ASI candidates talk issues during forum
Presidential hopefuls field questions from audience, panel about key topics

By Carol Rosenbark
Staff Writer

More than 400 students filled the University Union Thursday to hear the ASI presidential candidates address some of Cal Poly’s most important issues.

Candidates Dennis Albani, Kristin Burnett and Bill Shultz answered questions from Mustang Daily Editor Jason Foster and ASI Executive Vice President Shawn Warren.

The candidates then turned to address student concerns voiced over an open microphone.

When asked their opinion of the IRA referendum, the candidates explained their positions.

Political science junior Kristin Burnett is a member of the IRA Board and served on the IRA Task Force. She questioned the time allowed to educate the students on last fall’s sports referendum but firmly backed the decision.

"It is not in the authority of ASI to overturn the decision of the President (Baker)," Burnett said.

Current Chairman of the Board Dennis Albani, an agricultural business senior, explained how he and others had argued with Baker about the lack of time before the referendum would be voted on.

"I was at that first meeting," Albani said.

Albani said he hopes the upcoming opinion poll will solidify the student’s stand on the IRA referendum.

He then plans to promote the voice of the students, whatever it may be.

Agricultural business senior Bill Shultz was quick to mention that no one from the School of Engineering, an obvious opponent to the referendum, was a member of the IRA Task Force.

He then addressed the IRA referendum question with one statement. "I support the will and the voice of the students," Shultz said.

With the loss of Poly Royal revenues, the candidates were asked how Cal Poly could clubs prosper.

Driver terrorizes Foothill Plaza
Alleged drunk crashes military vehicle into cars, walls

What do three cars, one sign post, several shrubs and the side of the Party Supply store all have in common? They were all run into early Thursday morning by a National Guardian who was arrested for driving a military transport vehicle while intoxicated.

San Luis Obispo police arrested Sean M. Rex, 22, of Monrovia, shortly after midnight after he smashed into several cars in the Foothill Plaza parking lot. Rex, who is a member of the National Guard based at Camp San Luis, was booked for suspicion of driving while intoxicated and driving with a suspended license.

He was released from the County Jail at 5 a.m. Thursday on his own recognizance.

Cal Poly mechanical engineering senior Kevin Gomes said he was walking out of the Lucky supermarket when he saw the suspect coming through the lot.

Gomes said Rex went over a curb and hit a car, pushing it into Gomes’ truck.

"He was stopped," he said. "I went up alongside of him and said a couple things."

Gomes said the suspect looked at him calmly, backed up and took off across the parking lot.

ASI considers pledging full support for Conway

By Carolyn Nielsen

ASI is looking at a resolution that will publicly state its support for ASI executive director, Roger Conway.

The resolution was introduced by Rick Kaufmann, a director from the School of Professional Studies, at Wednesday night’s meeting.

ASI President David Kopic said Conway has been "unjustly attacked this year and for the last six years." He said when Conway’s reputation is questioned, ASI’s reputation comes into question as well.

"We have sat idle while he’s been attacked. It’s for time ASI stands behind its executive director," he said.

The resolution concludes, "ASI unanimously declares its voice of confidence in Roger Conway and..."abors personally vindictive and unfounded allegations that slander the good name and work of Roger Conway."

The allegations referred to in the resolution as well as the attacks mentioned by Kopic were made by part-time

Services set for Poly sailors

A memorial service will be held Saturday at Port San Luis for the three Cal Poly students involved in a boating accident last weekend.

The memorial for Kristin D. Evans, 22, her step-sister Laura LeeAnn Pruma, also 22, and Mark Daniel Wingren, 18, is scheduled for 2 p.m.

ASI Executive Director Roger Conway said the service is being put on by Wingren’s fraternity Sigma Phi Epsilon, Yosemite Hall, the Sailing Club and members of ASI.

A funeral service for Evans is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the St. Luis de Montford Catholic Church in Orcutt.

North Korea approves nuclear agreement

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea's parliament ratified an agreement today on opening its nuclear facilities to outside inspection, but attached a condition that no other nation threaten it with atomic arms, official news media said.

