Wrestling coach Vaughn Hitchcock resigned Monday night after 23 years of coaching at Cal Poly.

Hitchcock, a tenured full professor, has devoted his career to teaching and the physical education department.

One big reason for resigning, said Hitchcock, is the amount of paperwork and red tape required to handle the day-to-day operations of a wrestling program.

"It's more work than I can do," said Hitchcock. I've done it for 23 years, so now I just need to resign.

After coaching for 38 years, he said that the resignation would give him time to spend with his family.

Instead of two full-time jobs, I'll take one.

Vice presidential candidates

Reichel, Sweeney seek ASI position

By SUSAN EDMONSON

Two men are running for ASI vice president in next week's election: Mark Reichel and John Sweeney. The vice president serves as chair of the Student Senate.

The ASI election will take place Wednesday and Thursday next week. Five candidates are running for the Senate.

Both vice presidential candidates talked to Mustang Daily about their campaigns and their viewpoints on some of the issues facing Cal Poly students.

Reichel, a political science junior, served as vice president of the Communicative Arts and Humanities School Council and was a member of the Pre-Law Club. This year he is a member of the General Education and Breadth Committee, the Sexual Harassment Committee and the Academic Commission.

He said he hopes to have a new Instructional Evaluation Report Form created by Winter or Spring Quarter next year. "The Student Opinion Preference Form wasn't a great success two years ago when they had that," he said.

What we'd like to do is do the most professional, the most reliable survey possible so it would have the broadest acceptability on this campus and with this faculty and student body. Therefore, we've had to put a lot of effort to this. Unfortunately, we've had to take some time out to make it a better package.

Reichel said he would like to make students more informed about the possibility of a Rec Sports Facility. "I don't think it was packaged properly last time," he said. He doesn't think they understood all the ramifications of the Rec Sports Facility, the advantages and the disadvantages.

Sweeney, the dorm mayor, said the dorm was one of John Sweeney's priorities if elected vice president.

"We can improve community relations and that's a proposed Rec Sports Facility on the ballot as soon as possible. I feel that it should be built," he said. "The facilities now are grossly inadequate. We have to look down the road and plan for the future."

Sweeney, a civil engineering sophomore, serves as chair of the ASI Ad-Hoc Committee and in a meeting of the School of Science and Math School Council. He is also state secretary of the California Junior Holstein Association and a member of Los Lecheros.

Reichel said the dorm meeting was successful, and that the Student Senate plans to continue dorm meetings each quarter. More than 100 dorm residents attended the meeting.

"I hope it encouraged them to at least find out about student issues in this country, despite what we know that's involved and maybe get a little bit better voter turnout," he said.

The budget, tax reform and foreign policy will be the key issues for Congress during the next few months, Congressman Leon Panetta, Democrat from California, told a political science class Tuesday afternoon. Panetta spoke to Dr. David George's American and Californian Government class. About 50 students attended, with several standing in the doorway to listen in.

The main problem with the budget is controlling the deficit. Panetta said. "Deficit spending could reach $300 billion by the end of the next three years. If they continue to escalate it the way they are, we expect by 1989 that the federal debt will be about $400 billion. Every taxpayer dollar just on interest, he said. With almost all of the tax dollars paying for interest there, there will be a great number of questions that will have to be asked about priorities. Panetta said that while the issue is not whether we spend more on Social Security or VA medical, the issue in 1989 could be which to stop.

There are only three ways to deal with the deficit. Panetta said. The first is to control defense spending, which uses 30 percent of the $920 billion national budget.

The second way is to control the growth of entitlements like Social Security, agricultural programs, Medicare and for the poor. Panetta said that about 46 percent of the budget is spent on these programs. The third way is to raise taxes to meet expenditures. All three of these have to be addressed, he said.

Because the Reagan administration is opposed to cutting military spending or raising taxes, and the Democrats don't want to cut entitlements, he said that coming to a budget agreement will be difficult.

Panetta said that Congress is concerned with reforming the tax system. He said that with the rising prices over the years, tax laws have turned into "a jungle of loopholes. Everybody likes a tax reform until you discover that your favorite deduction is being eliminated," he said. He added that there is so much special interest opposition to each suggested tax reform changes could be made and waved. Policy, both in the areas of defense and Central America, will also be a major issue in Congress, Panetta said.

