Autos rebuilt into Ferrari look-alikes

He was interviewed a few days after the fire, saying the memories of the blaze were hard to shake.

"We're still shocked," said Sheehy, a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. "This could have been anyone. They had a dinner barbecue on the roof that night, saw friends, did what we all do on a weekend."

The fire was on Sept. 8. Eleven days later a bomb scare brought the university to a standstill. Police evacuated every building and ordered all 45,000 students, faculty and staff off the 180-acre grounds, marking the first time UC's 125 build­ings were cleared. No bomb was found.

"Now we have to deal with the effect of one tragedy after another," Cara Vaughn, spokesman for the university's mental health services, said on Thursday.

Crime up 40 percent

Chief of police notes increase in rape, assault

By Dan Shargel

Crime on the rise for UC police

The university had a record number of crimes in the first seven months of this year.

Last week San Luis Obispo police Chief James Gardiner announced that Part II offenses — the violent crimes like murder, rape, robbery and assault, as well as burglary, larceny, motor vehicle theft and arson — have risen 25 percent from 104 to 131, doubled from 34 to 65.

According to Crime Prevention Coordinator Steven Seybold, Part I offenses are the violent crimes like murder, rape, robbery and assault.

Seybold said Wednesday that the numbers for these Part I offenses have risen from last year's first seven month count of 1,075 to this year's first seven month total of 1,530.

A large increase has been in rapes and assaults. According to Seybold, rapes have risen from last year’s first seven month count of 1,075 to this year's first seven month total of 1,530.

Simple assault, said Seybold, rose 25 percent from 104 to 131, and aggravated assault almost doubled from 34 to 65.

Although Topham said that it is still too soon to do more than speculate on causes of the increase in these crimes, he named the growing urbanization of San Luis Obispo and a shortage of officers as possible causes.

"The community continues to grow and change. The kids are out there, it's just that we're finding them in the streets more and more periods where we'd expect to see them," Topham said.

Although state funding was cut, Topham said, both the crime rate and the amount of money spent on the police department increased.

The loss of state funds, however, could be beneficial for the department, Topham said.

"It's going to be tough for us to maintain that standard of service, but it's a good time for us to real­ize the need to shift our program to a more efficient routine," Topham said.

Public Safety’s wheel-locking policy is a good solution

Public Safety recently announced that it will padlock both cars and bicycles in their parking spots if the owners violate parking codes. Automobiles with five or more unpaid parking violations will be fitted with wheel-locking devices which make moving the car impossible, and a large red flag will be placed on the driver’s side window.

Owners of the locked cars must pay all fines before the cars can be moved. This new system will replace illegally parked cars.

According to Public Safety, more than 100 automobiles last year were towed and impounded because of the owner’s failure to pay parking fines.

The issue is one of responsibility and how, if refused, it must be enforced. The taxpayers have a right not to have their money wasted when they have the police to pay disciplinary.

The lack of tolerance Mr. Lavender accuses residents of seems more attributable to him than us.

It is such narrow, self-centered focuses that have helped to exacerbate adversarial conditions between Cal Poly and local residents. This is the time and the place to change that.

Finally, the constitution is not simply a document. It is an ideal and a statement of values. It should not be used as a shield for egocentric behavior.

Smokers are not all ugly people

As a re-butt-le to the Sept. 27 article on a smoke-free San Luis Obispo, by Sahara L. Garcia, I would like to say a few words.

It sounds to me like the men and women who ran into that night at Bell’s were both mean and inconsiderate. However, one cannot generalize all smokers as obnoxious asses who blow smoke in your face.

Is Ms. Garcia so shallow as to judge all smokers as bad people? She states “… people look ugly with cigarettes in their mouths.” Come on, some of us are actually decent human beings with feelings and considerations for others.

We’re not all ugly and not all of us want to kill you with second-hand smoke.

I don’t know the exact figures, but the cost and space to create one parking space must be a whole lot more than to buy a rack for 10 bikes.

This is not really a case of self-interest, although I hope they will write their concerns to Public Safety or other policy makers. It is a matter of doing the right thing.

