Prowler spotted at Crandall Gym

'Man's face' seen in shower window

By Monique McCarty
Staff Writer

A voyeur was reported peering into the women's showers at the Crandall Gymnasium locker room on Tuesday afternoon, according to Public Safety.

"I still had my bathing suit on, going down the stairs and I heard a man's voice behind there," said Jill Beliveau, human development sophomore. "I thought I saw a person," said Jill Beliveau, human development senior. "So, I stood there for a second watching. All of a sudden a man's face appeared in the window. He saw me and jumped away."

The incident occurred shortly at 12:08 p.m., Beliveau said. "I was shocked and worried," Beliveau said. "I was more concerned with other people, but I did not want to make a scene. If I did that, I figured he would go away for sure."

There was no one else in the showers, but there were a lot of faculty and students changing clothes, Beliveau said.

"I told (my instructor) and she called Public Safety immediately," Beliveau said.

"This happened last spring, too," said Stacey Tiner, a Rec Sports aqua aerobics instructor.

Officer Richard Lara arrived at Crandall shortly after noon, but a search yielded no suspect, said Public Safety Investigator Mike Kennedy.

According to Kennedy, the suspect is a white male in his early 20's with brown hair. He was wearing a red shirt when last seen, Kennedy said. The suspect is not considered dangerous, he added.

"This is something that happens on campus," Kennedy said.

"Guys have a tendency to do this," said Public Safety Investigator.

See VOYEUR, page 11

Arianna Huffington speaks to Cal Poly class

By Kelly Gregor
Staff Writer

In this, the year of the woman, what is it like to be the wife of a conservative candidate for Congress? Arianna Huffington should know.

"I hope every year is the year of the woman," she said, "but the year of the good woman."

Huffington, wife of Republican candidate Michael Huffington, spoke to political science professor Carl Lutrin's American and California Government class Wednesday morning.

Huffington told Lutrin's class there is a crisis in today's political leadership.

"There is a lack of courage among political leaders," she said. She accused today's leaders of making promises based on what they think the public wants to hear.

Huffington also criticized politicians who propose expensive solutions to social problems.

"The solution to problems is not to throw money at them, but by local involvement," she said. "The volunteer spirit in America is healthier than any country I know."

Huffington said her husband's opponent, Gloria Ochoa, supports tag-spooning.

"That leaves a propensity for bureaucracy to expand," she said.

Being fiscally conservative but socially caring is what her husband has to offer, she said. "Gloria Ochoa is not such a leader."

Huffington said the old system of leadership is not working, but even so, that hasn't brought many leaders to introduce changes.

"They say the definition of insanity is doing the same thing again and again and expecting different results. You could say the same thing about some politicians," Huffington said.

She appreciated the opportunity to speak to students. "My favorite thing is being with students, people who are young and whose minds are still open," Huffington said.
Kuwait’s Parliament election results in landslide victory

KUWAIT (AP) — Government critics woke up to something of a shock Tuesday — a landslide victory in Kuwait’s first parliamentary elections in seven years. Seven loosely allied opposition groups and independent candidates captured 35 of the 50 Parliament seats. Most of the 15 solid seats for the government came from the ruling al-Sabah family’s traditional supporters in tribal areas.

It was unclear how much power the opposition will be allowed to wield. The ruling family ignored previous parliaments in choosing a Cabinet to run government agencies and dissolved the previous Parliament in 1986.

Tokyo sexual harassment situation is a ‘typical’ one

TOKYO (AP) — Female employees at a major Tokyo brokerage chose an unusual way to protest after some male co-workers spied on them while they were bathing during a recent company outing.

Instead of stock prices, workers at Yamaichi Securities Co. found their computer screens carrying an angry message from the women, a company official said Wednesday.

“Dear colleagues at all branches: ... Ten (male employees) stood with their faces pressed against the window, naked, and peeped inside when we female employees were taking a bath. This is unforgivable!” the official at Yamaichi, the nation’s fourth-largest brokerage, quoted the message as saying.

The case was typical of the behavior many women face in Japan’s male-dominated society. Shots of men burgling in on all-female communal baths are a staple of Japanese television.

The unusual protest, reported in the national newspaper Asahi, reflects a growing awareness of sexual harassment and a willingness among female workers to fight back against sexual advances and other demeaning treatment.

Bush urges Supreme Court to allow abortion clinic blockades

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration urged the Supreme Court on Tuesday to keep federal judges from stopping abortion clinic blockades, but a lawyer for clinic owners said that would cripple abortion rights.

Justice Department lawyer John Roberts Jr. said the administration does not defend the tactic of Operation Rescue members and other anti-abortion protesters who block access to clinics.

Deborah Ellis, representing Virginia abortion clinics, said removing federal court authority to issue injunctions against blockades would leave women without adequate protection.

Clinic owners would have to turn to state courts for help, and local police departments enforcing state court injunctions say they lack the resources to deal with massive demonstrations.

 Ellis likened anti-abortion protesters who participate in clinic blockades to Ku Klux Klan members who intimidated black students during school desegregation efforts.

Wilson veto limits public government meeting access

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Pete Wilson vetoed an attempt by newspaper publishers and others to expand California’s open-meeting law, contending the proposal was too costly for strapped local governments.

The Republican governor rejected bills by two San Francisco lawmakers that would have put new teeth in the Brown Act, the 39-year-old law that determines public access to local government business.

State lawmakers’ meetings are exempt from the Brown Act, which, among other things, generally requires local government meetings to be held in public and agendas to be issued before meetings. The act affects thousands of agencies, including city councils, boards of supervisors, school districts and special districts.

Under state law, local governments have been reimbursed by the state for the cost of adhering to the Brown Act — mainly printing up agendas and distributing them.