The provision likely was aimed at the United States, which has supported South Korea since the Korean peninsula was divided into communist north and capitalist south in 1945.

SEATTLE (AP) — Only a few U.S. blood centers are testing for a rare but spreading strain of the AIDS virus despite fears that it could slip into the nation's blood supply.

More than 50,000 people in Europe, Africa, India, the former Soviet Union, and North and South America are infected with human immunodeficiency virus Type 2, the second virus known to cause AIDS, according to the World Health Organization. HIV-2 has been identified in at least 37 countries.

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — County officials were quick to denounce a conservative judge who said sales of marijuana, cocaine and heroin should be legalized because drug laws are ineffective and expensive to enforce.

Orange County Superior Court Judge James P. Gray said the nation's war on drugs had been lost, making it pointless to continue pouring money and resources into a program that doesn't work.

"I've finally reached my saturation point," Gray said Wednesday.
Poly professor, former student join SLO Planning Commission

By Katherine Gill Staff Writer

The San Luis Obispo City Council has appointed a Cal Poly professor and a former City Council member, who graduated from Poly in 1980, to the Planning Commission.

The decision was made at a council meeting held March 17, with appointments going into effect April 1.

Allen Settle, a Cal Poly political science professor and a former City Council member, was appointed for a two-year term. Settle served 12 years on the council, from 1977 to 1989. He previously served on the commission from 1974-77.

Brett Cross, a former economics major who graduated from Poly in 1980, was appointed for a two-year term. This is his first time serving on the commission.

Settle said commission members are given four-year term lengths to stagger the time of expiration dates.

"That way no one is new to the area at the same time," he said.

Settle said the main reason he wanted the position was that he wanted to see five of six elected directors, a one-year term. This is his first time serving on the commission.

"I've been on the council when the last General Plan was made, Settle said he felt his previous experience could help finish the plan and bring about a "logical linkage" between the different elements and the council.

"Right now there isn't any," Settle said. He thinks the Planning Commission has quite an effect on Cal Poly, especially in regard to zoning ordinances.

Brett Cross

primary issues he wants to see taken care of - the land use element, which includes zoning; the circulation element, which deals with traffic and streets; and housing.

Because he was on the City Council when the last General Plan was made, Settle said he felt his previous experience could help finish the plan and bring about a "logical linkage" between the different elements and the council.

"Right now there isn't any," Settle said. He thinks the Planning Commission has quite an effect on Cal Poly, especially in regard to zoning ordinances.

Brett Cross

"The commission deals with the availability of housing and the cost of housing," Settle said. "Whether it's a greek row or faculty housing, it links the university and the city together."

Settle, however, said he doesn't think that because there are two commission members from Poly, that there will be any advantage given to the university.

"It's not so much where they are from," Settle said of the commission's members, "but what they do."

Cross, who does appraisal work for a private firm, said he felt he could bring a new perspective to the commission.

New policy restricts community use of Mott Gym

By Edwin Bill Staff Writer

Beginning this quarter, if you are not a Cal Poly student, faculty member or alumna, or are not a friend of one, you cannot use Mott Gym during open recreation periods.

"Our policy has always been to provide facilities to students, faculty and their guests," said Rick Mott Gym during open recreation periods must be accompanied by a student, faculty member or alumni participant.

Both Johnson and Jeff Logan, graduate assistant of Informal Recreation, said fighting between players and occasional vandalism of the gym has forced implementation of the new restrictive rules.

"I can tell you," Logan said, "that (nonstudent) guests were almost always involved (with problems in the gym)."

The new policy states that every person who wants to use the gym during informal recreation periods must be accompanied by a student, faculty member or alumni participant.

The effect was, hopefully, to cool down, we will decide for the gym. He agreed, though, that such a policy was not strictly enforced.

"Anybody could pay a dollar and play basketball," Logan said. "They didn't need identification."

Players did not need to be accompanied by a student either, he said.

The fee for nonstudent users of Mott Gym was raised to the current $3 charge during fall quarter of 1990. Logan said this was done because there were more guests than there were students (using the gym during open recreation periods). We thought that was kind of odd. Students were paying fees for opening the building and keeping the lights on, said Peters, but there were few students using it.