Solution: Put more bike racks in the center of campus, particularly between the Computer Science and Engineering West buildings. Also, provide racks next to all buildings.

Another idea for those who commute from the beach cities is to find an off-campus lot which they pay the “bike tax.” I would like to add that we on the land of the earth, unless you know of any real estate I can go to when we trash this one. Let’s all utilize it, not brutilize it.

Rights are not a shield for parties

How often people complain about a violation of their rights without a clear understanding of what those rights really are and of how they must balance with the rights of others.

A person’s liberty extends only so far as it meets another’s. Extended beyond the reasonable, liberty becomes injustice.

It is license Mr. Lavender actually argues for in his letter in Mustang Daily on Sept. 27.

When the founding fathers wrote about freedom of assembly, it is difficult to believe that the right to an “unarmed party animal” was what they had in mind.

Inconsiderate parties infringe upon the rights of others.

The right to rowboat, or any other thing, is a very poor example. The right to resemble in ego-centric behavior.

I have no problem with San Luis Obispo’s ordinance against smoking. It is fine with me to save my cigarette smoking for the outdoors, where my second-hand smoke is highly unlikely to hurt Ms. Garcia, any more than the cheap beer at Bell’s.

However, I do have a problem with people judge the actions of others.

Ms. Garcia says “Who smokes anymore anyway? I don’t have any friends that smoke.”

Give smokers a break. Just because none of us are allowed to be decent blacks and orientals with feelings do you want do it like eugenicists.

Thus far, Public Safety’s new policy is one of the better solutions to the parking problem.

At the university level, Public Safety officers hopefully will be able to make better use of their time than by playing the role of parking police.

At another level, the policy is strict enough to get across the “Naughty of naughty” to parking violators, yet less expensive for the panicked, desperate and tardy violator who took their chances and parked illegally—at least five times.

With increased enrollment and decreased parking, most likely there will be more parking violations.

Public Safety has created a good and timely solution to a growing problem.
Moscow (AP) — A bumper vegetable crop is rotting in the fields as the first fall frost approaches, and Moscow faces a hungry winter as supplies are short.

Some people have become so desperate they are stealing potatoes, carrots, pickles and preserves from individually owned vegetable cellars in the village surrounding Moscow, Soviet media report.

"A hungry winter is coming," the official Tass news agency predicted. "It is unprecedented in the history of the Soviet Union in the last week of September that only 0.7 percent of the potatoes needed for Moscow this winter are in storage in the city."

Potatoes are a mainstay of the Soviet diet, known as "second bread" after the other staple that also was in short supply this summer for the first time since the early 1960s.

N. Korea, Japan hold first talks in 45 years

Tokyo (AP) — North Korea and Japan today began their first official talks in 45 years, and the North Koreans reportedly offered to discuss diplomatic relations.

North Korea's official Korean Central News Agency said "views were exchanged on pertinent issues" at the talks. No details were given.

Mexico border patrol failing, analyst says

Austin, Texas (AP) — Federal legislation aimed at controlling the United States-Mexico border has failed to halt the flow of undocumented workers into the U.S., a leading Mexican border analyst said.

Jorge Bustamante, president of a Texas-based think tank said "there has been no significant difference in the flow of undocumented Mexicans" since the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986.

His conclusions contradict claims by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service that the 1986 law dramatically curbed the northern flow of Mexican nationals.

The Apple Farm has always had a special relationship with Cal Poly. Many of our enthusiastic employees are Poly students or graduates. We're happy to announce a shuttle service designed just to meet the special needs of the Poly faculty, staff and students.

Our free shuttle leaves every 10 minutes between 11 am and 2 pm from traffic circle between the Ag. Erhart and Home Ec. buildings. We guarantee your return to campus within one hour if you wish.

Defensive line an enviable foe

Eight 'entities' a key to success of football team

By Neil Pascale

Three weeks into the football season and a dreadful thought comes to mind: The Mustangs have but three home games remaining.

Three really good.