But the state suspended reimbursements this year because of the state budget crisis.

“T am concerned that this bill would add substantial new state-mandated and reimbursable costs to local governments,” Wilson said in his veto message. “I would consider this bill another year, when there is money available for the state-mandated reimbursement.”

The proposals were supported by the California Newspaper Publishers Association, and a variety of pro-government, labor and tax-activist groups, including the League of Women Voters, California Common Cause and the California Taxpayers Association.

Among other things, the bills would have:

— Limited local officials’ ability to act on non-agenda items.
— Forbade time limits for public comment at meetings.
— Blocked voting by secret ballot.
— Allowed the public to videotape, film or record public meetings, as long as there was no disruption to the meeting.
— Blocked officials from meeting outside their jurisdiction except under certain circumstances.
— Required meeting notices to be provided in advance to the public and media, including notices for meetings that were ordered resumed following recesses.

It’s time to make one of the most important decisions of your professional career.

Before you do, consider Coopers & Lybrand.

Coopers & Lybrand offers you a clear career path.

We promote professional development through training in cooperation with your mentor program.

Coopers & Lybrand has created a working environment marked by challenge and opportunity.

We welcome individual initiative and encourage fresh ideas and opinions.

Do you want a professional career with a broad international accounting and consulting firm? If so, your choice...

Choose the firm of choice, Coopers & Lybrand.

Please be our guest for an office tour and reception on Friday, October 9.

To sign up contact the accounting department

Building 3 Room 403
756-1384

Ten Almaden Boulevard, Suite 1600 • San Jose, California 95115 • 408.295.1020
Health Center cuts silence AIDS month
Patients prioritized over seminars

By Michelle Van Der Linden
Staff Writer

Cal Poly Health Center officials say budget cuts have so increased their workload that addressing National AIDS Awareness Month has had to take a back seat to patient care.

Dr. Burt Cochrane, who chairs the Health Center's Committee on AIDS and HIV Infections, said they are feeling the budget bite and "are seeing the same amount of people as before—but with less staff."

That means doctors who would ordinarily be available for committee meetings and conferences are needed to attend to patients.

The AIDS committee's objectives are "to coordinate AIDS and HIV education on campus and set up programs where AIDS problems can be handled," Cochrane said.

But a lean budget has left Cochrane and his committee with no funding for programs or seminars, he said.

Marsh Bollinger, who coordinates AIDS programs for the San Luis Obispo County Health Department, says she doesn't think the Health Center's education efforts are strong enough.

"I would like to see them do more," Bollinger said. "But I don't know what their resources are. College students are at risk and information needs to be given to them on how to avoid the disease."

Bollinger said she sent information throughout the county requesting participation in AIDS awareness activities and programs, but said the Health Center did not respond.

Cochrane said he never received the information.

Awareness within the county and the communication of accurate information about the disease are some of the Health Department's goals, according to Bollinger.

"I think the school, as well as many others, consider AIDS to be a gay disease," she said. "Most college students don't believe they are at risk, but they are."

Cochrane said there are members of the campus community who are HIV-positive.

Bollinger said she was surprised when a female student asked if more than ten sexual partners within six months was a lot.

"Unprotected sex with multiple partners is a high risk activity," Bollinger said. "Sex with one person is also risky if you do not know their sexual background."

The Health Center has lost nearly $1 million in funding over the last two years.

More than a bike repair shop
Craft Center improves with more space and services

By Kelly Gregor
Staff Writer

A series of improvements and new additions to Cal Poly's Craft Center have given it more room and equipment and give students a chance to act out the clay scene from the movie "Ghost."

One of the most often used spots in the center, the clay area, has been revamped with new pottery wheels and more storage. This change is due in part to popular demand.

"Ever since the movie 'Ghost,' more and more women are throwing pottery," said ceramics instructor Darin Hersberger.

The changes also include a new bicycle repair room with repair equipment, stands and bicycle supplies. "It's one of the best self-repair facilities in the UC and CSU systems," said Craft Center Manager Rusty Lemon.

Most of the work in the center began last winter and was completed in the spring, Lemon said. Along with the movie buffs and bikers, a younger crowd has also been turning to the Craft Center.

A summer day camp for children of Cal Poly faculty, staff and students taught many kids the art of ceramics, painting and jewelry making, among other crafty ventures. Lemon said he plans to run camp sessions again this winter.

Lemon and other Craft Center employees hope to get away from the misconception that it is just a place to make posters. "It's really multifaceted," Jason Stafford, ornamental horticulture senior, said. "Anyone with any creative notion who wants to vent it can come in."

About 150 students use the center on an average day. Lemon said people don't realize how many facilities the center offers or how many classes are available.

Classes offered include stained glass, bicycle repair, woodworking, jewelry making, ceramics and photography. Most classes are six-week sessions and cost from $25 to $45.

See CENTER, page 11

Ag engineering junior Ben Siedman fixes bike in Craft Center shop

STEVE PIERCE/Mustang Daily
I nearly lost both of my parents at the age of 10. They weren’t almost killed in a car wreck, plane crash or disease. They lost their home, I do not want to tell their parents — fear of the truth.

I decided at 10 when I read that I was gay that I could never tell my parents. If I were to tell them they would hate me, cut me off, and never want to see me again. I decided simply to put my life on hold during high school. I would go off to college and start my real life separate from my parents. I hadn’t had a stable.college and didn’t need my parents any longer for financial security, then, maybe, I would tell them.

The scary part is this is almost how my life turned out. Nearly successfully pushed my family out of my life. I nearly convinced myself that I didn’t need my parents, my disposable parents.

