Tubes concert rescheduled

When I spoke with the business owners and the business owners, there was a breakdown in communication," said Timmons. Timmons said it was never intended to reschedule the concert. The concert committee chair had been previously involved in the planning of the concert and was aware of the rescheduling.

"That was never intended to happen," said Timmons. "The concert was not rescheduled because of communication breakdowns."

"That wasn't an intentional plan," he said. "The committee chair was not informed of the rescheduling."

"I have a lot of faith in the people on that committee. I'm sure they'll pull it together," said the president.

The general public will see the usual ticket prices for the concert, according to the president. Nobody will lose money due to the rescheduling.

"We're only losing money if people don't come. If they do come, we'll be making money," said the president.

"I think it's a lot of money," said the president. "I hope they'll pull it together."
Ride board
drawbacks

The driver will call up and get five riders to the terminal, and then she will deliver them to their school and make a stop to do the same thing at 7 a.m. She is also on call to deliver riders to school every day.

There is also the issue of the driver being late. It only should take the bus six minutes to get to Woodside, and the six minutes make the difference. The driver is not suppose to be late.

People will also still saying they are tardy. The bus must be at school at 7:00 a.m. in order for the driver to be here on time. The bus route takes about two hours.

Riders also be arriving at the terminal that call them ahead of time will be in trouble. They will have to walk the long distance to the terminal, and then the bus door in your look.

The ride board was meant to make thing easier for the student. It provides a reliable service for those taking a car and for those with a car who want to drop off on the cost of gas.

The cost of a five ride round trip to San Francisco for example is one average $45. You can get ride in New York and perhaps one of the biggest reasons is that you are not under the control of the bus rider, and you don't have to ride home with the bus.

Preppy welcomed to the unexpected

The Reforma houses run on the preppy, as well as the many other students. They have times where they are expected to dress in a certain way, not the usual. The Reforma house is known for being a preppy house.

"You are one of the privileged students, why don't you try and make a change in the way you dress," Mrs. Garfield Cohen.

Assembly defeats fee increase

BY SCOTT CRAVEN
Daily Trojan

Student President William M. G. Price is urging a fee increase due to the Student Union. The increase will be paid for by students and include a $100,000 loan.

Price claimed the bill would permit the student union to become more debt. According to Price, an increased fee would be necessary for increased programs.

The fee increase would be presented to the students and the administration for consideration.

Pippin’s learning processes stem from humanistic ideas

By JULIE AUSTIN

Education can be nothing more than the student has learned, but will only the teacher and student...which influences their ability to think critically and engage in problem solving.

That’s the idea behind Learning Process, taught by Lou Pippin, the course director and director of a workshop, involving a required class for those who want to develop skills in fine art. Pippin teaches the course at Cal Poly.

The class has expanded from about 16 students per session to 100 or so at the beginning of today. This can be explained when students ask Pippin, "What is the course about?"

"It’s the type of work you have for a job, like you would do in a workshop," Pippin said. "It is a course in which the students are taught to use the tools you would need to stay in the field."

Pippin describes the atmosphere as a "relaxed and informal" atmosphere. "It is not a structured or rigid environment," he said. "It is a course in which you can learn as many things as you want to.

"I don’t think there is much learning in a workshop," Pippin said. "It is more about getting hands-on experience." Pippin said that during the class, students will be working on their projects and will be free to ask questions and get feedback.

On the second day of the course, Pippin also discussed the importance of "thinking outside the box." He said, "It is not about finding solutions, but about thinking of new ways to approach a problem."

Pippin’s single-handedly presented the Learning Process class is an example of the creative and educational approach to learning that is the hallmark of the workshop.

The course attempts to stimulate and encourage students to think outside the box. "I have never seen a course like this," Pippin said. "I always find a way to make it a little different."
Rhodesia guerrillas reject offer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Britain pulled their military supply ships out of the waters off Rhodesia today in the wake of a 15-year war against Rhodesia’s white government.

The ships, carrying supplies for South Africa’s guerrilla forces, were ordered to return to port by the South African government.

Flu cure riskier than disease

WASHINGTON (AP)—The rise of flu from influenza "is the worst of all the new diseases," the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) said this week.

"The rise in flu is not a bad sign," said Dr. Robert E. Carpenter, leader of the CDC’s influenza division.

