Nixon turned the bill over to the attorney general, to create a criminal code created by two men and no more. The press was covering Watergate at the time. McClellan and Mitchell held thousand's of meetings and hearings, but neither of them have had Watergate! Wilkinson's most recent book is The New York Times was the first newspaper to make an editorial comment on SB 1. Now 500 papers have joined the Times by coming out against the law.

Wilkinson praised the people for making the changes added to the bill. Wilkinson feels the changes those amendments will bring are not strong enough.

The people to blame for the bill are the liberales and the press. McClellan and Hruska held thousand's of hours of testimony on the bill. The two liberals on the committee were present every day of the hearings. Sidlogged Kennedy is trying to add amendments to the bill, so Kennedy could have used his strength when the bill was being worked on," Wilkinson said.

The press was busy covering Watergate at the time the hearings were on. The hearings closed for day Nixon resigned. When it was covered it was usually on the inside pages," he said.

The first story Wilkinson saw on SB 1 was a headline that read: Punishment For Those Who Are Punished. Women of Youth Are To Be Punished.

The New York Times was the first newspaper to make an editorial comment on SB 1. Now 500 papers have joined the Times by coming out against the law.

Wilkinson praised the people for making the movement against SB 1 so strong.

The movement is stronger among the people that it is in the Senate. California's senators, John Tunney and Alan Cranston, have both come out against SB 1. But neither of them have had the courage to say what an editorial in the Los Angeles Times said: "It should be junked," said Wilkinson.