Pell Grant recipients required to be drug-free

Students must sign certification to receive funds

By Neil Farrell

Cal Poly students set to receive Pell Grants for the 1989-90 school year are being required to sign a certificate stating they will not be involved with any controlled substances for the duration of the grant, according to an official in the Financial Aid Office. Students convicted of drug offenses to the Department of Education. Students convicted of drug violation could face federal charges.

"If a student does participate in drug use...," Louis, said, "If reasonable person would be convinced of a drug offense, and convicted in the key word, during the period of the grant, the misclassification must be reported in accordance of the law. It would be considered fraud.

"What they basically said is..." Metzger, said. "But sometimes they are not aware of the water problems facing the community, especially if they are from another town," she added.

Biochemist freshman Julie Kendall agreed. Kendall lives in Valencia Apartments and said she notices "a lot of waste..." Metzger said. "But sometimes they are not aware of the water problems facing the community, especially if they are from another town," she added.

For apartments, Metzger described the following water reduction rates:

- During summer (April-October), apartment dwellers must reduce water usage by 15 percent over the 1987 base year consumption rate.
- During winter (November-February), a 10 percent reduction must be shown. For single family units, the summer and winter are 30 percent and 10 percent, respectively.

Metzger said summer figures are higher because that is typically when landscaping and higher water use occurs. She added that conservation laws will be enforced by the San Luis Obispo Drought Patrol, which will investigate calls of water abuse in the city. A log will be kept, and penalties will follow.

A warning will be issued the first time someone is caught flagrantly wasting water, said Metzger. The second time, the person could be fined from $100 to $500, depending on the severity of the situation. Should water waste persist, a flow restrictor could be placed on the customer's water line, Metzger said.

Student apartment dwellings are no exception to the water restriction rules. Metzger said, "What they basically said is..." Metzger, said. "But sometimes they are not aware of the water problems facing the community, especially if they are from another town," she added.

"Some people here don't feel the water shortage affects them because they don't pay for water..." Metzger said. "They turn on the faucet and water comes out, so they think there's no shortage," she added.

Kendall said the fine and warning system set up to discourage excessive water use is "the only reasonable solution to make people aware."

City: Apartment dwellers also must save water or face fines

By Doug DiFranco

There may be a general attitude among San Luis Obispo apartment dwellers that the water shortage and conservation methods do not apply to them. However, said one city official, apartment dwellers and other multi-family units are being asked to conform to the new regulations.

Tina Metzger, San Luis Obispo water conservation coordinator, said the water reduction rates do apply to apartment dwellers, and flagrant misuse of water will result in fines and restriction of water services.

Since it is difficult to detect who is wasting water in large multi-family units such as apartment buildings, the city has no exception to the water conservation laws. Apartment dwellers must save water or face fines.

"What they basically said is..." Metzger, said. "But sometimes they are not aware of the water problems facing the community, especially if they are from another town," she added.

City disregards student impact

by Glenn Reeu

Recently, the San Luis Obispo City Council re­quested that Cal Poly share some of its water with the city. On the surface, the city’s request seems a reasonable response to its water crisis because students constitute a large fraction of city water users, they help the city through its short­age. Underlying its request, however, is an attitude that seems to pervade the local government. There are two kinds of people in San Luis Obispo: wholesome, taxpaying, voting San Luis Obispoans and the somewhat less-desirable students. The city seems to view students as essentially a transient band of hoodlums pining to rap their way to fair and away. It is students, in fact, who furnish San Luis Obispo with the cornerstones of its economic prosperity and stability and provide the prestige of being associated with a major university. It is also important that students who pay rent in San Luis Obispo also pay taxes and have absolutely no weaker or fewer rights than any other citizen. While students as individuals may have spoken up as late as six years here, the presence of students in San Luis Obispo must be thought of as a very permanent resource. The interests of everyone else must also be thought of in this line of reasoning.