Use of the gym has always been free to students, since they pay fees every quarter, along with tuition.

The fee was, hopefully, to discourage individuals who were not student guests from participating (in use of the gym)," said Peters.

The ASI Board of Directors has a problem - what to do about the representatives on the board from the School of Professional Studies. The school is being phased out next year.

"Ideally, we (the board) would have candidates run under the school that their department is being phased into," said Marc Peters, chair for the Elections Committee.

"But since we don't know where each department is going, it made it difficult to do this," Peters said.

Most likely, those elected would be assimilated into the school that their department phases into, said Chairman Dennis Albiani.

For instance, if a student is elected from a department that phases into the School of Agriculture, then agriculture would have an additional director for a year.

The number of directors is based on the school's enrollment, with the maximum being five, Peters said.

"It's not a foolproof system," Albiani said. "But we're trying to keep it as consistent as possible and fair as possible for everyone."

Another alternative would be to let the school exist as a council on the board next year, Peters said.

The directors represent the clubs from that school, and those clubs are not changing, he said.

"We're leaning towards the other possibility," Peters said. "After the election, when things cool down, we will decide for sure."

However, some changes in the election have been finalized, Peters said. At the polls, students will be casting their votes on computerized ballots.

Also, there will be no write-in ballots this year. The League of Women voters helps run the polls and had a difficult time getting enough volunteers this year, Peters said.

The polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Absentee ballots are available today and Monday in the Student Effect, Life and Activities office.

ASI ELECTIONS 1992

ASI debates issue of orphan directors

"Right now there isn't any," said (Chairman Dennis Albiani).

As such, the policy was that only guests of eligible gym users must present photo identification and register with the Rec Sports office, along with their "sponsor" and pay a $3 fee.

The guest will then be issued a day pass for use of the gym. Logan, a physical education graduate student, said only one guest per student will be allowed.

He said that before fall quarter 1990, a much more liberal use policy allowed greater potential for local residents to use the gym, particularly for playing basketball.

Both Johnson and Jeff Logan, graduate assistant of Informal Recreation, said fighting between players and occasional vandalism of the gym has forced implementation of the new restrictive rules.

"I can tell you," Logan said, "that (nonstudent) guests were almost always involved (with problems in the gym)."

The relationship between elections and physical beauty

Believe in Bugs or burn in hell!

Bill Graves and Lynn Hannah have their facts wrong. The truth is that Bugs Bunny is the one true God. When this cartoon world we live in ends, Mr. Graves and Ms. Hannah will realize that the universe exists, so you'd better watch. Likewise, we should all be working hard to expose more student's needs, councils and schools will better serve the students, councils and schools will expose more student's needs enabling her and the board to better serve the students. We have worked with Deirdre and feel she is an honest and understanding leader.

ASI Candidate Statement

The Chairmanship of the Board is, as Deirdre Flynn describes it, "a facilitator to student needs, questions and concerns." Deirdre Flynn on utilizing her position to one resource, the directors. She would like to see them go outside their respective school to gain knowledge of how other students feel. This interfacing of students, councils and schools will expose more student's needs enabling her and the board to better serve the students. We have worked with Deirdre and feel she is an honest and understanding leader.

Despite the fact that she is running unopposed, she is running her campaign as if she has competition and her campaign only adds credibility to the administration. She has a major commitment, which demonstrates her desire to include as many students as possible.

I encourage you to begin voicing your opinion by voting for Deirdre Flynn on April 15 and 15 at your respective school polling location.

Poly hosts league's elite
Bakersfield, Los Angeles to take on Mustangs
By Glenn Policare
Staff Writer

The Cal Poly men's and women's track and field teams will host Cal State Los Angeles and Cal State Bakersfield Saturday in their last home meet of the season.

The dual meet will bring together some of the California Collegiate Athletic Association's best runners in what should prove to be an exciting meet, said Tim Henderson, the Cal Poly men's track coach.

Henderson said all three men's teams match up almost identically in the sprints and jumps, but noted that there were some weak spots.

