Eviction, debts caused murderous spree

By Todd Hogan

At about 6:20 p.m. on Saturday, Drake entered the home of former Poly resident Norman Metcalfe, 37, shooting him between the eyes with a .32 caliber Smith and Wesson handgun. He died on the scene, according to Morro Bay police Sgt. Gregg Beuer.

Drake then turned the gun on Jeremy Stifin, 27, of Morro Bay, who was shot in the arm while covering his face. Beuer said.

A third victim, Danny Crak, 32, of Goleta, struggled with Drake before being shot in the back and then fatally in the heart, Beuer said.

Unconfirmed was one person — he was waiting for Metcalfe, Beuer said. "He never in a word. He walked in and started shooting.

Drake was apparently seeking revenge for being evicted from the home last June by his landlord Zatko and against Metcalfe, who physically helped Zatko remove Drake from the premises, Beuer said.

"(Drake) indicated that, if he got evicted, that his (common law) wife and his daughter would leave him (and) that would really piss him off," Beuer said. "He could be really overhearing, but I didn't consider him dangerous." Witnesses at the scene on Bella Vista Drive, Metcalfe's home, identified Drake as the killer, Beuer said.

Police then went to Zatko's home on Main Street, right across from Drake's previous residence, seeking information concerning his whereabouts.

Police entered through an open door and found Metcalfe dead, Beuer said.

According to Beuer, Drake had lived in Zatko's Main Street apartment for nine months without paying rent. When he moved in, he talked his way in there and didn't come up with the money," he said.

The lack of payment led to Drake's eviction, Beuer said.

"Andy (Zatko) was a victim of the act of his hatred because he lost his home," Beuer said. "Broshars said that blamed him for losing his family.

After the Morro Bay killings, Drake disappeared for about five hours, Beuer said. Just before midnight, Drake reappeared at the Oaks Card Parlor in Paso Robles wielding a .12 gauge shotgun. Drake had been banned from the parlor, Beuer said.

According to witnesses, Drake entered through the back door, moved toward the front of the building, and then shot Metcalfe, 47, of Atascadero, Joe Garce, 60, of Paso Robles, and Kris Strauss, 31, of Atascadero.

"I know he played cards and that he'd be around from the buy­ ing cards in different places in the county," Broshars said.

"The nickname "Crazy Jim" may have come from his having one blowout. I knew a lot of people beat him at cards," he added.

Drake's car was spotted by deputies early Sunday morning at the home of former landlord Joanne Morrow, 60, of San Miguel. Drake was holding Mor­ ro hostage and beat her with a baseball bat.

"He needed her truck," Beuer said. "He had at least two more people he wanted to kill and he told Morrow his car wouldn't work.

Deputies tried without suc­ ceess to talk Drake into surren­ dering, before he shot himself in the head.

"He always blamed things on everyone else," Broshars said. "He could never assume responsibility for his own situation. Everyone knew what a fruit­ cake he was."

Wide World of Sports

By Kevin Datrymple Staff Writer

An anonymous bomb threat forced the evacuation of the County Government Center Monday morning.

The threat sent 250 county workers into the streets while law enforcement officials searched the building. No bombs were found, according to a press release.

County Administrator Robert Hendrix ordered the evacuation at 9 a.m. after an unnamed caller said four bombs had been placed in the Center and were set to explode at 11 a.m.

The Center was reoccupied at approximately 10:30 a.m., he said.

The County Government Cen­ ter is located at 1035 Palm St. and houses the county's municipal and superior courts as well as a host of other govern­ ment offices.

Four-bomb threat at government center

By Brad Hamilton Staff Writer

Cal Poly's Mike Black dribbles out of a crowd in Saturday's 2-1 season finale win. See story, page 6.

Petersen on polySCOPE: It could have been better

By Todd Hogan Staff Writer

Days after the election, former student Council candi­ date Brent Petersen is saying polySCOPE leaders and the student-run political coalition, could have been much better organized.

Petersen said he would have liked to see better communica­ tion between current polySCOPE leaders and original leaders from last spring. That, said Petersen, was when the organization pulled off its biggest feat.

"polySCOPE did an excellent job of putting on the (spring student candidate) primary," Petersen said.

But, he added polySCOPE's latest effort, the student caucus, would have been organized.

"I was completely against the caucus idea," Petersen said. "They took a few leaders and harnessed all the statements and asked them to make an informed decision. It (was) nothing less than an elitist action. I would have liked to see a primary in which all students participate instead of an elitist (caucus).