Thus, it is not surprising to see a written off after Royal Pol is considerably more than coincidental — both because of the irony of the Pol­ly Royal theme and because of the paradox that the Royal Pol weekend embodies for the city. Is it worthwhile? Mr. Bostrom is when the city’s us vs. them mentality flares. This is the time of year when the city concentrates its efforts on citizens at risk, those in the border and whoes loudly about the intrusion of the borders, by the white people’s packings and restaurants and the swarm of downtown shoppers. Royal Pol represents, to the San Luis Obispo police, an opportunity to crack down on students who may have too good a time. But I’d like to ask: Are these kids in black my movie stars or our oppressors? I believe they are the lat­ers. They cracked last year’s Royal Pol parties, bearing clubs and helmets. They came without in­vitation to SAE’s Red Party, and they rioted to prevent the Dead Kennedys from being heard.

Last year, when faced with similar oppres­sion, the students at UCSB rioted in a situation we probably would have simply allowed to pass. I don’t believe we are only different from those UCSB students, but I believe we suffer from a faulty self-perception that we are second class citizens, and the rights of those who live here full time outweigh our own. Even things like Good Neighbor Day at both campuses are given by stu­dents that they do not consider themselves to be part of the greater community. It is this self­perception that we must change.

The council would have all students live on cam­pus because we demand for housing raises rents. The council would have all fraternities and sororities live miles from campus disregarding that the airport is beyond convenient walking distance to school. The council would have Cal Poly sur­renders its water to the city. The city projects students as illegitimate customers of the water department despite paying the same rates as every other citizen.

The theme of the past weekend was “Unity and Prud­ence.” Although permanent residents of San Luis Obispo may have deeper roots here than must stu­dents, the presence of students through the city will far outlive them. For these future students, and also for ourselves, we must work to protect our rights against the process of erosion the city propagates.

School of Business offers minor

It's essential for an engineer who aspires to be in a business position to know the basic aspects of it.

— Brian Suffredini, aeronautical engineering junior

Poly bridges, canoes cross winning line

By Laura Fleischer

A civil engineering senior's business professor, 40 percent of the students interviewed wanted a minor. The minor actually started last quarter, said Ben Hensel, adviser to the School of Business. "After many years we can now say we finally have one," Hensel said.

Admission to the minor in business administration is on a competitive basis due to the great interest shown by the students. "This program is designed for someone not going into the business field and should give the student an introduction to the common body of business," said Kenneth Riener, the associate dean of the School of Business.

The following courses should be completed with a specific grade to receive top priority to apply for the minor: Math 221 or equivalent, Statistics 251 and 252, Business 207, Accounting 211 or 221, and Economics 221 and 222. Students will be ranked based on grades from those courses and their overall grade point average.

Students from other majors said they think it's a good idea that has been long overdue. Engineering majors are specifically targeted because they need management skills.

"What we're doing in the world today is that we're taking good engineers and making them business managers," said junior Brian Suffredini, an aeronautical engineering major. "It's essential for an engineer who aspires to be in a business position to know the basics of it.

"I may consider it for next fall," said sophomore Steve Simons, a biological science major. "Business and science are totally different, but it will round out my education."

The School of Business has a faculty policy limiting the number of minors to 25 percent of graduating seniors, or about 75 to 100 per year. Enrollment in the School of Business last fall was about 1800 according to Associate Dean Riener.

Students must maintain a 2.0 GPA in the minor courses once admitted or be subject to dismissal from the minor.

Applications for the minor will be accepted during the fourth week of each quarter. For further information and to pick up an application, students should contact Ben Hensel in Room 110 of the Business Administration and Education Building.

... We beat some very important schools and that brings recognition to Cal Poly. Maybe they'll look a little more seriously at how good our civil engineering program is here.

cond and third-place teams three Chapman batters. Michelle added an insurance run in the eighth to hold off the Eagles. The win gave winning pitcher Greg Paxton a 6-1 record in the regionals. In Saturday's action, the Mustangs scored two runs in the bottom half of the eighth to take control of the game. The Eagles rallied back in the top of the ninth to make the game close at 5-4, but the Mustangs scored three runs of their own in the bottom half of the ninth to win. The Mustangs are in first place by one game with five league games yet to play. The final three game series with second place Cal Poly Pomona may decide who gets the playoff berth.