When I look at the lives of some of my gay and lesbian friends who have been, and it scares me. Greg and he wouldn’t tell his parents before he graduated from college and didn’t need his parents any longer for financial support. Two years after graduation, financially independent Greg still hasn’t told his parents that he is gay. He lives three hundred miles away, talks to them on the phone once every three months, and sees them in person maybe twice a year. They’ve never met Ed, his boyfriend of three years. They must wonder what they did to make their son so distant.

Another friend, Lisa, explains that she can’t tell her parents because she loves them too much. She says that because she and her parents share such a close relationship, she couldn’t stand to damage the relationship and hurt them. I question how genuinely close they are if Lisa’s parents don’t even know their daughter. I empathize with Greg and Lisa. I understand why they don’t want to tell their parents. No one ever knows how parents, friends or other family members react to learning that he or she is in love with the wrong sex, or that they have a sexual orientation that is different from their parents. Many think that being homosexual or bisexual is wrong, perverted, and immoral, and they should not be tolerated. They believe that living a sexual life is to damage the relationship and removed the rift which formed during my years of silence and distance. Friends often say that I’m lucky to have such an open and accepting mother. In many ways, I agree with them. I am lucky, but I am not over it that it took my mother, my only “Event”, year to make my mom’s prejudices for her to be able to love, and know, and accept and love me.

All of us possess the power to change relationships based on lies to ones that are honest and open. It may seem unattainable having friends and family away for so long, but I know that it is a mistake to try and push away people you can see the same way. We hold a great deal of responsibility for the quality of relationships we foster with others. Recognizing that responsibility is the key to improving our relationships with our friends and families.

It is time to value ourselves enough for acceptance. High school students and parents, if they care about what their parents might be disposable. I’ve tried to explain that being gay is much more than a phase, yet he finds the truth too often. I hope that someday he will accept me as a gay son, but if he doesn’t, I derive some comfort from knowing I tried to let him share a part of my life.

The first person I told that I was gay was my mom, a very fortunate, because that something drove me to tell her the truth. She was willing to learn about homosexuality and rephrase her life in terms of what it means to have a gay son. And mom and I have re-established our relationship and removed the rift which formed during my years of silence and distance. Friends often say that I’m lucky to have such an open and accepting mother. In many ways, I agree with them. I am lucky, but I am not over it that it took my mother, my only “Event”, year to make my mom’s prejudices for her to be able to love, and know, and accept and love me.

If you are gay, lesbian or bisexual and fear telling those you care about the truth about yourself, your fear is legitimate. Many have succeeded to the negative programing society has imposed upon them. Many think that being homosexual or bisexual is wrong, perverted, and immoral, and they should not be tolerated. They believe that living a sexual life is to damage the relationship and removed the rift which formed during my years of silence and distance. Friends often say that I’m lucky to have such an open and accepting mother. In many ways, I agree with them. I am lucky, but I am not over it that it took my mother, my only “Event”, year to make my mom’s prejudices for her to be able to love, and know, and accept and love me.

When I told my dad I’m gay he told me to go to a gay, truth teller. He was not strong enough to take. My parents are divorced and my dad lives in Florida, so I don’t see him very often. He maintains that his dad doesn’t want to hear about “that part of my life.” He is waiting for me to outgrow the “phase.” I’ve tried to explain that being gay is much more than a phase, yet he finds the truth too often. I hope that someday he will accept me as a gay son, but if he doesn’t, I derive some comfort from knowing I tried to let him share a part of my life.

The first person I told that I was gay was my mom, a very fortunate, because that something drove me to tell her the truth. She was willing to learn about homosexuality and rephrase her life in terms of what it means to have a gay son. And mom and I have re-established our relationship and removed the rift which formed during my years of silence and distance. Friends often say that I’m lucky to have such an open and accepting mother. In many ways, I agree with them. I am lucky, but I am not over it that it took my mother, my only “Event”, year to make my mom’s prejudices for her to be able to love, and know, and accept and love me.

If you are gay, lesbian or bisexual and fear telling those you care about the truth about yourself, your fear is legitimate. Many have succeeded to the negative programing society has imposed upon them. Many think that being homosexual or bisexual is wrong, perverted, and immoral, and they should not be tolerated. They believe that living a sexual life is to damage the relationship and removed the rift which formed during my years of silence and distance. Friends often say that I’m lucky to have such an open and accepting mother. In many ways, I agree with them. I am lucky, but I am not over it that it took my mother, my only “Event”, year to make my mom’s prejudices for her to be able to love, and know, and accept and love me.

When I told my dad I’m gay he told me to go to a gay, truth teller. He was not strong enough to take. My parents are divorced and my dad lives in Florida, so I don’t see him very often. He maintains that his dad doesn’t want to hear about “that part of my life.” He is waiting for me to outgrow the “phase.” I’ve tried to explain that being gay is much more than a phase, yet he finds the truth too often. I hope that someday he will accept me as a gay son, but if he doesn’t, I derive some comfort from knowing I tried to let him share a part of my life.

The first person I told that I was gay was my mom, a very fortunate, because that something drove me to tell her the truth. She was willing to learn about homosexuality and rephrase her life in terms of what it means to have a gay son. And mom and I have re-established our relationship and removed the rift which formed during my years of silence and distance. Friends often say that I’m lucky to have such an open and accepting mother. In many ways, I agree with them. I am lucky, but I am not over it that it took my mother, my only “Event”, year to make my mom’s prejudices for her to be able to love, and know, and accept and love me.

When I told my dad I’m gay he told me to go to a gay, truth teller. He was not strong enough to take. My parents are divorced and my dad lives in Florida, so I don’t see him very often. He maintains that his dad doesn’t want to hear about “that part of my life.” He is waiting for me to outgrow the “phase.” I’ve tried to explain that being gay is much more than a phase, yet he finds the truth too often. I hope that someday he will accept me as a gay son, but if he doesn’t, I derive some comfort from knowing I tried to let him share a part of my life.