"polySCOPE organized to in­ crease student representation in local politics — was lost in poor com­ munication and misdirected decisions, the two student leaders said.

polySCOPE Chair Rex Smith said Monday that, though he kept in contact with Petersen almost daily throughout the cam­ paign, communication between the organization and the campus was not as good as he would have liked.

Smith said it was difficult to establish that type of com­ munication link in the short time the group was given.

He added that polySCOPE was working to improve the communi­ cation structure by better bringing in groups like the Inter­ fraternity and the Panhellenic Council.

Smith also said the decision to hold the caucus came from a "comprehensive study" which in­ cluded the most likely students to vote in the election were those involved in club organizations.

He added that it was "a lot quicker" than setting up a cam­ paign wide caucus as it had done in the past time the organization had.

Smith said polySCOPE learned a lot from the election and was happy that Petersen came so close to winning.

He called the student impact on the election a "very positive thing that we as a campus ac­ complished." polySCOPE treasurer Mike Rockenstein said he thought the organization was a success for the same reason as Petersen.

"I think that back poly­ SCOPE registered to vote in last year's spring election was a pin­ point," Rockenstein said. "People came through and made a dif­ ference.'

But Rockenstein said that, in hindsight, he believed a lack of communication tainted poly­ SCOPE's success.

Bursett agreed with Rock­ estein and cited polySCOPE's "bachelor/bachelorette auction" as an example of the lack of communica­ tion.

The auction was created to raise money for polySCOPE and Petersen, and attracted the con­ dents for dates.

But Rockenstein said she was never told by polySCOPE officials that the auction was going to be as part of Petersen's campaign.

"I agreed to stand up on stage," Bursett said, "and be embarrassed as heck — auc­tioned like a piece of meat!"

When she later discovered the auction was part of Petersen's cam­ paign, she said she was en­thusiastic, feeling she may have en­ dangered ASI if she had been listed as a supporter of Petersen, she said.

"I think a lot of enthusiasm and energy playing in a brand new game led polySCOPE to not be as cautious as it needed to be," Bursett said.

"I don't think the misuse at the auction was the result of one per­ son's mistake. He said the cashier at the auction was sup­ posed to ask people who came to see polySCOPE, page 6.

Tuesday's expanded opinion section

A Cal Poly veteran resents the stereotypical portrayal of servicemen/page four

World

An outbreak of Skinhead violence in Poland has residents there alarmed/page two Skinheads reign in Polish underground

NOWA HUTA, Poland (AP) — On streets where Solidarity demonstrators once reigned, a new underground movement is on the prowl — ugly, angry and terrifying.

On Oct. 1, police say, eight skinheads descended on a German truck driver outside a Nowa Huta restaurant and beat him to death.

Now there is real fear among the community's 220,000 residents, and worry about how to combat the violence.

"Solidarity" has replaced "Lenin" as the name of the main street in this gritty community's 220,000 residents, and worry about how to combat the violence.

For some young people, limited opportunities bred boredom, discontent and anger. They shaved their heads and began mimicking those vaguely political slogans of the West known as skinheads.

"They got drunk and they just went crazy," speculated Mateusz Wrobel, a 18-year-old skinhead.

Although Poland was one of the chief victims of Nazism in World War II, the youth see nothing strange about emulating race-Nazism, violence and intimidation.

They wear leather and heavy boots, sometimes even Nazi symbols.

"Those youngsters now can feel more freedom and do what they whatever they want," said Henryk Kubiak, a taxi driver who has stopped working at night.

The eight arrested for the ambush of the German driver, whose companion was badly beaten, told police they were avenging attacks on Poles in Germany.

But the political motive seemed to be an afterthought, said Superintendent Josef Gawlik said.

That the drivers were German was "just a coincidence," he said.

"They got drunk and they just went crazy," speculated Mateusz Wrobel, an 18-year-old who himself became a skinhead three years ago.

The driver's murder caused outrage. Many residents laid flowers and lit candles at the site on Solidarity Avenue, which like most of the district's streets is virtually empty of pedestrians by early evening.

"He was an innocent working man and they killed him without a reason," said Janina Zwierzynska, a 60-year-old retiree who brought a bouquet.

Robot helps in operating room

SACRAMENTO (AP) — With nerves of steel, superhuman precision and no bedside manner whatsoever, a 7-foot surgical assistant called Robodoc made medical history over the weekend.

Robodoc, a mechanical arm with a drill at the end, was used Saturday during hip replacement surgery on a patient at Sutter General Hospital.

Spokesman Lloyd Benson said it was the world's first operation using a surgical robot.

The unidentified patient was reported in stable condition.

The machine, dubbed Robodoc by its inventors, was programmed to drill a precise hole in the patient's leg bone that enabled surgeons to insert the replacement hip without using cement.

