EDITORIAL/OPINION

Solving a Daily problem

When Mustang Daily ceased publication Friday, Oct. 14, it was as if we stepped off a merry and somebody threw the partygoers.

People involved in the Daily felt a sense of dishonor; the loss of their work and attention to no longer existed. Writers and photographers continued to produce their work during the two-week lull, but production people could only hope in the suspension, waiting for resolution of the situation.

For those readers still unsure as to why Mustang Daily was out of print, it was not due to the paper's financial status, nor was it a case of administrative oversight, nor departmental squabbling, as rumors tall.

The suspension resulted from years of neglecting the equipment, structure, and very essence of this newspaper.

In short, due to curriculum and equipment, the Mustang Daily overwinds this year in the Graphic Communications Department. University Graphic systems is no longer able to produce this newspaper.

A attempt was made to allow some solution to be worked out. Numerous departmental meetings, sub-committees and sub-committees were held to determine exactly what had occurred.

As a temporary solution, graphics people have turned their department upside down and arranged a laboratory to be used only in Mustang Daily production.

Divided we stand ??

I'm seriously considering writing a letter to the Orange County Gazette, introducing a bill that would divide California in half. If that doesn't work, I'll just see what happens.

Northern and Southern California are so different in size and style of living, it is strange how we've never known each other. I have a difficult time relating to SoCal, and they have trouble figuring me out.

When people from the East Coast come to Cal Poly, they immediately ask where the Disneyland is. Oh, sure, there are San Franciscos, and that's about it.

In short, due to Northern California people, they think of Palm Springs, and they have turned their department upside down and arranged a laboratory to be used only in Mustang Daily production.

So, I propose a new border to divide the north and south into two blocks of the Madisonian era.

Call of, course, would be the northern state. That would make the Madonnas the gateway to Ferria, the country's newest territory.

Now don't get the idea I hate Los Angeles. I tolerate it very much. In fact, maybe I'm a little jealous. But in Ferria, there is a place like the Hollywood, beautiful beaches and the women on them, the Dodgers, the San Francisco, and maybe even the Olympic.

It's just that the people of Cal and Ferria are so different.

For instance Ferrians at Poly (soon to be Cal Polytechnia) aren't as much fun as Mustangs.

 Mustang's loss affected campus

Mustang Daily lives again and most of us will tend to appreciate this information. Sources, a little more now.

The Daily staff was without their "living laboratory." Local businesses and campus groups, not to advertise elsewhere and Cal Poly itself lost a vital source of local news.

According to Program and Public Relations Office, the paper was printed on a Monday. It is expected to resume publication next Tuesday.

As a result of the suspension, the Daily staff was able to focus on other areas.

Furthermore, the more established groups, such as the Fine Arts Department, announced the launch of a new magazine for fine arts majors.

Conversely, the more established groups, such as the newly formed Student Activities Planning Board, was successful in handling its share of the work.

Student Activities Planning Director Doug Jones said publicity for last weekend's homecoming activities was successfully handled by KCPG radio, all campus media, such as the Telegram-Tribune.

There are more Ferrians in Cal who don't share their large than there are in Poly. Thus again, there are more Ferrian students with Ferrians' than their counterparts to the north.

Ferrians' speak a slightly different language than Californians. To a Cal Poly student, it means that it is stolen, to a Ferrian it means that it is new and ready to be sold.

Ferrians' cars were parked where the campuses are many older models, whereas Cal Poly will get off rolling a few newer-year-old car.

Ferrians have many faults, from moving cars to LA's Cal Poly, and we won't give the day of time to either. For example, Ferrians' train time for the rice becomes Poly.

Cal Poly would laugh off the situation. Now it's a race for self-sufficiency to be turned out before the state is divided from new state laws to the changing of circumstances.

One problem will be right here at Poly. Southern California Village lies in Poly and Poly will be in Cal. It's difficult to think of paying out-of-state fees. Think about that.

There would have to be a new state capital to Ferria. Probably out of the influence of Los Angeles and Ferrians would get a fair chance. Call it Ono or Oxnard or Burbank.