Mustangs hold on to first

By John Kesecker

Cal Poly took the first two games of a three-game series in exciting fashion against the Cal State Loma Linda Lions. In Friday's 8-5 win, the Mustangs had to hold off an Eagle surge in the late innings to take the ballgame. "We were down early in the ballgame, came back to take the lead and held them off in the end," said Cal Poly baseball coach Steve McFarland.

Polley scored four runs in the sixth with the help of Ron Crow and Doug Nece, who hit back-to-back triples. The Mustangs

Records fall at invitational

By Neil Farrell

The Poly Royal Invitational track meet saw several personal records set for the Mustang's men's and women's squads. Women's team coach Lance Harrer described the meet as fantastic as his team recorded six event first place finishes in nine events. The men's team finished first in six events.

The Poly Royal meet was a non-scoring meet intended to give participants a chance to qualify for the national meet. The teams which participated were UC Davis, Sonoma State, UC Santa Barbara and Cal State Bakersfield.

The women's 1500-meter race saw five Cal Poly runners register national qualifying times and personal best times. Sherri Monk won the race in a time of 4:51.24, and finishing second was Noreen Dehettencourt with a time of 4:54.82. The team took six of the top eight spots in the race, with Stephanie Barrett and Kristina Hand finishing fourth and fifth and Kristina Hand and Kris Kochel finishing in the seventh and eighth spots. All but Kochel qualified for nationals in the race.

Long jumper Vicki Allegri qualified for the nationals by soaring 19 feet 4 and one-fourth inches. That mark was a personal best for Allegri, improving upon her previous mark by 13 inches. Cal Poly had an impressive meet, taking first in the 100-meter-high hurdles with a time of 14.64 and a second in the 100-meter dash with a time of 12.47. Kim Shepard finished third behind Polley in the 100-meter with a time of 12.60 and second in the 200-meter in 25.37.

Buffy Sexton qualified for the nationals in the javelin with a throw of 150 feet, improving her previous high mark by 12 feet. There were, however, disappointments for the women's team.

Two women athletes narrowly qualified for the nationals in the javelin, Harter said. Aaron Arkin missed qualifying in the 800-meter race by one-hundredth of a second. On the men's side, highlights of the meet were a personal record in the 1500-meters for Erik Axtell with a time of 3:53.58. Two Cal Poly pole vaulters went over 17 feet 6 inches to qualify for the nationals. Steve Horvath won the event with Kevin Rankin finishing second. It was the second consecutive week that Rankin and Horvath cleared 17 feet. They both jumped 17 feet at the Mt. Sac meet last weekend.

Brent Warren won the javelin with a toss of 65.81 meters, with Cal Poly alumni Tom Silva finishing second at 63.67 meters.

Steve Neuhaum ran away with the 5,000-meter race with a time of 14:53.3 and the Cal Poly "A" relay team took the 1600-meter race with a time of 3:15.45. The Mustangs dominated the 400-meter intermediate hurdles, taking the top five spots. Mike King won the race with a time of 52.97.

The men's and women's teams will next travel to Modesto for the S & W Invitational, and in two weeks will be back at Cal Poly to compete in the conference championships.

The Cal Poly Logging Team traveled to Moscow (Idaho, that is) last week for the 50th Annual Association of Western Forestry Championships hosted by the University of Idaho.

Poly finished eighth in a field of 16 schools, including teams from as far away as Canada and Alaska.

Softball sweeps Chapman

Staff Writer

By Michael J. Levy

A doubleheader sweep over Chapman at home on Saturday enabled the Cal Poly softball team to seal up second place in the CCAA. The wins should advance them to the playoffs.

Only the conference winner is assured of making the NCAA Western Regionals, but the second and third-place teams usually get at-large bids.

The Mustangs pitchers did not allow a run in either game, winning the games 1-0 and 4-0.

Lisa Johnson pitched a complete game in the opener, giving up just four hits and striking out three Chapman batters. Michelle Sorci also pitched a complete game in the nightcap, giving up three hits while striking out one.