The first person I told that I was gay was my mom, a very fortunate, because that something drove me to tell her the truth. She was willing to learn about homosexuality and rephrase her life in terms of what it means to have a gay son. And mom and I have re-established our relationship and removed the rift which formed during my years of silence and distance. Friends often say that I’m lucky to have such an open and accepting mother. In many ways, I agree with them. I am lucky, but I am not over it that it took my mother, my only “Event”, year to make my mom’s prejudices for her to be able to love, and know, and accept and love me.
June ruling strips Poly of 1991 soccer wins
Use of ineligible player erases best season ever
By Cam Inman
Sports Editor

In a decision handed down in June and not made public until Tuesday, Cal Poly's men's soccer team was forced to forfeit all of last season's games because it had used an ineligible player.

Cal Poly had to forfeit its best season ever last year and earned a trip to the NCAA Division II Final Four, was told four months ago that it had to forfeit all 23 of its games because the grade-point-average of defender Danny O'Brien was below the conference mandated 2.0 minimum. Because O'Brien played with a 2.0 Cal Poly GPA, he violated a California Collegiate Athletic Association rule, which CCAA Commissioner Tom Morgan ruled in Cal Poly forfeti ng all of its games.

The news of the forfeits was not a complete shock to players and head coach Wolfgang Gartner.

"I heard a few things, but nothing concrete until now," said O'Brien, Cal Poly midfielder Chris Corona. "We still have the plaque and the ticket stubs."

First word of the forfeits was reported in Tuesday's Los Angeles Times. A Page 7 article on college athletics stated in one paragraph that Cal Poly had to forfeit all of its 1991 games at the end of last season.

Gartner said he first heard of the forfeits after the season was over and made an appeal, said O'Brien. "We felt we had to challenge the decision because it was the first time we had ever lost a game in this conference and every game counted."

"I heard a few things, but nothing concrete until now," said O'Brien, whose team, all games must be forfeited, including (conference) playoffs games, because that player must abide by his conference's rules, which are also NCAA rules," Morgan said in an interview Tuesday night.

Cliff McCrath, the CCAA's secretary editor of the men's and women's rules committee, confirmed Morgan's decision came last weekend at a conference meeting, where CCAA officials stuck to their decision made in June.

"We made a decision based on the evidence," said Wenzl, as Wenzl put it, was discovered after the season ended when Cal Poly's athletics department made the case public because the university's liaison in this case with the CCAA.

"We wanted to protect the integrity of the conference," as Wenzl put it, was discovered when O'Brien's status was challenged.

"We (Cal Poly) never received an official notification he received in the ordinary. Sometimes those things (appeals) are rather lengthy," said John McCutcheon, who took over as Cal Poly's Director of Athletics in June.

"We are appealing the decision," Morgan said. "There is no appeal process and it was a do-or-die situation."

"The (CCAA) rule says that if a player does not have a 2.0 GPA and plays in a game, all games must be forfeited, including (conference) playoffs games, because that player must abide by his conference's rules, which are also NCAA rules," Morgan said in an interview Tuesday night.

Gartner charges Cal Poly's admission offices for telling him before the season that O'Brien was cleared to play.

"They (Cal Poly) were collaborating with the system," said Gartner. "Institutionally, soccer is not fairly supported here."

Gartner said he knew the university was appealing the decision, but added that the only official notification he received was that the NCAA took one year of eligibility away from O'Brien.

"I'm glad we're leaving the CCAA at the fastest, earliest time," said Gartner, whose team as well as Cal Poly's 16 other teams are scheduled to move to a new conference if a change to Divison I status is approved for the 1994 season. "I'm glad we're leaving this kind of stuff."

ATLANTA (AP) — What pitcher. Atlanta has all it, oh, what a relief, that, too.

Steve Avery on the left, John Smoltz on the right, 20-game winners in what seemed to be a do-or-die situation. Everywhere the Pirates look, they see trouble. They've taken over as Cal Poly's starting pitcher with 3-4 and four hits, and walked two in 1 2-3 innings.

In the fifth, Otis Nixon singled, Blauser and David Justice walked ahead of Gant's second playoff homer and the fourth grand slam in the NL playoffs. The Pirates got their first big hit against Jackson, singled behind third to start the Braves' second.

"We started slow and never got into it," San Jose State head coach John Corbelli said. "I expected the team to do a whole lot better. I felt we were evenly matched."

His team had twice as many service errors, 20, as the Mustangs.

The Spartans victory in game three resulted from big hits by Cristen Rosman and Jennifer Gross. Rosman led the Spartans with 17 kills. Gross had 14.

San Jose State watched its 73 lead transform into an 11-11 tie before they surged for the next four straight points.

The Mustangs denied any possibility of a Spartan comeback by jumping to a 11-4 lead in game four. San Jose State rallied down before Jeffrey pumped one down from the backcourt line to seal the victory.

Cal Poly next hosts Fresno State on Monday at 7:30 p.m.

MOMENTUM CARRIES POLY IN WIN OVER SAN JOSE ST.

"She tried to shake me up (with the serve), but it did not work," Tiffany MacLen nan said.

In the first game, Cal Poly took advantage of a number of errors and a tough 3-2 Gives Chenault a 10-point run behind the services of Jennifer Jeffrey, MacLennan and Shannan Meixsell.

The second game exemplified the whole night for the Spartans.

"We started slow and never got into it," San Jose State head coach John Corbelli said. "I expected the team to do a whole lot better. I felt we were evenly matched."

His team had twice as many service errors, 20, as the Mustangs.

The Spartans victory in game three resulted from big hits by Cristen Rosman and Jennifer Gross. Rosman led the Spartans with 17 kills. Gross had 14.