"We have been using antiviral drugs to treat flu patients for years," said Carpenter. "This year the CDC is using new antiviral drugs that are more effective than the old ones."

Old teammates haunt Poly nine

Lo and behold its baseball season was on the way Saturday as the Variety Club hosted its annual Benefit Dinner at the Bay Club.

The annual team was the only one of its kind in the last nine years and marked the start of the 1978 season. The Spikers were back with a bang, and many of their former teammates were there to support them.

Last year's league opener, Jack Friedman, who pitched for Cal Poly, was there to lend support. He had pitched for the Spikers in previous years and had been released by the San Diego Padres organization.

The Mustangs were up against tough competition, with the$varsity winning by a close score of 5-3. The Mustangs have a chance to advance to the semi-finals if they can win again.

On Friday, Poly will host Poly, who are currently ranked 14th in the nation. The game is a test of their mettle and will be an exciting one for fans of both teams.
Oregon trip spells trouble for Poly

By Jim Alzheimer

The Poly women's volleyball team made Saturday night an important one as the Mustangs beat Cal Poly, 3-2, in a crucial match. The victory meant the Mustangs would earn a spot in the WAC tournament and only had to beat the CSU Long Beach Bobcats on Friday to advance. The game was played at Poly's gym and in front of a packed house.

The Mustangs led by an excellent performance from Vicky Whiley and an unexpected performance from outstandingly talented Junior Susan Baker. Whiley scored 11 of the Mustangs' 30 points in their victory over Cal Poly. Baker added 10 points to the Mustangs' win.

The Mustangs now look forward to their final regular season match, which will be played against the CSU Long Beach Bobcats on Friday. A win would secure a spot in the WAC tournament. A loss would mean the Mustangs would have to beat the Bobcats in order to advance.

Poly falls to Irvine

The Poly women's volleyball team was defeated by the University of California at Irvine, 3-1, on Saturday night. Poly's leading scorer was Janice Patey, who scored 10 of the Mustangs' 30 points. The Mustangs lost their second straight match, their fourth in five games.

The team is currently at the bottom of the WAC standings and needs a win against the Bobcats to have a chance at advancing to the WAC tournament. A loss would mean the Mustangs would have to win both of their remaining matches to advance.

Cagers Hawaii bound

The Calif Poly women's volleyball team will be heading to the University of Hawaii this week to play in the WAC tournament. Technology: Problem solver, trouble maker

By SANDY NAY

Technology should represent one of the most important advances... The conclusion is that... That is what Dr. Willy Harman, a research scientist at Stanford Research Institute in Menlo Park, Calif., said during his presentation at the Stanford Research Institute's Technology Conference Thursday.

Harman said technology is a problem solver, trouble maker. He pointed out that the world is becoming a more complex place and that technology can help to solve problems and make life easier. He also noted that technology can be used to solve problems that arise in the workplace, such as improving communication and efficiency.

SATELLITE BAN ASKED

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter asked Monday for the United States to join with other nations in the United Nations to support a ban against launching of satellites carrying radioactive materials.

Satellite ban asked

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter asked Monday for the United States to join with other nations in the United Nations to support a ban against launching of satellites carrying radioactive materials.

He said such a ban should be part of a broader United Nations ban on launching satellites and other space vehicles containing radioactive materials, as Harman has proposed.

Carter also told Congress that rejection of key phases of the tax, jobs, and inflation-fighting program is "not an option." He said the success of the program depends on "a very simple rule: if you can't use it now, you can't use it later." He added that the program is "a balanced plan that can often help the taxpayer and not aggravate our economic problems."

Carter also defended his handling of the crisis in El Salvador. He said the decision to deploy American troops to the country was made in consultation with the United Nations and other nations, and that the United States did not act alone.

At the same time, Carter noted that the last Republican administration did not support Democrats in those cases. Carter said he was determined to consult with the American people and not act unilaterally. He also said that he was determined to consult with other nations and not act unilaterally.

The president said he gets 10 to 15 calls a day from reporters and is not as busy as he once was. He also said that he is not as busy as he once was. He also said that he is not as busy as he once was.

Indeed, he said, under the same circumstances he would do "the same thing now."

"We have no intention of reinventing the so-called "Preserve" program which provides leaders in the community with temporary work in the United States." Carter said.

"And it does not have a "map of a plan" detailing new funding levels for the program, which has been described as a "social experiment" by many in the field.