Leading the Mustang offense was second baseman Cheryl Lutes. She went 4-for-5 on the day and scored three times. The doubleheader marked the last home games for Ellen Frank, who has been split time between shortstop and second base. Frank, who has been splitting time between shortstop and second base, collected three RBIs on the day, including the game-winner in the opener.

The Lady Mustangs will be in the Sacramento State Tournament this weekend, before going to the regionals on May 13-14. The regionals location not be announced until next week.
Cholesterol study raises questions about Poly’s fitness

By Kathryn Hulls

A report that recently revealed school children have high cholesterol levels raises concerns at Cal Poly about its students’ levels. The Cal Poly Pomona study revealed that 37 percent of elementary school children had dangerous levels of cholesterol and that three-fourths of the students were obese due to poor nutrition and insufficient daily exercise.

Although high levels of cholesterol are attributed to diet and lack of physical exercise, it may also be genetic. On this campus, some students with high cholesterol know that their siblings and parents have high cholesterol, said Dr. James Nash, Cal Poly director of student health services.

Normal cholesterol levels are 200 milligrams per decaliter of blood (deciliter now replaces milliliter), he said. “It is surprising how low some are on this campus.”

In order to control cholesterol levels, Nash advised, be leary of large amounts of dairy products, fatty meats, butter and margarine, be physically active, which includes a good aerobic exercise for at least 45 minutes three times per week. And alcohol tends to elevate cholesterol levels, he said.

“H e’s hard to control,” he said.

Recently, the Health Center purchased a new blood analysis machine for testing cholesterol levels, high density lipoproteins and triglycerides.

“It is the newest version and measures the levels directly,” Nash said.

“They’ve been testing the machine, and they are still working with it.”

There are a variety of programs at the Health Center, such as diet analysis and group discussions, that help people with high cholesterol levels, he said.

In late January, Assemblymen Charles M. Calderon, Charles Bader and Tom Hayden announced a campaign to promote health and fitness in school children.

The programs include the development of new statewide standards for health and fitness, education specialists in schools to train teachers and provide direct physical education instruction.

The program would also include cholesterol testing in children grades five through 12 and providing the parents with the results of their children’s tests.

Parents of children with cholesterol levels higher than 200 mg/dl would be advised to consult their physician to confirm the test and receive dietary counseling.

“Heart disease begins in childhood,” the legislators said.

“A 10-year-old child with a cholesterol level of near 200 mg/dl is a time bomb that can explode in adulthood.”

PAY RAISE

From page 1 letter to the CSU stating the 4.7 percent increase in pay ($33 million) would be implemented June 1, (when other state employees receive raises), but that would be all.

In March, however, the CSU said the faculty would not receive a pay raise unless their union (CFA) would agree to drop all political and legal activities aimed at retrieving the $6.6 million in question.

CFA responded by filing an unfair labor charge against CSU for attempting to force the union to give up its legal rights to the $6.6 million in order to get the raise. CFA, in filing for impasse on negotiations, had a state mediator appointed by the Public Employment Relations Board.

In an April 20 meeting with state mediator William Haney, CSU withdrew its demand that CFA give up its legal right to try to regain the $6.6 million. CFA and CSU then reached a tentative agreement: implement the raise June 1 with the possibility of recovering the $6.6 million in question.

If the dispute is not officially settled by the end of June, the funds will be returned to the state.

“No one wanted to take away the faculty’s salary increase,” said Jack Samit, CSU officer of the employer relations office.

“There is a difference of opinion,” Samit said, remarking that was all he could say since the matter was still being considered before several committees. Other officers at CSU headquarters were either unavailable or had no comment.

WHY DO MORE CALIFORNIA STUDENTS COME TO US FOR STUDENT LOANS?

Because we do more than just talk about great service.

Other banks may claim to have quick service and a complete line of education loan programs. But compare their products and services to ours and you’ll see why we’re the lender more California students choose.

Service

Do you know where your student loans are? Seriously - many California banks use outside organizations to service their loans. The result - mass confusion. Where do you call with questions? Who do you send your payments to?

Marine Midland’s Educational Funding Services uses state-of-the-art, in-house processing system...eliminating any unnecessary confusion. The result - fast, professional service by a concerned and caring staff.