Over half of the defense budget is spent on research and procurement of weapons. "It's a matter of life and death," he said. Please see PANETTA, Page 3

Panetta also talks downtown

By THOMAS WILLIAMS

Before speaking at Cal Poly Tuesday, Congressman Leon Panetta stopped at a luncheon at Sebastian's Restaurant.

Panetta addressed an audience of about 50 people on several issues including natural resources, farm debt, offshore drilling, the national budget, tax reform and foreign policy.

He said that he doesn't think it's necessary to cut down on growth and progress, but that what we still have needs to be protected.

The coastline is the most attractive area of the county — maybe the world, he said. "Big Sur and the Pismo Beach area are the same as Yellowstone and Yosemite. Just as far as I'm concerned and I'll be damned if they're going to put oil rigs off the coast of Big Sur." The audience applauded most of Panetta's statements and was given a chance to ask questions following his presentation.

One question concerned the issue of medical care to which Panetta replied, "You will not see any changes in existing health care programs. There will be limits imposed on fees, though.

Other questions concerned hospitals, use fees and sewage disposal.

The luncheon had to be cut short because of time constraints. Panetta ended the meeting by encouraging people to work together and insisting that individuals can make a difference.

"Nobody said a democracy would be easy," he said.
NY Times reporter to speak tonight

A reporter for the New York Times who served as a foreign correspondent in El Salvador will speak Thursday, April 11 at 8 p.m. in Chumash Auditorium.

Raymond Bonner was one of the first American journalists to report from behind the guerrilla lines in El Salvador. As a correspondent in El Salvador, he was one of the few reporters with the courage to go out with the guerrillas, or enough guts to stand up to the U.S. Government.

Bonner won awards and praise from his colleagues, but received harsh criticism from officials in Washington.

He is considered by fellow journalists as one of the few reporters with the courage to go out with the guerrillas, or enough guts to stand up to the U.S. Government.

Bonner has served as a foreign correspondent for the New York Times. He served as a correspondent in El Salvador for nearly four years and has been covering the U.S.-sponsored Contras for several years.

The rest of the budget is spent on maintaining and personnel. He said that the only way to keep spending down is to limit research and procurement.

Bonner has been an influential voice in the U.S. policy toward El Salvador, particularly the Carter and Reagan administrations.

The honor is awarded annually to authors who most faithfully reflect concerns for justice, equality and free democracy.

In addition to his work for the New York Times, Bonner has reported from Latin America for Newsweek, the Washington Post and the Wall Street Journal.

Advance tickets are $2.50 for students and senior citizens, and $3.50 for the general public. They can be purchased at Cheap Thrills, Bochco Records and the University Union ticket office.

Accident may cost Poly student’s arm

By THOMAS WILLIAMS

A Cal Poly student crashed his motorcycle into a telephone pole early Monday evening and is in danger of losing his arm, a hospital spokesman announced yesterday.

Samuel Morton Smith, a 24-year-old metallurgical engineering sophomore, was riding his 1983 motorcycle east on Montana Drive in Los Osos between 60 and 60 miles per hour when he skidded out of control and hit the wire, said Steve Hames of the South Bay Fire Department. Medicals on the scene said Smith suffered compound fractures to his left leg and his left arm was all but severed by the wire.

He was taken to Franklin Hospital in San Luis Obispo and immediately flown by helicopter to Franklin Hospital in San Francisco. Ruth Sobelzak, a nurse at the hospital, said Smith was in critical condition upon arrival and was in surgery until noon yesterday. She didn’t know, at this point, if doctors would be able to save his arm.

Carol Zarek, who lives near the accident scene, gave Smith a St. Jude medal and said, “He’s going to need it.”

Zarek also praised South Bay Fire Department medics for their performance and Ann Degnan, a registered nurse who was getting by and went to Smith’s aid.

Congressman Leon Panetta speaks to a crowd at Sebastian’s Restaurant Tuesday afternoon.