San Jose State watched its 73 lead transform into an 11-11 tie before they surged for the next four straight points.

The Mustangs denied any possibility of a Spartan comeback by jumping to a 11-4 lead in game four. San Jose State rallied down before Jeffrey pumped one down from the backcourt line to seal the victory.

Cal Poly next hosts Fresno State on Monday at 7:30 p.m.
Parks look for stable funding from Measure D

Cal Poly dorm residents can vote on establishing a parks district in county's unincorporated areas

By Jodi Ross
Staff Writer

Children playing tag and ribs barbecuing nearby are common sights at Cuesta Park on Saturday afternoon. But if Measure D doesn't pass, some say these scenes might become a thing of the past.

Measure D, if passed, would establish a parks district in the county's unincorporated areas, according to Nanci Gallagher, of Friends of San Luis Obispo County Parks and Recreation District.

It would also assure the county's a stable source of funding, without adding any new taxes or increasing current taxes, Gallagher said.

The measure, which will appear on the November ballot, can only be voted on by residents in unincorporated areas. That includes Cal Poly students living in the dorms.

The net cost to the county for running the parks district would be $42,380, Gallagher said. The measure would assure that funds are used strictly for county parks.

Gallagher's group was created to support Measure D and fight the budget cuts county parks have suffered. Last year, the county parks budget was cut 3 percent and has already received a 5 percent cut this year, according to Gallagher.

Opponents claim that $1 million of road fees will be transferred into the parks district. This would create "just one more bureaucracy," said George Layman, a member of Citizens for Honest Representation.

Layman said parks should not be a main concern right now with the shape the economy is in. "We need to build our economy and worry about our fire departments and police departments - the first things that are taken away from us," he said.

Debb Lyon, also with Friends of San Luis Obispo County Parks, said no money will be transferred from the road fees and Measure D would simply stabilize funding at its current level.

Gallagher said her group's goal is to "stabilize funding and keep existing parks in operation."

Those opposing the measure are concerned with a possible loss of budget flexibility if Measure D passes. Funds would be locked into the parks budget and would not be able to be used where additional money is needed.

Cal Poly is only one of many parks that will be affected by Measure D. El Chorro Park, Lopez Lake, county beaches, county golf courses and other county facilities also tie into the measure.

Gallagher said it seems unfair that only residents in the unincorporated areas can vote on facilities that are used by all. She wants to see all residents in the county voting on the issue.

None of the arguments in favor of Measure D will be included in the sample ballot booklet, according to Gallagher. Because of this, proponents will lose 5 percent to 10 percent of the vote, she said.

Stumping in Chumash

By Jackie Jones
Staff Writer

The day when students watch a lecture from their own home is almost here, according to David Grant, director of Cal Poly's Inter-Servicing Digital Network (ISDN).

ISDN is a computer service network brought to Cal Poly two years ago by Pacific Bell. With ISDN, users can call up Cal Poly's computer system and access on-line information, but with greater speed and more capabilities than currently available systems, like the IBM-based AD system.

Many students currently use personal computers and modems at home to access Cal Poly's computers. Anything that a home computer with a modem can do, the ISDN system can do faster, Grant said.

"The buzz word here is speed," he said. "The AD system is so slow that it would be more convenient to get in your car and drive to Cal Poly."

Grant said ISDN is about 32 times faster than ADX, and with ISDN, the phone line does not get tied up.

The uses for this system are endless, he said.

"I used Cal Poly News Net-See PHONES, page 12

Fall 1992 Program Schedule

By Jackie Jones
Staff Writer

Fall 1992 Program Schedule

Program Schedule

City Council Meetings every 1st & 3rd Tuesday at 7pm. BBC News weekdays at 6am & 7am.
By John Hubbell
News Editor

Saturday night's Toad the Wet Sprocket concert in Chumash Auditorium made me feel rather old, and I'm only 20. Maybe it was when Toad stopped in the middle of "Walk on the Ocean" to implore fans to stop squishing those in front. Or maybe it was before that, when opening act Marvin the Mandolin Man stopped to do the Mike Daisey thing. Let's pause here. I just said a man strumming a mandolin almost caused injuries. What happened?

Let's just call this "Attack of the Killer Teenagers." While Toad put on a fast-paced and tightly executed show, the Santa Barbara band's performance was largely lost in the front of Chumash. I'm not sure what he said. All I know is I wasted a few minutes looking at the program, could sign a petition to get my free cheese samples back, and resist to squish to the sound of a mandolin. After watching a "Young Comedians' Special" on television, he decided he could "do that." Robinson said he was driven by childhood dreams of entertaining people and making them laugh and not by dreams of to money or success. Robinson took the stage for the first time at The Comedy Factory Outlet in Jan. 1984. He was funny, the audience laughed and he was hooked.

Comedian comes to cut it up off the cuff

By Elizabeth Magill
Staff Writer

Some may dream of becoming comedians -- making people laugh for a living -- when they grow up, but for Keith Robinson, the dream has become a reality. Robinson is performing in Chumash Auditorium on Oct. 10.

The show, sponsored by ASI Special Events, is one in a long list of performances Robinson has given. He also has appeared on such comedy shows as Comedy Central, MTV Half Hour Comedy Hour, Evening at the Improv and Showtime at the Apollo. Robinson is performing with the ASI Program Board at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 10.

Robinson has appeared on such comedy shows as Comedy Central, MTV Half Hour Comedy, Evening at the Improv and Showtime at the Apollo, according to Robinson's press release that was sent to the newspaper.

Robinson has appeared on such comedy shows as Comedy Central, MTV Half Hour Comedy, Evening at the Improv and Showtime at the Apollo, according to Robinson's press release that was sent to the newspaper.

Robinson performed at the Chumash Auditorium and the entertainment for Thursday's activity hour.