Oh sure, there will be minor changes like the switching of UCLA to Poly, and finding a new state bird and flower, little things like that.

But, consider all the advantages the state has to offer. If for no other reason, the proposal should be passed because of the stimulating effect it would have on the economy.

Just think of all the people who will never have to be here to see that earth star on all our flags.

Author Kevin Fails, a senior journalism major, writes a weekly column for the Daily.

Police lack kidnap leads

By Dave Kerley

The two men reportedly forced the woman to open her door and rob her of her keys. After getting her keys, they began driving south on Highway 1, according to Leroy Whitmer, acting university police chief.

The two men continued south until they reached Guadalupe, approximately 30 miles from San Luis Obispo. After reaching Guadalupe, the victims ran out of gas.

The kidnappers rummaged through the woman's car and purse. Taking nothing, they fled on foot.

The woman said she was able to escape and was picked up at her door by four friends.

The kidnappers wore Halloween-type masks, which were described by the unidentified woman as "horrible looking."

The woman said the two men smelled strongly of alcohol.

LAC offering timely seminar

Do you want more freedom, more peace of mind? One way to get those precious commodities is to take control of your time so that "you are in control of you," according to Learning Assistance Center personnel.

To help students toward that goal, the Learning Assistance Center will sponsor a time management seminar entitled Getting Caught Up and Getting Out. It will be held Wednesday, November 18, from 1-3 p.m., in the Health Center Conference Room.

The seminar will be conducted in three parts.

For more information, contact the Learning Assistance Center, Room 30BA in the library.

The stage set for drama production

By DOROTHY NEWELL
Special to the Daily

"The Glass Menagerie," a semiautobiographical play by Tennessee Williams, will open on the Cal Poly stage tomorrow night.

The intense and delicate drama, set in the 1930's, is about the Wingfield family who live in a St. Louis tenement.

Tom Wingfield, the son, is the narrator as well as a character in the play. His mother, Amanda, is a woman who is disappointed in marriage and can never forget she was once a true belle of southern family.

Laura, her daughter, slight­ly crippled and pathologically shy, has retreated from the outer world and found refuge in her menagerie of glass animals. Jim O'Connor is Laura's carefree, exuberant "gentleman caller."

All four characters are tied down to the tedium and hopelessness of poverty, otherwise their goals would have taken them in opposite directions.

"The play is unusual in that there is not a single major action," said drama instructor Michael Malkin. "The plot hangs on the emotions and feeling. It's a play requiring sympathy for the characters in a very delicate situation. Even the title suggests the fragile aspect of the story."

Nancy Jorgensen, a counselor in the Cal Poly Counseling Center for the past ten years, plays Amanda. Jorgensen had a number of lead roles in Cal Poly and local theater productions.

She played the part of Linda Loman in the Cal Poly production of "Death of a Salesman," and has performed in numerous other productions such as "The Women," "A Streetcar Named Desire," and "Once Upon a Mattress."

Larry Sefton, a senior in Natural Resources Management, portrays dreamy, am­bitious Tom. He has been seen in several Cal Poly productions and had a lead role in "Applause" this summer at the San Luis Obispo Community Theater. Sefton has had major roles in "Harvey," "The Diary of Anne Frank" and will also play the title role in the Cal Poly Winter production of "Sherlock Holmes."

Leslie Scatchard, a junior in Speech Communications, plays Laura. While she is a newcomer to the Cal Poly stage, she is not new to the theater. Scatchard has per­formed in "The Boyfriend," "Bye Bye Birdie," and "The World of O." in high school and community theater.

"The Glass Menagerie" will be presented at the Cal Poly Theatre, Thursday through Saturday nights, Nov. 2-4. Tickets are $1 for students and $2 general admission. Tickets can be bought at the ASI office, Brown's Music, 717 Higuera and at the door. Curtain is at 8 p.m.