Lottery commission chooses games

By GREGG SCHROEDER

U.S. Senator Alan Cranston will join a panel of local residents — including a Cal Poly senior — Friday morning in San Luis Obispo to hear citizen input about the economy.

Jo Kuney, Northern California field representative for the senator, said Cranston will be at City Hall, 990 Palm Street, from 8:45 to 11:30 a.m. The public is invited to attend and participate.

Kuney said a "cross-section" of San Luis Obispo residents has been invited to sit on the panel with Cranston for the open discussion. The panel, composed of 12 local residents, includes Jeff Colombini, a Cal Poly agriculture and cultural management student.

San Luis Obispo is just one of a number of stops for Cranston as part of a fact-finding tour throughout the state as he seeks input from state residents on tax simplification. Kuney said other cities the senator has visited this week include Bakersfield, Burbank, Downey and Fairfield.

"He wants to find out what average Californians are feeling," Kuney said, adding that the senator has received "good input" at his other community discussions.

Lottery-supply corporations throughout the nation generally advise beginning with instant games, since they can be swiftly implemented, then adding the more complicated games as interest in the initial offering wanes.

The more elaborate games include:

- Lotto, a centuries-old Italian lottery in which gamblers select a group of numbers from a larger field, such as six from a field of 40 numbers. A drawing is held to pick the winning numbers. If that combination is not chosen by any player, the purse is added to the next game and the jackpot builds.
- Numbers games, in which bettors choose a group of numbers, say three or four, that are then compared with a winning number drawn daily, biweekly or weekly.

- Parimutuel, in which players holding the winning numbers share equally in the prize that is determined by the amount of the bet minus expenses and profit.

Any of the games are called "on-line" if they are played through a sales outlet's computer terminal directly linked to a central computer.

Thursday, during the second day of a two-day session, the Lottery Commission is scheduled to hear informational presentations from telecommunications companies interested in providing the links between computers.

Lottery-supply corporations have suggested that the state's extensive microwave communications network could be used in the lottery.

Vista Grande: at night, \textit{SLO}'s newest pizzeria

NANCY GREVES

It isn’t often that the Foundation embarks on a new business venture, but during Winter Quarter Vista Grande Cafeteria took on the look of a take-out pizza stop. Under the approval of Ed Sweeney, manager of Food Services, several student employees from the dining facility are at work preparing pizzas for the public.

Target consumers are the on-campus residents looking for a pizza at a reasonable price and quality.

Orders are taken seven days a week at Vista Grande, where the pizza is made by students between 5 and 10 p.m. each evening on the pizza shift, according to pizza cook Tony Kelly. The idea for such an enterprise was not new, said Sweeney. Three years ago members of the Foundation visited food service areas at UC Davis, UC Berkeley and State Sacramento, all of which have operated successful pizza projects.

By the time, remodeling of on-campus food facilities was still in action and the idea was set aside for two years. Planning for the project began about a year ago, said Sweeney.

During Fall Quarter, research was conducted on the project. The Foundation decided pizza production was feasible with the existing equipment, a few minor rearrangements, and with little additional cost, explained Sweeney. During Winter Quarter the operation began.

“We have a bare bones operation now that we can add to as needed,” said Sweeney. “We’re still refining constantly.” The operation recently added free delivery.

Vista Grande uses all natural ingredients. Although Sweeney estimates that 85 percent of the orders are cheese, pepperoni, or sausage, such extras as olives, mushrooms, pineapple and artichoke hearts are available and combined on request.

Five to 15 pizzas are currently sold each night compared with desired sales of eight to ten pizzas, said Sweeney. About $400 a week is needed to cover the initial investment and begin a profit for the Foundation, he added.

The operation is only encountering one major problem, Sweeney said. “Few students realize Vista Grande is offering such a service since it lacks the dominating factors of pizza parlors such as visibility and atmosphere.”

Jazz fusion artist Chick Corea is scheduled to perform with his Electric Band in the Main Gym April 25 at 8 p.m. Corea is the winner of many music awards including a Grammy in 1978 for the Best Jazz Instrumental Group.