Loan Alternatives

One sure way to measure a bank’s commitment to education finance is to look at the number of different loan programs they offer.

Educational Funding Services offers not only the Stafford, SLS and PLUS loans...but MEDLOANS a loan program for allopathic medical students...as well as an Alternative Loan Program for families with higher incomes.

Debt Management Assistance

You hear a lot of talk about students defaulting on their student loans. But did they get anything from their bank other than overdue notices?

At EFSI, we’ll give you the tools and information you need to manage your debt, including:

• Graduated Repayment Options
• Loan Consolidation

So when you’re asked which bank you want your student loan from...choose California’s best:

Rose fans stand by their man

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose fans find it hard to believe the Cincinnati Reds manager would do anything to jeopardize his place in the game. “Everybody says, ‘Where have all the heroes gone?’ But all my heroes got shot down, and they’re trying to do the same thing to Pete,” said Willie DeLucia, who has the bat used for Rose’s final hit on display at his restaurant.

Baseball’s all-time hits leader is still a hit in his hometown. No one is pushing to change the street named for him. He still gets lusty cheers whenever he steps on the field. And media commentators have risen to his defense with each new round of reports that his baseball future is in jeopardy.

“We’re trying to do the same things PETE would do anything to do to protect him,” said Rose’s final hit on display at his restaurant.

“Even though I won the event last year, I started believing the hype about the Idaho boier. It felt great to beat him in front of his home crowd,” said McLaughlin, who is also the logging team’s coach.

Another Poly standout was axe-thrower Bernard Quinn. He took third in the event in a field of over 150 competitors.

“My hard work and long hours of practice really paid off,” said Quinn.

Boccignone took fifth place in the obstacle pole buck and Poly’s Josh Christmas finished sixth in the event, which involves balance on a suspended log and the use of a chainsaw. Boccignone also took fifth place in the dendrology (plant identification) competition.

Flathead Valley Community College from Montana won the overall team competition.

Boccignone said the logging team welcomes new members. “Having more women on the team would increase our chances of winning at the national meets.”

FEELING LIKE A ZOMBIE AFTER THE "PARTY ROYAL" WEEKEND?

Football gives week end

By Mark Ahlmenyer

After three-and-a-half weeks of practice, the Cal Poly football team got its first taste of action Saturday in the annual Green vs. Gold game. The team was divided in half for the scrimmage.

Both alumni and students showed up to catch an early glimpse of what next year’s team might look like. They saw a game where neither passing nor running was dominant.

Both squads did an impressive job. The defensive line was constantly breaking through to put pressure on the quarterback. The gold team’s defense was able to keep the green squad from getting into the end zone for the majority of the first half. In spite of the pressure, however, the quarterbacks were able to roll out a majority of the time and get the ball away.

Another factor assisting the gold team’s defense in getting to the quarterbacks was that the defensive backfields had good coverage. The majority of the passing plays were broken up by alert playing in the secondary.

Good defense did not stop the offense from giving it their best shot, however. When they couldn’t do it by air, they did it by land. The only dower was that the majority of the plays got only short yardage, causing a number of turnovers (in a scrimmage the teams are not allowed to punt, they must go through four downs before the ball gets turned over if no first down is reached). There were a couple of long plays, including one 55-yard run, that lifted the team’s spirits.

Coach Yyle Setencich seemed to be pleased with Saturday’s game. Setencich said the idea of the scrimmage was to give two complete teams a chance to play each other before more spring competition.

“I really liked the competitiveness from each side. Both teams were very competitive, and I thought they did real well,” Setencich said.

The scrimmage also gave Setencich an idea as to what needed to be worked on.

“Offensively, we need to work on protecting the passer. Defensively, we need to work on improving our blitz,” he said.

The Mustangs will have three more weeks of practice before their next scrimmage.