Doctors can make the 6-to-10-inch hole manually, but the developers of Robodoc believe the computerized drill improves precision.

GOP redefines itself after defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sobered by their abrupt fall from power, Republicans are arguing vehemently among themselves over what went wrong and how to get back in sync with American voters.

There are deep philosophical divisions among the factions trying to commandeer the party and among those dreaming of the 1996 White House race.

Has the party adopted too much of the religious right social agenda? Has it strayed too far from supply-side, trickle-down economics or not far enough?

Moderate Labor Secretary Lynn Martin, in the running for party chairman, squared off against conservative strategist Angela Bay Buchanan last week.

Buchanan, who managed her brother Patrick's presidential campaign, said Republicans won't win again until they reinforce their conservative base. She has called for a new chairman who opposes abortion and supports "traditional values."

Martin, who supports abortion rights, said the GOP already stands for individual rights and limited government and can't dictate what people should believe.
Students explain the ways they got their fake IDs

Underaged tell how they did it and why they wanted it

By Carissa Wreden
Staff Writer

Fake I.D.'s are an age-old tradition. People have been using them for years and for a variety of reasons.

Richard Rock, 67, said he got his first phony license back in the 1940s. Rock was 17 at the time.

"I wanted to get into the burlesque show, but I wasn't old enough," he said. "So I went down and bought a chauffeur's license for $3. The chauffeur's license said I was 18. I could go to the bars," she said.

A former Cal Poly student said she first decided to use a fake I.D., "to be able to go out and drink and party."

"Besides," she said, "all my friends were 21 and I didn't want to spend the summer by myself." The lady (at the DMV) was," she said. "The lady (at the DMV) was just like, 'O.K., deary.'" Brooks said she doesn't expect these type of slip-ups to continue in the future because of the new credit card-style licensing system. According to Advanced Imaging magazine, the new system is California's answer to the plague of fake driver's licenses.

One Cal Poly student agreed, saying the DMV never asked her for alternate I.D. when she applied for her phony license. "It was ridiculous how easy it was," she said. "The lady (at the DMV) was just like, 'O.K., deary.'"

"Warren Miller Is Ski Bum Numéro Uno...a combination Jean-Claude Killy, Robert Redford, Ingmar Bergman and Woody Allen." —L.A. Times

The evils of Drink

I.D., "to be able to go out and drink and party."

"Besides," she said, "all my friends were 21 and I didn't want to spend the summer by myself."

A Poly English senior said she also uses a fake I.D. because she has older friends and wanted to party with them at the bars.

Three people interviewed all said they have several I.D.'s and all obtained their first 'fake' in what seems to have become a ritual on college campus.

Friends who are 21 routinely pass down old fake's to younger students who resemble the picture on their I.D.

"It was the fake I.D. of a girl I know," said one student. "She turned 21, so she gave it to me and said 'Treasure this.'"

Another common ploy is to forge a license. All that has to be done is find someone of age with similar height, weight, hair and eye color and apply for a new license at the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The I.D. would then be in the possession of someone 21, and your picture. According to Helen Brooks, director of Licensing at the San Luis Obispo office of the DMV, the department is supposed to have applicants provide a supplementary form of identification.

"We try to ask for a birth certificate or something to prove who you are," Brooks said. Inevitably a few people slip past, she said.

Part of Bill Daley's job at Sands Liquor & Deli is to spot fake IDs.

Traffic School

Need to keep that Citation off your DMV record? Call (805) 595-5742

Nightly Specials

Barbecued Beef Ribs $4.50
Half BBQ Chicken Dinner $4.95
Spaghetti Feed $3.95
Pork Chops $6.50

STEPPER AND DRIER

"Wearin Miller to ski bum summum Une...a combination Jean-Claude Killy, Robert Redford, Ingmar Bergman and Woody Allen."

Tues • Nov 10 • 7 & 9 pm
Cal Poly Chumash Aud.

El Coral Bookstore

CHECK OUT OUR

GREAT SELECTION

OF OVER 15,000

GENERAL BOOK TITLES

FOR EVERYDAY SAVINGS

10% OFF

All Regular Paperback & Hardback Books In Stock

35% OFF

All New York Times Hardback Bestsellers

El Coral Bookstore

STEVE PIERCE/Mustang Daily

F.McLintocks Saloon • 686 Higuera Street • Downtown San Luis Obispo • (805) 541-0686
Of all the highly personal artifacts and memorabilia gathered up at the end of each day by Nadj at the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C., it is more controversial or significant than the Congressional Medal of Honor left at "The Wall" on July 29, 1986, by a former U.S. Army Catholic chaplain named Angelo Liteky.