Rent help for low-income tenants

By GARY KAPLAN
Daily Staff Writer

Although there is a long waiting list, help in paying the rent is available in San Luis Obispo to low-income families and single persons, either elderly or disabled, said Rich Shuhin, Director of Housing Authority for the City of San Luis Obispo.

The Housing and Urban Development program, called Rent Supplement, was begun in January and is set up to help a state of 300 applicants (100 elderly or disabled and 200 non-elderly).

"Two hundred of the spots have already been taken," Shuhin said. "For the remaining 100, a thousand names are on the waiting list according to Shuhin.

Applicants accepted into the program will pay one-fourth of their monthly income for rent. San Luis Obispo, backed by HUD money, will make up the difference said Shuhin. As an example, if monthly income is $500, one-fourth is $125 and the balance of $375 would go toward rent. On a $500 rented house, HUD would pay the remaining $125.

"HUD establishes the income necessary for qualification," said Shuhin. "For a family of four, an income less than $10,500..."

"Renting an apartment or house now takes quite a bit more than a person's income than several years ago. From 1970-73, the cost of renting increased by 45 per cent. At the same time, income increased only 25 per cent."

According to Shuhin, "For a family of four, an income less than $10,500..."

"There is very little money for help in paying the rent," Shuhin said. "For a family of four, an income less than $10,500..."

"Renting an apartment or house now takes quite a bit more than a person's income than several years ago. From 1970-73, the cost of renting increased by 45 per cent. At the same time, income increased only 25 per cent."

"Rents increased by 45 per cent. At the same time, income increased only 25 per cent." "So far the program has been very well received," said Shuhin. "Landlords seem very willing to accept a person who is getting this aid."

HUD money is paid directly to the landlord according to Shuhin:

"If we can't assist someone," he said, "we refer him to other sources. Unfortunately, there are waiting lists everywhere. They key is to get on as many waiting lists as possible and just work it out until it's your turn."

Jog-A-Thon gets underway Saturday

This Saturday the first big effort to help build a new football stadium complex at Cal Poly will take place. That effort is the Cal Poly Jog-A-Thon, with individuals, groups, teams and organizations running for money. The money collected for a group or team will be divided in half. One half will go to the group, and the other will go towards the Stadium Renovation Fund.

According to Vic Buccola, director of athletics, there are more than 200 individuals, running, and various teams and clubs.

"I think right now we have more than 200 people running," Buccola said. "This is within my range of six to seven hundred people that I was shooting for before the campaign."

There will be four starting times, beginning at 7 a.m., with people running on the hour until 10 a.m. There will be two more runs at 11 a.m.

Each person should have a sponsor sheet with the name and addresses of pledge and pledge amounts.

Money owed at the end of the event will not be collected by the participant. A bill will be sent out to each sponsor and a total of three bills will be sent until the bill is paid.

Participants should choose a time to run, and show up 15 minutes early to sign up at the table at the lower track next to the baseball field.

An honor system will be used to count laps, and at the end of the one hour limit, the total number of laps will be recorded.

Poly hosts Fresno

The soccer team will try to overcome its scoring problem when it meets Fresno Pacific University today, 2 p.m., at the soccer field. The Mustangs dropped their last two matches, and were shut out in both games. Although they have played well, the offense hasn't been able to put the ball in the net.

"We've been going straight into their defense—trying to score right up the middle," said coach George Perry. "We'll be trying to spread out and move our wings."

When you go up the middle, the ball just doesn't seem to stick, Perry said. But if they can get the ball in the net, Perry thinks they can do it right. "I have to be pleased with the team. We still have a lot of room for improvement. This is the first year we've ever played all that badly and we can just get back on it and start winning, we're not right."

Sports update

The University of California at Santa Barbara women's tennis team won the stage for the Poly women's polo team to take it on Saturday night. The Mustangs lost to the Gauchos 10-5, dropping their record to 1-5 in CCAA. There are still two full weeks of sports competition in several teams representing Cal Poly have a good chance of finishing high in the league before any post season play. Basketball for both men and women will be underway in mid-November and early December, respectively.