Norwegian horn virtuoso to play tomorrow night

Norwegian horn virtuoso, Frodfrlai Ree Wekre announced Veeek-Rayi) will perform tomorrow night, April 12th, at 8:00 p.m., in the Cal Poly Theatre as the third in a series of four concerts of the Music Department's Quintessence series.

The co-principal horn of the Oslo Philharmonic since 1945, Wekre is considered by many to be the finest horn player in the world today.

Wekre has performed in solo appearances with such orchestras as the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria, which appeared recently in San Luis Obispo, and in chamber music performances at Carnegie Recital Hall in New York City.

Born in Oslo, Norway, Wekre began her music studies at the age of four, first on piano, then on violin, and turning to horn when she was 17. She was trained in both Norway and Russia, yet was influenced by American styles while teaching in the United States. She has a playing style that incorporates the three influences.

The result is a technical facility that has inspired compositions to be written especially for her. As a music critic in Greenville, North Carolina, put it, "Wow! Can that lady play the horn!"

Wekre will perform Mozart's Concert Rondo — KV 371, and Henri Tansui's Danse Profaine and Chant Corse among six others to complete the two hour performance.

Accompanying her during her performance will be Antoninette Kruinger - Perry. Reserved tickets for the concert are $6 for the public and $4 for students. They may be purchased in the University Union Ticket Office on campus, at Cheap Thrills and Boo Boo Records in San Luis Obispo and at Cheap Thrills in Atascadero.

A respected teacher, Wekre spent two years on leave of absence from Oslo orchestra in Norway, teaching at California State University, Northridge, and California Institute of the Arts in Valencia.

French horn players wishing to attend the workshop should bring their instruments if they desire personal instruction. Other brass players are also invited to attend.

The workshop presentation by Wekre will be free of charge and held in Room 216 of the university's H.F. Davidson Music Center.

Jazz fusion artist Chick Corea scheduled for Poly Royal show

Chick Corea, jazz musician, will perform with his Electric Band in the Cal Poly Main Gym on Thursday, April 25 — the evening before the Poly Royal weekend. The opening act, as yet unnamed, will begin at 8:00 p.m.

The ASI Concerts Committee, recently criticized for few concert presentations, is sponsoring the award winning jazz pianist and composer. Advance ticket prices are $9.75 for students, and $11.75 for the public.

Corea, who has played with such jazz greats as Miles Davis, Herbie Mann, and Stan Getz, has won over 50 awards from his peers, his listeners, and the music industry. He received a Grammy for Best Jazz Instrumental Group in 1978 and in 1980 he was awarded both the Jazz Album of the Year and the Top Electric Pianist award.

Though Corea has been influenced by the jazz greats, he also is exploring another stream — classical music. His compositions and performances show a wide breadth of influence from Beethoven, Bartok and Stravinsky.

Though Corea doesn’t like to label himself as performing a particular type of music, he is known as a proponent of what is called “fusion” music — a blend of jazz and rock.

He was commissioned in 1982 by the Lincoln Center Philharmonic Chamber Society to compose a work for an arts festival put on by the City of Miami. The result was his Septet for Winds, Strings and Piano— It was the opening presentation for the televised “Live from Lincoln Center” series in 1983.

Influenced by his trumpeter and bassist father, Corea began playing the piano when he was four in Chelsea, Massachusetts. He studied music at Columbia University and Julliard School of Music for short periods of time. He left them both because, as one critic wrote, “The music he wanted to play couldn’t be taught in school.”

After refining his piano technique and performing with traditional jazz orchestras, he began composing. Upon the advice of one of the jazz greats, he switched to the electric piano.

Tickets for the concert can be purchased at all locations of Cheap Thrills and Boo Boo Records, and the University Union Ticket Office on campus. Ticket prices will be $1 more at the door.

Norwegian horn virtuoso Froydis Ree Wekre will perform tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Cal Poly Theatre. She appeared recently with the Mozarteum Orchestra of Salzburg, Austria when they performed in San Luis Obispo.
Gorbachev meets with American congressmen

The world situation is "dangerous "ice age." The time is such now that people shaping the policy of the two countries should by all means converse with one another. The world situation is disquieting, even dangerous, and a kind of ice age is being observed in relations between the U.S.S.R. and the United States. At least this was so until the most recent time."

House speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told a news conference on the meeting covered arms control, human rights, trade, regional issues and cultural exchange. "From our talks, it is apparent that real opportunities for expanded trade and cultural contacts exist,"

Gorbachev received O'Neill, a Democrat from Massachusetts, House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois, Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., and Silvio Conte, R-Mass. They met in the Communist Party chief's private quarters on the third floor of the huge yellow office building just inside the Kremlin wall adjacent to Red Square. The four are the senior members of a 13-man House delegation visiting the Soviet Union.

O'Neill said the meeting lasted three hours and 45 minutes, which is nearly double the time Kremlin visitors usually get. Its length underscored the emphasis the new leadership is putting on U.S.-Soviet relations.

Reagan wants to 'meet' Gorbachev before summit

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — In an abrupt shift, the White House said Wednesday that President Reagan is ready now for a get-acquainted "meeting" with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, but that a problem-solving "summit" would require more preparation and must offer the promise of success.

For weeks, top administration officials have used the terms "summit" and "meeting" interchangeably. Robert C. McFarlane, Reagan's national security adviser, sought to put an end to that practice as he briefed reporters at a hotel 25 miles from the vacationing president's ranch.

The administration's sudden insistence on a distinction between the two terms clearly was an attempt to dampen expectations of real improvement in U.S.-Soviet relations flowing from a Reagan-Gorbachev conference.

Reading a written statement before television cameras, McFarlane said: "The president has stressed that he would welcome a meeting with the general secretary. We would also welcome a summit at the proper time and as the culmination of an extended dialogue which has produced tangible accomplishments."

"There is no predicting how this process could take," he said. "It could be this year." McFarlane said Reagan was ready for a get-acquainted meeting with Gorbachev on short notice but played down the likelihood that would occur in the near future.

The national security adviser said, "The president believes that the climate of the relationship is such as to justify a meeting now and for the foreseeable future, absent any dramatic change in Soviet attitudes." He said there would not have to be a specific agenda for a meeting.

KCPR's live set lets local bands gain exposure

By MARC MEREDITH

Dan Harrison, lead singer for the Santa Maria band Assault, screamed into the microphone, jumped into the air and dashed across the floor. His leather gloved hand was balled into a fist as he held it above his shortly cropped hair, his whole body tense, sweaty and trembling.

Does this sound like a radical fraternity party, or maybe a punk concert at the Vets Hall where the room smells of beer and everyone is wearing clothes you've only seen in horror flicks?

Sorry to disappoint you party fanatics, but it's only KCPR demonstrating its sound alternative philosophy in a new way: by providing an hour on Saturday evenings when local bands can play live on the air, talk to listeners and gain recognition.

The show is called Locals Only and airs from 7 to 8 p.m. most Saturdays. Toi Phillips, a fourth year architecture student and music director for KCPR, said the show began last quarter as an effort to help Central Coast bands gain public exposure.

Phillips said the format for the show has been to bring the band in about three hours in advance to set up and adjust their sound equipment for the air. The band then plays some of its material and is then brought into the studio for an informal interview during which listeners can call in and talk with the band members.

In the words of Johnson, the interview with Assault was "mayhem."

"Most bands don't want to talk," Phillips said. "They just want to play and get out. But not this band — they love to talk."

During the interview, and throughout the rest of the show, listeners kept calling to talk with the five members of Assault. The hand was more than happy to oblige, saying that they were mainly doing the show for the fun of it, but thought it was a good chance to advertise themselves.

Phillips said the only problems with the show so far have been getting good sound from the variety of sound systems the bands have and providing enough room for them to play. Assault was using a simple stereo amplifier for power because it didn't have access to a public address system.

KCPR, besides allowing the bands to play live, uses a video camera to tape the show. "That way," Phillips said, "we have a copy for ourselves and if the band is interested they can purchase a copy for their uses.

Saturday, April 13 the show will feature the band Ill Repute, another punk band. The Stingrays will play April 20.