Keith Robinson performs at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 10.

Advance ticket sales will be sold only at the ASI ticket office.

Blues Society show smokes SLO veterans building

By Carissa Wreden
Staff Writer

The San Luis Obispo Blues Society's dance concert opened up with the sound of Mark Hummel and Soul Survivors. The Soul Survivors sparked up live tunes with an upbeat, danceable feel, backed by Hummel's soulful harmonica playing.

The night progressed as Tucker joined Hummel onstage. Tucker's guitar style, billed as a hard-core blues, involved scenarios of smoke-filled clubs. Backed by the Soul Survivors, Tucker's performance was the perfect conclusion to a successful blend of old and new blues songs.

The true highlight of the evening was Billy Boy Arnold. Arnold transported his audience back in time to the 1950s and 60s, the era when his music came of age. Arnold's tunes had a straightforward charm, talking about simple things like "gettin' my baby out by the bushes." Arnold's meaning, bluesy harmonica "set tunes to having a good time." Together with Tucker's guitar and the Soul Survivors' backing, Arnold accomplished a successful blend of old and new blues songs.

Following Arnold's performance, the audience, though tired and ragged from dancing to the sounds of their shoes, booted and balled for an encore. Arnold obliged, and together with Tucker still going strong on guitar, the pair held the hall in a time warp once more.

Even though the air was clean, you could almost see smoke filling the room, but time it came from the heat of the music blasting through the hall.
Newly-released Blade Runner: a partial success

Director’s cut is visually appealing but science-fiction classic’s storyline falls flat

By Kevin Dalrymple
Staff Writer

If there are any films that need to be seen on the big screen, the newly-released director’s cut of Ridley Scott’s Blade Runner is one of them.

Ten years after its initial release, Blade Runner is a film that needs little introduction. Its status as a science-fiction classic – already established by that needs little introduction.

Blade Runner is one of them.

Everything has changed, its visual secured in the booming years of the home-video revolution. But even with these changes, it’s easy to wonder what would have become of Blade Runner had some of the effort put into act design had been rechanneled into story develop-

The audience is asked to accept the crepency of Deckard’s “manhunt,” even though it knows the replicants are due to die soon.

There are many situations, like Deckard’s journey into a bar (where tequila drinks include a dozen worms), when the film drifts in its own smoke-filled air. Apparently, the antimaking campaign lost momentum somewhere.

Characters seem to be put in place for the sole purpose of characterizing the surroundings of this new world, without adding any dimension to themselves.

In its own melancholy way, Blade Runner reaches for themes and seems to pose questions.

How will humanity be defined if science ever develops androids that are so difficult to distinguish from humans?

Will the uniqueness of people be stomped out on the path of advancing technology? Is urban collapse inevitable?

Director’s cut is visually appealing but science-fiction classic’s storyline falls flat.
Big news... but not big enough

Apply now for Cal Poly Homecoming's Laugh Olympies. Clubs can enter a team of 5 people and must register by Friday, Oct. 12, at the Alumni
House. The registration fee is $10.00.

Applications for registration
for the Homecoming parade
also can be picked up at the Alumni House and will be accepted up to 10:30 a.m., Oct.
17, at the corner of Monterey
and Osos.

"Black and Brown - A Day of Expression, A Meeting of
Two Cultures," a Latino and
African American poetry read­
ger, will take place Tuesday,
Oct. 13, from 2-4 p.m., at Back
House. The registration fee is $10.00.

Clubs can enter a team of 10 people and must register by
Oct. 11. The registration fee is $10.00.

Applications for registration
for the Homecoming parade
also can be picked up at the Alumni House and will be accepted up to 10:30 a.m., Oct.
17, at the corner of Monterey
and Osos.

"Black and Brown - A Day
of Expression, A Meeting of
Two Cultures," a Latino and
African American poetry read­
ger, will take place Tuesday,
Oct. 13, from 2-4 p.m., at Back
House. The registration fee is $10.00.

Clubs can enter a team of 10 people and must register by
Oct. 11. The registration fee is $10.00.

Applications for registration
for the Homecoming parade
also can be picked up at the Alumni House and will be accepted up to 10:30 a.m., Oct.
17, at the corner of Monterey
and Osos.

Midnight Rider, Roadside Attraction and Bob and Woody will perform at a fund-raising and educational benefit concert being held Sunday, Oct. 11, at T.A.'s Cantina.

The concert is being held to raise money to support the re­ election of David Haney. A $5 donation will be requested at the door. For further information, contact Steve Kindel or Maria Brousse at 546-6518.

The American Lung Association of Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Luis Obispo Counties present their fifth annual
"Afternoon of Jazz," Sunday,
Oct. 11. The concert runs from 1:30 p.m. to dusk.

Acts include contemporary artist Brian Hughes, Los Angles based Polyhedra, local group Zash and the Al Betto Trio featuring Kelly Rose.

Tickets are $13.00 in advance and $15.00 at the gate.
Wine, food and soft drinks available. No ice chests will be allowed in.

For more information, call
David Haney at 528-7514.

World renowned violinist
Pinchas Zukerman and pianist
Marc Nekrug will open the new Great Performances Series for Cal Poly Arts on Monday, Oct. 12. The 8 p.m. concert will take place at the Church of the Nazarene in Pismo Beach.

Zukerman is known throughout the world for his musical genius and is equally acclaimed as a violinist, violist, conductor, teacher and chamber musician.

Nekrug, an associate of Zukerman for 16 years as a sonata partner, has recorded a repertoire with Zukerman which includes Strauss,
Schumann and Mozart.

Tickets are $25.00 to $50.00 for the public and $20.00 to $45.00 for students and seniors. Call 756-1421 for more information.