WATER

Water saving hints:

Tina Metzger, water conservation coordinator, said students can help conserve water in their apartment houses by doing the following things:

• Don't wash cars in the apartment parking lots. It results in too much water running down into the gutter.
• Request managers to put water-saving devices, such as low-flow showerheads, on faucets throughout the apartment.
• Check the faucets and toilets for leaks, even slow ones waste an immense amount of water over long periods of time, Metzger said. Plumbers say toilets about 10 years, this is the first time it has been named the overall winner. San Diego State University took second overall, and Cal State Los Angeles came in third.
• "We were ecstatic that we won," Eubanks said. "It really took us by surprise."

This year's conference is here. The federal government has placed watching duties on the Financial Aid Office but has not provided funding, manpower or guidelines to be used in administering the program. The university will receive Pell Grant allocations.

The Drug-Free Workplace Act affects faculty and administration as well. Loftus explained that Cal Poly President Warren J. Baker will need to sign a statement certifying Cal Poly will be drug-free before the university will receive Pell Grant allocations.

Approximately 3,000 Cal Poly students receive Pell Grants every year and the financial aid office distributes $4.7 million to students. The Pell Grant program is named in honor of Claiborne Pell, Senator from Rhode Island. Pell is the Chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Education, Arts and Human Resources. Short-term scholarships, like Pell Grants, are the biggest water-wasters of all household appliances. They may be checked for leaks by placing a drop or two of food color in the toilet tank. If the color seeps into the bowl within five minutes, there is a leak. Also, putting a brick or plastic bottle full of stones in the tank helps reduce the water needed to fill it.
• When washing clothes or dishes, hold off until a full load is compiled, then wash them.
• When allowing water to heat up before a shower, place a bucket to catch the water before it drains. That water could be used to water plants around the house.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush does not share Defense Secretary Dick Cheney's view that Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev will fail in his efforts to reform the Soviet Union, a senior White House aide said Sunday.

"I think the president and Secretary of State James A. Baker III are hoping that Gorbachev's movement towards reform and restructuring the Soviet Union does succeed," Jammun said on the NBC-TV program, "Meet the Press."

"It is an opportunity to establish a relationship, continue the relationship that has begun," he said.

Referring to Cheney's prediction that Gorbachev will fail, Jammun said, "I don't think that is the president's view."

Bush, en route to New York, declined to comment directly on Cheney's comments.

Pressed for views on Gorbachev, Bush said, "We want perestroika to succeed."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shortly before the jury in the Oliver North trial wound up its eighth day of deliberation Saturday without a verdict Saturday, the judge in the case cut off direct communications with reporters covering the case.

"Hereafter, no information will emanate from my chambers," U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said in a letter to Carl Stern of NBC News who has been acting as a news media liaison with the court since the trial began.

The judge said a lawsuit filed last week by 10 news organizations for public release of a document has made the press corps a party to the case and therefore put reporters in an adversary position.

Since the trial began three months ago, a copy of most documents introduced in court have been made available to the press and news organizations banded together to reproduce them. During the jury deliberations, reporters have remained in a press room two floors above the court and relied on Stern's contact with Gesell for information about the progress of the deliberations, including notice when a verdict is reached.

For the first time since the jurors retired to consider the case, reporters were not allowed to wait on the second floor where they spend their day. Gesell refused to release the paper, a stipulation summarizing intelligence intercepts, on grounds that it "is a classified document." The intercepts, as described in court, were a step-by-step tracking of a shipment of Hawk missiles sent by Israel to Iran in 1985 with CIA assistance.

The news organizations petitioned the U.S. Court of Appeals after Gesell's refusal and that court ordered the judge to hold a hearing at which a record can be made.

For the first time since the jurors retired to consider the case, reporters were not allowed to wait on the second floor where they spend their day.

North is accused of lying to Congress to cover up his role in secretly assisting the Contras and lying to the attorney general about aspects of the diversion of funds to the Contras from the Iran arms sales. He also faces charges that he accepted a $1,800 home security system and converted $4,300 in traveler's checks from a Contra leader to his own use.

Attorney seeks gag order in slain Novato teen case

NOVATO, Calif. (AP) — The defense attorney for a man charged with slaying a 13-year-old girl said Friday he will seek a gag order to prevent officials from making public statements about the case.