The very thought of it leaves your stomach churning and a-gurglin' for more.

Just 12 more quarters of hard-nosed, hard-hitting Mustang football.

Only 180 more minutes of seeing — and hearing — full-contact hits and mind-numbing sacks.

But however dreadful this year's schedule is, the fact is the defense — as well as the offense — has made 1990 Mustang football exciting.

And prosperous.

The Mustangs are ranked no. 8 in the nation and hope to remain undefeated when they play the Cal State Hayward Pioneers Saturday at 1 p.m. in Hayward.

The Pioneers are 1-3 this year and were 50-20 losers last week to Santa Clara.

The main reason for their success, according to defensive coordinator Bill Dutton, is the defensive front four.

"Any football team worth a damn always starts with what's up front," Dutton said. "It's an old cliche that it's what's up front that counts."

"Right now, certainly the play of the defensive down line has been a major impact on our 3-6 performance. I don't want to take away what the secondary or what the linebackers are doing."

add calories to an entree, side dish or dessert. It's not just the calories that concern us," Kington said. "Most of these toppings are also high in fat and cholesterol, elements that can build up the inner lining of blood vessels and cause them to narrow.

"Eventually, these blood vessels may become blocked, and if that blockage occurs in a blood vessel serving the heart, a heart attack can result."

Simple substitutions can tip the scales, reducing the risk of heart disease. Here are a few suggestions:

• Starting with desserts, consider a "cheescake" sauce consisting of 1 cup non-fat plain yogurt, ¼ cup low-fat cottage cheese, 2 tablespoons honey and ½ teaspoon vanilla extract.

Blend these ingredients in a blender until smooth and create a delicious topping for fruit salad, sorbet or low-fat pudding. In this manner they can also serve as a fantastic au jus that can further be flavored with fresh fruit juices during the cooking process. Equal parts of apple cider vinegar, wine, or substitute a mock sour cream that allows thickening of gravies without adding color or fat. And small portions of lean meat, such as roast beef, are allowed in a heart-healthy diet.

• When cheese toppings are called for, look for low-fat cheese, or substitute a mock sour cream made from blended cottage cheese, lemon juice and non-fat milk.

The following is one of many easy-to-make, low-cholesterol recipes:

SALSA

— 6 fresh, ripe tomatoes, finely chopped
— 1 can (14 oz.) peeled, chopped tomatoes
— ½ cup fresh cilantro, chopped (approximately one bunch)
— 1 small yellow onion, minced
— 1 fresh jalapeno pepper, chopped (use as much of it as you want and include seeds for "extra hot" salsa)
— salt and pepper, to taste

Combine all ingredients in a bowl and mix with a wooden spoon. Do not use a blender or mixer. Refrigerate for at least one hour before serving for optimum flavor. Recipe makes an extra-large batch.

Salsa stays fresh, with proper refrigeration, for four to five days.

"The varieties of low-fat toppings are as numerous as the kinds of toppings themselves," Kington said. "There's room for a lot of creativity that will challenge the taste buds and keep the waist in bounds," he said. "He said it was that kind of trash that was leading guys like him on and that they deserved to be punished... He did a pretty good job of degrading the women." More said John Sheehy, 32, of Lafayette, was shot at close range early in the incident. Sheehy died at 2:35 a.m. of a gunshot wound to the chest during surgery at Eden Hospital in Castro Valley.

but we’re getting super play (from our defensive line).”
Dutton’s lofty comments are more than justified.
Thus far, the Mustangs have limited ball carriers to 62.7 rushing yards per game, for a pality 3.9 yards per carry.
The front four also has 11 sacks to their credit and are a big reason why opponents are completing only 37 percent of their passes.
“We did not blitz one time in the major upset win over Portland,” Dutton said. “That right there is a major thing.

