Sherlock Holmes delves into drama

By BRIAN TOMLINSON Special to the Daily

The final touches have been made, the show will go on this week.

"Sherlock Holmes," the classic mystery-drama will be performed Feb. 16, 17 and 18 at 8 p.m. in the Cal Poly Theatre.

The play by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and William Gillette concerns the world's most brilliant and famous sleuth.

Intemperate letters, written by a young European prince to his brother, come into the hands of the famed sleuth's sister. From this letter Holmes sees the evolution of a master criminal and deduces the part the professor Moriarty.

Holmes is played by Kirt Kitting, a young engineer and engineering major. His part is intensified by the roles of Mr. Topham, a minor character in the part of Charles Davies from Como, and Mr. Stonemore, a minor character in the part of Donald from Como.

This year Kitting was the musical stage manager for "The Glass Menagerie".

Margie Kelsey, who portrays Alice, is a sophomore speech communications major. Kelsey played the part of Helen in "Hansel and Gretel" last year at Poly.

Joseph Cartwright is cast as Dr. Watson. Carlisle is a senior speech communications major. This year he is first in a Poly production.

Other major cast members include Friedel Marnell as Professor Moriarty, Carolene Carlin as Miss, Margie Kelsey as Mr. Herbert and Judy Robinson as Madame.

Director Murray Smith also designed the set. Lighting was designed by Bill Clark.

Stage manager Joe Gagliano was assisted by Eunice Beavman and Judy Lear.

Tickets are $1 and are available at the All-American drug store, Graham's Art Shop and at the door before performances.
Tele-Congress can bring you closer to your government

What do you know about the federal legislative process, the process of law-making going on in the U.S. House and Senate that directly affects you?

You probably know there are two sessions from each state and all states, called Congress, held in the House, and you can name your local representatives. Can you name your state senators?

We are living today with our elected government officials. We see them only campaign time running around telling us who we should vote for, and from us. Yet for the remainder of their term, we rarely hear from them and have little idea what they are doing on Capitol Hill.

For the past few weeks and months in Washington, there would be no one who would be more likely to be missed by those in the Senate and House than one of the leading senators, the Weigel, expressed to the party leaders of an increasing feeling of hostility and cynicism displayed by the public towards their elected officials.

How can we improve our political process in the government and improve our faith in the government process?

The solution is simple: Permit the major broadcasting networks to televise Congressional sessions on the average.

Televising Congress would have two major benefits. It would improve the public's trust in their elected officials. It would increase their awareness of the legislative processes and how they lead to law-making. It would also make the law-making process more visible to the leadership of the legislators and the public. Televising Congress is the answer.

Campus officers enforce animal control

By WANDA LAMONTAGNE

It's a scene you see every day: in front of the student union, two campus officers talk to a group of of students and animals. The officers, who are not named, are part of a growing trend on college campuses across the country to enforce animal control policies.

The main thing is that people don't think it's going to happen, but it does. New Cal Poly says Bruce Sidney and other campus officers are working to keep the campus safe for everyone. Sidney said that last year while the campus was closed, he never saw her dog again.

Sidney said she has a good feeling about being taken by those who own the roaming dogs of purloining. He has as an example, a dog that runs loose on this campus and refuses to go inside the buildings. Sidney said the dog was supposed to be on a leash, but Sidney does not want to go near her. Sidney is paid by the state of California to walk around the campus two hours every day, Monday through Friday. Sidney is working for a teaching position and is not sure she will stay longer.

Sidney is the last of five Winter quarter presentations on "The Psychosocial Aspects of Animal Control on Campus." The lecture is sponsored by the School of Animal and Human Sciences.

Prof. to speak on technology
A fun in Chapala native and political science major, the University of California, will lecture Thursday about the future of technology and the role of women in society. "Women in Technology: A Look at the Future," a series of lectures by male and female students, will be held in Room 125 of the University Center.

Art show needs judges
Judge for "Craftsman," a special fair and competition of craftsman, are still needed.

The judge must be an artist who has been part of the art world for at least 10 years.

Music faculty recital
The Cal Poly Music Department will present an evening of music, dance, and theater at 8 p.m. today. The program will feature works by Ludwig van Beethoven, a solo for double bass and piano by Henry Koepp, a solo for piano by Robert Schumann, and a trio for piano and bass by W.A. Mozart.

Kinko's
The Kinko's store on campus offers 10% off for students and faculty. To get the discount, present your student ID at the store.
Poly wins running events at Bakersfield

Coach Steve Miller

The Mustangs took the lead from the start and never relinquished it, but the finish was not in doubt until the last moment. "We had a good race," Miller said.

The Mustangs won the 4x100 relay in 44.1 and the 4x400 relay in 3:24.1, both times being new meets records.

The Mustangs also won the 100-meter dash, the 200-meter dash, the 400-meter dash, the 800-meter run, the 1,600-meter run, the 3,200-meter run, and the pentathlon.

The Mustangs' success in the relays was due to the team's depth and speed. "We had a lot of fast runners," Miller said. "They were able to work together and push each other to the finish line.

Volleyball team hosts Loyola

With another easy win under its belt, the Cal Poly women's volleyball team is now 8-2 for the season. The Mustangs swept Loyola Marymount in a non-conference match in the Cal Poly Gym. The game was over in three sets, 25-12, 25-10, 25-14.

Coach Nick Wilson had only a few goals for his team going into the match, as he was still working on and trying to adjust his team's strategies to the new NCAA Division I Western Regional format.

In the first set, Wilson didn't want his team to lose the opening game, as he felt it was crucial to putting the first set on the scoreboard. "We have to put the first set on the scoreboard," Wilson said. "We have to win the first set in the Western Regional format.

The Mustangs were able to achieve their goal and win the first set, 25-12. Then, the Mustangs went on to win the next two sets, 25-10 and 25-14, to close out the match.

The Mustangs are now 8-2 for the season and have won their last six games in a row. They will play their next home game on Wednesday, March 2, against Pacific University.