The musical "Sweeney Todd" will be held at a gala, last and musicular. A feed hand given gives his customers a close shave. They are never heard from again.

This Halloween-type melodrama is being presented by The Great American Melodrama and Vaudeville in Oceans. The show runs through November 15.

Following "Sweeney Todd" each evening is the "Moon and Stars Vaudeville Revue.
Refreshments are available at the Melodrama bar.

For ticket information call
call 469-2469.

The Fourth World Quartet, a jazz-fusion band with a Brazilian flair, will appear in concert Tuesday, Oct. 13, in the Cal Poly Theatre.

The 8 p.m. concert is a part of the Cal Poly Arts World
Music and Dance Series.

The group will be joined by jazz guitarist Jose Neto and Gary Meek on sax and keyboards.

Tickets for the show are $15.00 and $12.00 for the public and $15.00 and $11.00 for students and seniors. All seats are reserved.

For more information, call 756-1421.

Music Department faculty member Frederick Lau will give a flute recital Friday, Oct.
16, in the Cal Poly Theatre. He will be accompanied by fellow fellow faculty member and pianist
William T. Spiller.

Lau has performed with a number of orchestras and chamber groups, including the American Wind Symphony, the University of Illinois Contemporary Chamber Players and the Hong Kong Philharmonic Orchestra.

Tickets for the 8 p.m. show are $10.00 and $8.00 for the public and $6.00 and $4.00 for students. For reservations call 756-1421.

The only cost you can afford
1804 Osos Street
805-546-9551
Across from Pete’s Southside & Cafe Roma

Friday/ Saturday OCT 9-10 11:00am to 4:00pm

Friday, October 9

Q A Western Front and Go Down Moses play at T.A.’s Cantina at 9 p.m. No cover charge with student ID.

Q SLO Brewing Co. presents Rock Steady Possee at 9:30 p.m. for a $3 cover.

Q Jeff Keating brings post-alternative dance folk music to Earthling Bookshop at 9 p.m. No cover.

Q Kenneth Hunter plays acoustic guitar at Earthling Bookshop at 9 p.m.

Saturday, October 10

Q T.A.’s Cantina presents the Guy Budd Band at 9 p.m.

Q Mr. Rick’s presents Open Mic Night at 8 p.m.

Tuesday, October 13

Q T.A.’s Cantina presents acoustic music with T.A.’s Unplugged at 9 p.m.

Q Mike and John play at Mr. Rick’s.

KCPR TOP-10 ALBUMS

week ending 10/4/92

1. Overwhelming Colorfast “Overwhelming Colorfast”
2. Singles Soundtrack
4. Smashing Orange “The Glass Road Gone”
5. Throwing Muses “Red House”
6. Darlig Boys “Please Yourself” e.p.
8. Mary’s Danish “American Standard”
9. Monk’s Of Doom “Surgery”
10. The Skaters “Beautiful Mess”

FANTASTIC SALE

previously owned
MEN’S CLOTHING by RALPH LAUREN

Friday & Saturday Oct 8th & 9th, 9AM-5PM

Hundreds of items at very low prices

905/San Luis Obispo Blvd 805 544-3545

ART PRINT SALE

museum quality

ALL NEXT WEEK

OCTOBER 12-16
The center is funded by ASI. Lemon said "any profits made go back into programs for the center. "It's a way for ASI to give something back to the students," he said.

Nicole Howard, a sophomore taking her first class at the Craft Center, was happy with its services. "It was fun," she said. "I've never done this before and I just made my first pot."

Future changes for the Craft Center include plans for a full line of bicycle repair components and a complete "greek" store with items for campus fraternities and sororities.

VOYEUR

From page 1 not knowing it is a criminal action. "This incident should make people aware of their own personal safety," he said. "This can happen to you, me, or anyone. Be cautious."

---

THE NAZARENE COLLEGE FELLOWSHIP PRESENTS...

JANINE TARTAGLIA

ON FRIDAY OCT. 9TH IN THE U.U ROOM 220-11 TO 12

FORMER CAL POLY "ALUMNUS OF THE YEAR" JANINE WAS A REPORTER-ANCHOR FOR NBC-TV IN LOS ANGELES.

IMPERIAL CHINA

Cantonese & Szechuan Cuisine
Dim Sum every Saturday and Sunday

Open 7 Days 11:30am - 10:00pm
Catering available 544-1668 543-1818
667 C Marsh St. (next to Wells Fargo), SLO, CA 93401

---

Gastronomic Orgasm...
Woodstock's Does It Best

Titillate your Taste Buds...
- Bakery-fresh Whole Wheat or White Crust
- Thick, Zesty Sauce
- Mounds of Mozzarella
- Mountainous Toppings

Satisfy your Needs!
- Pumps' Happy Hours
  1/2 Price Drinks 8-11pm Mon-Wed
- Exciting Lunches
  All-you-can-eat $3.50 11am-3pm Mon-Fri
- Beer-Garden Extravaganzas
- Good-time Atmosphere-WILDerness Party Room
- Killer Monthly Specials and Group Discounts

---

We still in business.

THE NAZARENE COLLEGE FELLOWSHIP PRESENTS...

JANINE TARTAGLIA

ON FRIDAY OCT. 9TH IN THE U.U ROOM 220 - 11 TO 12

FORMER CAL POLY "ALUMNUS OF THE YEAR" JANINE WAS A REPORTER-ANCHOR FOR NBC-TV IN LOS ANGELES.

ClarisWorks. A most excellent choice.

Free Templates!
Now ClarisWorks has templates designed just for college students. Customize party invitations with fun clip art, organize your busy life with calendars and lists—even personalize your own database with job search information!
A councilman in shades

City Council member Bill Roaldsen lights bright sun to attend the Dianne Feinstein senatorial rally.