"Both (teams) have significant holes in their distance events like the steeplechase, 5,000 (meters) and 1,500 (meters)," Henderson said. "They don't have a lot of depth."

However, strong in the distance events, the Mustangs may drop back in the sprint events. Two top Poly runners, Jeff Vala and Tommy Griffin, may not participate this weekend due to injuries.

The women's events will also prove to be just as exciting. Cal State Los Angeles is fresh off a weekend due to injuries.

Cal State Bakersfield, Vochatzer said, will field some good individuals, but "doesn't have the depth we do."

Senior Kristina Hand will go head to head with Marlene Wilcox, L.A.'s defending 800-meter national champion. "That will be an outstanding, fun race," Vochatzer said.

The meet starts with the men's hammer at 11:30 a.m. and the women's events begin at 1:00 p.m.

Lights on courts to be manual
By Bryan Bailey
Staff Writer

Cal Poly's nocturnal basketball addicts will be able to view the courts behind Mott Gym in a new light by the end of the week.

Mike De Neve, ASI Project Coordinator for Rec Sports, said Tuesday that manual switches to control the new metal-halide lights above the courts will be installed to allow longer periods of play.

ASI Assistant Director John Stipicevich said the switches will allow the lights to be turned on initially between a predetermined number of hours. The lights will then remain on unless turned off manually or until the preset number of hours expires.

The lights themselves will still require time to warm up, De Neve said, but will only need to be ignited once. "When they're off, it does take 10, maybe 12 minutes for them to warm up," he said.

De Neve said that the change was "definitely in response to the students. "What we were hoping for originally," he said, "was to put the lights on a cycle-timer, so that when students use the courts and walk off and don't turn off the lights, there's a nonmonitored method of turning them off."

"Being one of the few born and raised here, I see things somewhat differently," Cross said.

Cross said he thinks the community is facing important challenges, such as the job situation, that need to be addressed.

"There are no jobs," Cross said. "They (the council) seem to punish a tourist-related job, but those don't support a family.

Cross said as a member of the commission, he would like to see more cooperative relationships between the city bodies and the county.

Nobody seems to know what's happening outside their area," he said.

Cross said he thinks the big issue involving Cal Poly and the commission is student housing. The commission has just finished a $75,000 study on the problem, Cross said.

"(The study) should be pretty interesting," Cross said. "Students are looking for housing that needs to be addressed."

Cross said he would like to see the university administration become more involved with the commission to create a more comprehensive structure.

FOOD

spending our play time outside in backyards, parks and beaches. Part of the California out-of-doors lifestyle includes outdoor cooking. Traditionally, outdoor cooking usually included throwing a couple of hot dogs and hamburgers on the barbecue and perhaps some potatoes, too. However, more recently, the newest cooking concept, "California Cuisine," a light and healthy mix of many styles of food often cooked on a grill, has inspired cooks everywhere to let their imaginations run wild. Anything that won't fall through the grill is fit to be barbecued. Fish, lamb, kebabs, veggies, pizza and even fruit are all wonderful on the grill.

If you watch for specials at grocery stores and take advantage of in-season produce at farmer's markets, it should be easy and inexpensive to think-up tantalizing food combinations. The following recipe is in 1 of 900 from "The Ultimate Grill Book" by Sunset magazine. Any meat and vegetable could be used, but fish is a healthful and, often, under used alternative.

Lemon Skewered Fish and Vegetable

•1 1/2 lbs. of firm fish (halibut, swordfish or shark), 1 by 1 1/2 inch chunks
•2 small zucchini, 1/4 inch thick slices
•1 large red onion, 1 inch chunks
•2 large peppers, red, green or yellow, cut in 1 inch squares
•1/2 lemon (microwaved)

Prepare lemon marinade. Add fish chunks to marinade. Stir to coat. Cover and refrigerate for three hours. Remove fish from marinade and add zucchini, onion and pepper to marinade to coat completely. Discard marinade after removing vegetables. Thread fish and vegetables alternately on skewers, place skewers on a grill and grill, turning 4 or 6 inches above coals. Cook about 10 to 15 minutes or until fish flakes at thickest part.
DEMOLITION

Lucky night manager Bob Hedrick, 44, whose Toyota Land Cruiser was pushed into Comes’ truck, said he chased the suspect after a dinosaur.