"Mass publicity serves no one in the administration of justice in a small community," said public defender Paulino Duran after a gag order hearing Friday before Marin County Municipal Court Judge Alvin Taylor. Duran represents Scott Williams, 29, who is charged with the slaying of Jennifer Moore. Her partially nude and bloody body was found in a garbage bag in a cow pasture far from the Bethel Baptist Church where Williams volunteered as a church deacon and Sunday school teacher.

Duran said he will submit a written request for the gag order as soon as possible.

Deputy District Attorney Terrence Bechle said his office would resist the order.

The demonstration by Operation Rescue and another that drew several hundred in Sacramento were staged as the U.S. Supreme Court considers a case that could affect its landmark 1973 decision legalizing abortion nationwide.

The crowd around the Inglewood offices of Family Planning Associates Medical Group and West Coast Women’s Medical Group numbered 700 to 1,000, said police Officer Carl Smith.

The six-hour protest ended with no arrests.
The pro-choice group had the inside position, guarding doors to keep the clinic open and providing escorts to help patients through blockades.
Kathy Spellman, national coordinator of the group Feminist Majority, said about 20 patients as well as clinic staff were escorted inside.

One young woman was muscled through an abortion foes called “Murderer!” and counter demonstrators yelled, “Let her through!” Burly guards slammed the doors behind her. It was not known if she was an abortion patient.

Escorts failed on the first attempt to push another woman through a blockade and retreated as she cried. A second try succeeded.

“She was saying, I wish they only knew why I had to do this,” said an escort, Tomyas Hudson. He said she mentioned the baby was in an accident and could not carry the baby to term.

In Sacramento, several hundred abortion demonstrators were gathered at Pregnancy Consultation Center, but it was closed.
Operation Rescue members came from San Francisco and Sacramento, said spokeswoman Kelly Connolly.

“We know that women are being lied to about abortions. Women are being hurt,” she said.

The abortion demonstrators were confronted by the Bay Area Coalition Against Operation Rescue. Spokeswoman Laura Weide said the group kept two other clinics open and prevented Operation Rescue demonstrators from entering in the San Francisco area.

Earlier this year, hundreds of demonstrators were arrested during Easter Week protests by Operation Rescue in Southern California.

In Inglewood, feminist attorney Gloria Allred used a bulbhorn to read a federal court order issued before the Easter Week demonstrations prohibiting protesters within 15 feet of clinics.

“This is a battle for the nation’s conscience, and it’s no time to sit on the sidelines,” said state Controller Gray Davis, who also read the order. “We’re here because women fought long and hard for the right to control their bodies, and they should not be asked to surrender their rights.

“Babies are scheduled to die here today,” said Operation Rescue member Sue Finn.

“That’s why we’re here."

“The press is biased on the side of abortion,” said a woman who would not identify herself. She was an Operation Rescue Los Angeles volunteer.

MOSCOW (AP) — A regional Communist Party chief said in an article published Sunday that safety standards have slipped at the Chernobyl power plant and he demanded the government provide it with more well-trained specialists.
The article appeared in the Communist Party daily Pravda and came shortly after the third anniversary of an accident that killed at least 31 people.

Gregory I. Revenko, 35, first secretary of the Kiev region, where Chernobyl is located, said workers still are searching for the best way to seal the plant’s No. 4 reactor, which exploded and spewed radiation in the worst nuclear power accident.
The reactor was encased in concrete to prevent further radiation leaks. Revenko, a Ukrainian who was recently elected to the new Soviet parliament, did not say why additional measures were needed to seal the reactor.

While that work continues, Revenko said, “Problems with the safety operation of the station more and more are being moved back to second priority.”

“The understanding of the acumen of the problems, including those concerning the safety of the station, has dulled. We consider this unacceptable and demand decisive intervention by” the government, he said.

Other reactors at the plant are working and reportedly have generated more than 40 billion kilowatt-hours of electricity since the accident.

Abortion rights supporters, foes stage six-hour protest at clinic

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Abortion rights demonstrators battled women through a blockade into a medical clinic amid shouts of “Murder!” as well as clinic staff were confronted by the Bay Area Coalition Against Operation Rescue.
