Over 100,000 show for royal event

Between 100,000 and 104,000 persons attended the 4th annual Poly Royal Friday and Saturday, a Cal Poly official said.

The estimate is based on a vehicle count, said Don McCann, public information officer. The figure is on the conservative side, he said.

Departments and instructionally-related clubs were judged within their schools, and first place winners were announced Friday. First place winners were judged Saturday in four overall categories: sweepstakes, educational value, theme and originality.

Home Economics Department won the sweepstakes award for its display, "Sure, Sure, Learn All About It." Home Economics is in the School of Human Development and Consumer Research.

Graphic Communications' exhibit, "Making the Printed Page," was judged to be the most educational and the best example of the year's theme, "Our Peace of the Action." Graphic Communications is in the School of Communications Arts and Humanities.

Landscape Architecture's display won the award for originality. Landscape Architecture is in the School of Architecture and Environmental Design.

Other first place winners for schools within the university were:

School of Business: Accounting Club, "Accounting, Past and Present." School of Science and Math: Biology, Beta Beta Beta.
"Biology in Action." School of Engineering and Technology: Industrial Technology Society, "Where the Action Is."
School of Agriculture and Natural Resources: Crop Club, "Grading A Fruit: What Does It Take?" Division of Social Sciences: Political Action Club.
"Housing Display." For other results, see page 4. Results from other competitions will appear in later issues.

We're putting a lot of energy into the sun.

Wednesday, May 3rd will be observed around the world as "Sun Day" and PG&E is glad to be joining in. At Sun Day events have been held in 14 countries as inspired by the late energy. Eight new "Sun Day" events are scheduled for this year. To participate, one can attend one of the events in person or via TV. The events are designed to educate people about the benefits of using solar energy. The activities include demonstrations, workshops, and presentations. The event is free and open to the public. For more information, contact the event organizers. The event is organized by the Solar Energy International (SEI) and supported by the California Solar Federation (CSF). The purpose of the event is to increase awareness of solar energy and its potential to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. The event is scheduled for May 3rd, 2023.
Quiet weekend for police

Police reports were quiet and uneventful, according to Orange County police officials.

Lt. Charlie Halton, of the San Luis Obispo Police Department, said there were no major incidents to report.

Lt. Halton confirmed that there were no major incidents in the area around the UCSC campus. He said there were no major incidents reported in the area around the UCSC campus.

Several students in the Garfield Arms Apartments were also reportedly asked not to hold any parties.

According to Halton, police did not report any parties at the Garfield Arms that were beyond their power, but they were enforcing several ordinances pertaining to the noise and crowd control.

When asked if the three enforcement officers were asked not to have any parties held at the Garfield Arms, Halton said police went and informed the group at the Garfield Arms that a Junior Jaycees would be necessary if they held alcohol.

Several members of the Garfield Arms confirmed this, and said the police had been very helpful.

Birthday festivities

Walt Disney's Mickey Mouse and the California Association of Future Farmers of America will celebrate his 50th birthday at Cal Poly.

The theme character and FFA representatives will put a birthday cake at a banquet in California Auditorium Sunday night. The FFA Officers will attend the festivities and participate in various events associated with the celebration.

The FFA officers will be highlighted by a lecture given by FFA state officers at 7:45 a.m. in the Aud.

Kennedy improves

Cal Poly President Robert E. Kennedy will continue a program of rest and treatment for a stroke at home for a few more days.

Ken Kivlighan, Kennedy's administrative assistant, said the president is "continuing to improve" since his release from the hospital last Thursday.

Kennedy was admitted to the hospital April 13 after suffering a stroke in his leg and a minor heart attack. He is continuing his exercises as part of his rehabilitation program at home, Kivlighan said.

Sial Sial runs-100 in 10.16, finishes 2nd

By Jim Althemass

It's hard to tell how much more the Cal Poly track team will improve. Coach Dave Miller's Mustangs have had one strong performance after another.

At last Wednesday's San Jose National Invitational, Mustangs produced a personal best, one of which was by center.