"Customers and a bunch of people in the parking lot just started chasing after this dude, just like a bunch of cavemen after a dinosaur," Hedrick said.

"Some guy came up and said, "I come out of Tacos. I got my order." He was in the parking lot just started chasing after this dude, just like a bunch of cavemen after a dinosaur," Criss said.

Cal Poly student Randy Kincaid, said he was inside Tucson College English major Sean Athey at the time.

Kincaid said the truck took out a tree, then headed back into Foothill Plaza.

The only thing that stopped him from hitting the Taco wall, said Kincaid, was "a Toyota truck."

Dave Athey, a Cuesta College history major and owner of the 1987 Toyota pickup, said he saw the vehicle coming toward him.

"I come out of Tacos. I got my burrito," Athey said. "Here comes this dude cruising sideways across from that party store."

Athey said he was attempting to move his truck when it hit him.

"I was lucky I got out through the side," Athey said. "If he would have popped it into gear, I would have been toast, crunched, scared."

Kincaid said the truck struck the Party Supply store and the brick wall behind it several times.

Kiind said the truck took out the drive way, then took out a tree, then headed back into Foothill Plaza.

When I turned right, Kincaid said the truck had a "dinosaur." People started pulling up sticks and stakes," Hedrick said.

"People started pulling up sticks and stakes," Hedrick said. "Customers and a bunch of people in the parking lot just started chasing after this dude, just like a bunch of cavemen after a dinosaur."

College student Randy Kincaid, said he saw Athey at the rear of the gym. (from) nonstudents, created confrontations among student (users) of the gym.

Logan recounted a specific incident where a nonstudent basketball player broke a window. "He was so upset that he lost an open rec basketball game that he decided to break a window."
From page 1 Royal came back," Shultz said. By increasing the evening events and restricting the off-campus sale of alcoholic beverages to aluminum containers, Shultz believes Cal Poly students could have a responsible Royal.

Albiani emphasized the need for new and creative ideas. With the emergence of open house weekends by various departments, Albiani hopes these functions could evolve into something similar to the old Poly Royal.

Burnett said that because of the cuts to ASI's budget, campus clubs need to become creative in raising funds. In addition, Burnett would like to see more of ASI's resources used by clubs to promote fun and fund raising.

Later, the candidates were asked how ASI funds should be distributed to the clubs on campus.

Burnett initiated the idea of a newsletter to document ongoing events on campus and in ASI. "Communication is definitely lacking on this campus," Burnett said. In contrast, Shultz said the amount of ASI money funneled to club accounts should be determined by what the club returns to the community.

Albiani agreed with Burnett, stating the need for more promotion and publicity for upcoming events.

"Turning to the recently approved noise abatement ordinance, each candidate was asked to respond to the City Council's decision. Albiani said the ordinance is good in theory, but he questioned the way in which it will be enforced.

Shultz addressed the ordinance briefly. "I am completely for the noise abatement ordinance," he said. When asked to outline their respective experience in the community, Albiani was pleased to respond. "This is probably my strongest point," he said. "Starting with his involvement in the Poly Ag Review, a two-day event for the Ag department, Albiani has extensive experience with leaders in the community. Burnett addressed this question by outlining her work with the San Jose City Council. While serving as a youth representative in San Jose, Burnett said she worked closely with the City Council to develop programs.

"She said this experience has given her the skills needed to be an effective communicator. Coupled with her experiences in ASI, Burnett considers herself a candidate with hands-on experience.

Chairman of the Board candidate Deidre Flynn, presently running unopposed, was included in the open forum. Flynn, a agriculture junior, outlined her experience and forum Cal Poly students should benefit from.

Presently Flynn represents the School of Agriculture on the ASI Board of Directors and is the Ag Council Vice Chairman. "I feel I have the qualities to run an effective board," Flynn said.