“If the defensive front can put pressure on the passer with a four-man rush, that’s the ideal in football,” he said. “That was the key to victory.”
To keep tagging the Mustangs’ defensive line the front four, however, isn’t just.
Actually, the defensive line is made up of eight enormous entities averaging more than 250 pounds.
Dutton uses two lines, his starting unit and the Shock
Troops.
The starting unit is made up of Pat Moore, a 6-foot-3, 265-pound defensive end, tackles Robert Morris (6'5, 270) and Eric Alexander (6'3, 225), and defensive Washington (6'2, 255) at the designated rusher (or “rush”) position.
The Shock Troops are defensive end Mike Hastings (6'4, 200), tackles Vincent Plymire (6'3, 260) and Ron Scranton (6'4,
260), and Mike Hamrick (6'5,
260) at the “rush” position.
The Shock Troops comes in the second and sometimes the fourth quarter. Which foursome plays
the final quarter depends on the game situation.

“This way we’re keeping peodles fresh,” Dutton said. “I’ve been here for three years and I’ve always tried to develop depth.

“It just so happens that this year we have better quality.

There is very little drop-off in our
starting unit and the Shock
Troops comes in the second and second strings,” he said.

The starting unit plays the first and third quarters and the Shock Troops comes in the second and second strings, the fourth quarter. Which foursome plays
the final quarter depends on the result, as Dutton explained, was the Vikings' guard was pulling out to help the center, and in doing so, tripped Del' Andrae.

The only thing tripping Dutton these days is finding enough time to use his eight enormous entities.

freshman by looking at pictures and scale models of Ferraris. He always built cars that are different," said Medsker, who has worked on cars for 34 years, including the original Batmobile for the Batman television series and a sleek auto called the Phantom, with gull-wing doors, which he designed years before the DeLorean was introduced.

Medsker and his wife Cheri, co-owners of Coach Works, bought Dale's Body Shop, a 20-year-old business, last November after owning a repair shop for 15 months in Seattle. But Seattle was not as lucrative as the Medskers would have liked. "People don't take as much pride in their cars up there," said Medsker. Also, the talent needed to construct a car of the Culebra's caliber was not readily available in the area, said Medsker, because "You have to be a superlative craftsman to function on most levels (to build the Culebra)."

While the Culebra looks almost identical to a Ferrari, the Medskers believe that looks are not everything. "A Ferrari is an investment," Stanten said. "People who buy (Culebras) are car enthusiasts who don't want something that will sit in their garage. This is more of an enjoyment than an investment because its something you can use."

The Medskers say the Culebra is actually a better car than the Italian legend. "Ferraris aren't real dependable cars," Cheri Medsker said. "The cars with General Motors running gear are more reliable."

And then, of course, there is the obvious advantage — price. The cost of a Ferrari is about $300,000 and $340,000 for a convertible. The Culebra conversion runs close to $70,000 after buying the Fiero or Corvette. Or, if you have the mechanical skill and $13,000, you can buy the entire kit and customize your own car.

Even if you have the bucks to buy a real Ferrari, you have to get on a waiting list that is almost three years long. Medsker can convert a car in two months. But make no mistake, the main appeal of the Culebra is its ability to grab peoples' attention. "I was driving a white one in Fort Lauderdale and a bunch of college kids turned around and started applauding," said Stanten. "It was the funniest thing I've ever seen."

"Even very old, distinguished men in business suits just love it when they look at the car."

Business for the Medskers has been brisk since the Culebras have been on the market. Fourteen of the cars have been sold since November, including one to King Faud of Saudi Arabia.

"The king bought a Ferrari, spent $50,000 to ship it to Germany to be made into a convertible and decided he didn't like it," said Medsker. "Then he saw a picture of our car and bought a black one. He said if he really liked it he'd send us a purchase order for a couple more. The Medskers are keeping their fingers crossed."

Converting a Corvette or Fiero into a Culebra is more than just a superficial make-over job. For example, the Fiero presently being converted is merely a shell of the car it once was. Aside from the outer-body reconstruction, the 4.0 liter, 95 horsepower engine is being replaced with a 5.9 liter, 270 horsepower engine so it will have substantially more power. For comparison, a real Ferrari packs about 650 horsepower. Also, the suspension in the Fiero is being replaced for better handling of the new engine.