KCPR listeners get a chance to hear local bands perform live on the program "Locals Only," in addition to calling and talking with the band members.

KANSAS CITY. Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Royals announced Wednesday that relief pitcher Dan Quisenberry and center fielder Willie Wilson have signed contracts that should hold them to the Royals for the rest of their careers.

"These lifetime contracts are keeping with our philosophy of recognizing the achievements of players who excel in our organization," said Avvis Fogelman, the team's co-owner who conducted the negotiations with the two all-stars.

Terms were not announced, but earlier published reports indicated packages being offered to Wilson and Quisenberry could pay them each $40 million over a 40-year period.

The Royals signed third baseman George Brett to what was described as a lifetime contract last year for a reported $1.8 million per year. The Royals have been in the minority with two lifetime contracts with second baseman Frank White. White, the oldest of the four players at 34, said last month, however, that he was unhappy with the club's offer.

"If the Royals want me to continue here, I think it's possible," Wilson said after a final practice session Wednesday over the rolling hills and extremely fast greens of Augusta National. "I didn't have a good West Coast. But I've had two good streets.

"I hit the ball well today. I'm putting well. Overall, I'm ready to win."

Although far from an overwhelming choice, Watson's record generally — and in this event in particular — says he's the man to beat in the 46th Masters, which begins Thursday.

"I like my chances," said Watson, 35. "I believe Watson's strong suits. He has Watson's strong suits. He has a strong overall career average of 73 and runs through 1989 with option years through 1995.

Fogelman said the three lifetime contracts reflect the desires of the Royals, including majority owner Ewing Kauffman, to make a commitment to the team's fans and the fans and how vital it is to our success," Fogelman said in a prepared statement.

Water has what it takes to go distance at Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The time is now. The Masters is at hand. And Tom Watson, who has a history of rising to the occasion in golf's major events, is ready.

"I've had a couple of chances," Watson said after a final practice session Wednesday over the rolling hills and extremely fast greens of Augusta National. "I didn't have a good West Coast. But I've had two good streets.

"I hit the ball well today. I'm putting well. Overall, I'm ready to win."

"All have the length, all can putt. Fuzzy is playing well right now. And Seve has won already this year," Watson said.

Noriman, however, has had an indifferent start and was forced to cut short his practice time for an injury. "My doctor said I have the Hong Kong virus," Norman said. "I should be fine for next week.

"I'm a streak player," he said. As to his chances this week, he shrugged. "If the putts drop. Who knows? Maybe.

Next home game will have special chicken visitor

By JANET HASEROT

Cal Poly scored six runs in the first inning Tuesday at home, but from there on out it was all Cal Poly Pomona.

The Broncos scored one in their half of the first on a solo home run. A double and single added another in the third, but the big blow wasn't until the sixth.

In that inning, with the bases loaded Marty Rivera hit a grand slam home run on a 1-0 pitch off reliever Steve Burch.

Pomona third baseman Mike Patterson, who had doubled in the third, ended the scoring by hitting a solo home run off Burch.

The Mustangs are 21-16 and coach Steve McFarland said the team can't do all its work in one inning.

"If you don't score in the last eight innings," he said, "you are not going to win.

"We didn't do anything to help ourselves offensively. People are inconsistent. You have to forget about what the score is and go after people." The Mustangs scored six in the first inning on six hits. Center fielder Mark Gambardella, left fielder Jason Maas and Bob Wright had singles in the inning. Doubles were hit by Dom Constantino and Harvey Martinez.

Gambardella went 3-for-5 and Martinez was 2-for-4 on the day. Constantino and Waltz both had two RBI's.

Wednesday's game against Pomona left the Mustangs with a 6-5 loss. Third baseman Bob Wright's fifth inning home run brought the team to five runs, but it wasn't enough to beat the top in the eighth inning as outfielder Manes doubled. Jeff Edwards earned the winning RBI with a single.

The Mustangs travel to Pomona Friday and Saturday for three games. The next home games will be April 26 and 27 against UC-Riverside, the beginning of Poly Royal weekend. Coach Steve McFarland is excited about Friday's game as the San Diego chicken will be coming for the celebration.