PHONES

From page 6

work, CPNN, to see every seat in every class available," Grant said. "At the same time, I dialled into capture and didn't waste my time hearing 'this class is full.'

"You can access Poly Cat and get every book in the California State system and U.C. systems," Grant said. "Soon, books will be on computer disks and they can be pulled up on the screen."

"Grant can also use the computer to call up Audiovisual Services to see what video is being played and where.

According to Grant, professionals will soon be able to work from their home.

"When you call my office, it rings there and at home." he said. "No one knows if I'm in my office or at home. Many times if I don't feel like going into work, I can work from home."

Already, the new business building has a teleconferencing lecture room. Students with ISDN can watch the lecture at home.

Others students on a co-op in Salinas can take general education through this system.

Grant sees everyone using ISDN in the future. "It's just like the age of information, every class available," Grant said.

Roderick Fields, a mechanical engineering junior, uses the AIX system and his modem to send messages to faculty and staff through electronic mail. He also sends global messages and compiles computer information.

"The AIX system is a global system, I mean global," Fields said. "I can talk to someone in Japan."

The AIX system is available to any student, faculty, and staff member of Cal Poly. Students need an authorization from a faculty member and a home computer with a modem.

There is no cost for the use of the AIX system.

The downfall to the ISDN system is the price. Currently, installation is about $220 and monthly charges are about $40. Grant expects that as demand increases, the monthly charge will go down to about $15.

OOOOOPS!

The Camtoons Coupon for 2 Steak Dinners should have read:

"Every Monday Night"

Put your name and phone number on the back of the coupon and be eligible to WIN prizes in our Monday Night Drawing. The Catch? You can enter on Monday evenings only.

1119 Garden Street
S.L.O. 543-1843

Frame Sale

25% Off 1st Frame & 50% Off 2nd Frame

Any frame in store with purchase of lenses for the same.

See your doctor for your exam.

Bring your prescription to:

Michael's Optical

须 Mustang Polyclinic

Paso Robles
1304 8th Street
(805) 238-5770

Atascadero
3200 El Camino Real
(805) 466-5770

San Luis Obispo
1039 Chorro Street
(805) 543-5770

Morro Bay
884-A Main Street
(805) 772-1281
When Ron Dunin was growing up in his native Poland, he lived in a time where people hunted wolves by candlelight. After serving in the Polish military, he came to America and to San Luis Obispo. He's been mayor here since 1985. Dunin is reading Mustang Daily, the only daily college newspaper produced entirely by students on campus. It's free every day.
"You know, it's so ridiculous. If I don't call my parents every Sunday at exactly 5 o'clock, they think I was kidnapped by aliens, or something. Anyway, one Sunday me and Mark, we decide to take-off and check out the city. So we're hanging out and I look at my watch. 5 o'clock. Alright, so my calling card and I head down to the local pool hall. (which I happen to know has a payphone) And I tell the folks the Martians send their best."

No matter where you happen to be, the AT&T Calling Card can take you home. It's also the least expensive way to call state-to-state on AT&T, when you can't dial direct.

With the new AT&T Call and Save Plan, you'll get special discounts on AT&T Calling Card calls* And once you have your card, you'll never need to apply for another.

If you get your Calling Card now, your first call will be free. And you'll become a member of AT&T Student Saver Plus, a program of products and services that saves students time and money.

All of which makes the AT&T Calling Card out of this world.

To get an AT&T Calling Card, call 1-800-654-0471 Ext. 850.
"So, I stood there for a second watching.

All of a sudden a man’s face appeared in the window. He saw me and jumped away.

See story on page

ONE——

Cal Poly Student
DON'T BE LEFT OUT!!

CAL POLY ORGANIZATIONS AND CLUB PRESIDENTS:

• SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17:
  ACTIVELY PARTICIPATE IN THE PRE-GAME-WARM UP
• SET UP A BOOTH
  SELLING FOOD, T-SHIRTS, OR RECRUITING NEW MEMBERS
• CONTACT STUDENT LIFE AND ACTIVITIES
  FOR APPLICATION FORMS (UU 217B)
• MAKE A DIFFERENCE
  AND BECOME A PART OF A NEW HOMECOMING TRADITION!!!!!

Recreation Center
Student Employment Opportunities

Weight Room Staff
Direct supervision of the Weight Room equipment and performing cardiorespiratory fitness. Must be able to assist participants in the proper usage of equipment and cardiovascular equipment is required.

Front-Line Service Staff
Upkeep the entrance counter and performing customer service. In this demanding, high volume demanding, emphasis is placed on customer dialogue and satisfaction.

Facility Supervisors
Direct supervision and management of Recreational Sports programs and teams during early morning, evening, and weekend hours.

Lifeguards
Direct supervision of the pool and deck area during Informal Recreation hours.
Curriculum: Lifeguard Training, Community CPR and First Aid, including Title XIX
Supplementary First Aid certifications required.

Fitness Instructors
(Aqua Aerobics, Step, etc.)
Responsible for overall instruction and safety of specialized fitness classes.

Equipment Room Staff
Responsible for equipment check out, equipment fees, and locker rentals.

Interested individuals may pick up an application and job description at the Recreational Sports Office. The timeline for the selection process is:

Applications accepted beginning
Monday, Sept. 28
Application deadline Friday, Oct. 30
An Employment Information Session will be held Tuesday, Oct. 13 at 7 p.m. in Chumash 207
Interviews conducted from Nov. 2 until
Nov. 13
All applicants will be notified of their status by Friday, Nov. 20 Employment Orientation begins the week of Nov. 30

Cal Poly Recreational Sports is committed to achieving equality through cultural diversity and actively encourages applications from women, persons of color, persons of disability, and individuals from other underrepresented groups.

Call 756-1366