Nearly 20 years earlier, on the afternoon of Dec. 6, 1967, near Phuoc Linh in the province of Bien Hoa, South Vietnam, then-Captain Liteky was with a United States Army infantry unit on a "search and destroy" mission. Every trooper's worst nightmare came true when the mortar sprang an ambush and the entire company came under withering automatic weapon fire from a large enemy force hidden in the regimental positions.

Although it was his first time in combat, Captain Liteky moved in within 15 meters of an enemy machine-gun position and dragged two of the more seriously wounded to safety.

His award citation concludes, "Upon the unit's relief on the morning of Dec. 7, 1967, it was discovered that despite painful wounds in the neck and foot, Captain Liteky had personally carried over 20 men to the landing area and was responsible for the helicopter evacuation of 80 men.

"If I am to be a true patriot — that is, a person who loves this country even when it is wrong — I must morally criticize its policies."

Capt. Angelo Liteky

received it... trying to save lives. I am not a devotee of the Sandinista government and am not unaware of their human rights abuses. I am an advocate of the U.S. Government and am responsible for what it does in Nicaragua. As a result of the fact that the U.S. Government and am responsible for what it does in the name of America. If I am to be a true patriot — that is, a person who loves this country even when it is wrong — I must monitor and criticize its policies. It is both my right and my duty."

One month later, on the imposing east steps of the Capitol Building, Liteky was joined by fellow Vietnam veterans George Man and Brian Willson, along with Duncan Murphy, a 66-year-old former ambulance driver in the North African, Middle East area, and European campaigns of WWII.

More than any other group, it is today's involved veterans who are urging this country to normalize our relationship with Vietnam.

Duncan Murphy

As a result of the fact that the Base Commander had been notified beforehand that protests would be on the public portion of the tracks and the outcome reached by Bay Area Congressional representatives Bar­bara Boxer and Ron Dellums, Willson was awarded $984,000 in a out-of-court settlement.

More than any other group, it is today's involved veterans who are urging this country to normalize our relationship with Vietnam.

Duncan Murphy

was a platoon sergeant with the Fleet Marine Force in 1967-68, receiving the Medal of Honor for his heroism in Vietnam as part of their healing process.

For who knows firsthand better than veterans who served in the Vietnam conflict and have been deeply affected by their former foes.

Although highly unpopular with the flag-waving, bleary-eyed drinking types who comprise the bulk of organized veterans' groups around the country, these new veterans of the 90's point to genuine heroes such as Dwight Eisenhower and Teddy Kennedy as their inspiration.

This Veteran's Day 1992 sees progressive veterans participating in a convoy to bring much-needed medical supplies to Cuba, Vietnam, and Rehding not only form the effects of reduced Soviet aid as a result of the end of the Cold War but mostly from continuing embargoes imposed by the United States.

Statistics released by the exhaustive National Vietnam Veterans Reconversion Study show that of the 3.14 million men and women who served in Southeast Asia, nearly 960,000 have experienced the fall-out disorder known as Post-Traumatic Stress. Many of these men and women traveled back to Vietnam as part of their healing process.

As a result of the fact that the U.S. Government and am responsible for what it does in Nicaragua.

It is both my right and my duty."

Byrned up by support from several veteran's activist groups, the four men moved their focus to California, in particular, the Concord Naval Weapons Station.

"If I am to be a true patriot — that is, a person who loves this country even when it is wrong — I must morally criticize its policies. It is both my right and my duty."

It was here that ex-Air Force officer and Vietnam veteran lawyer Brian Willson lost both his legs and had his brain case split open when a train carrying explosives bound for Central America refused to stop for Willson and fellow "For Past For Life" veteran Traumatic Stress. Many of these men and women who served in the United States.

Due to the effects of a large enemy force, Liteky's group needed medical supplies to Cuba. It is with Fidel Castro in Cuba. It is with Fidel Castro in Cuba.
This is the story about how I found Jesus.

And if there ever was a town to find the almighty Lord, San Luis Obispo would be it. Circumstantial evidence certainly isn't lacking. Sometimes it seems like a person can't swing a dead cat without hitting someone who is trying to pass out a religious pamphlet.

Coming to San Luis Obispo from San Francisco was spiritual trauma. Moving was a shock to me because the religious zealoits here are much different than home.

The Bay Area zealots are, if anything, visible. Most have a big neon cross strapped to their three things:

cheap malt liquor.
mixture of heroin, caffeine and anything, visible. Most have a steadily worn down by holy through, town, that sacred clog

I was nothing but a clog being time spent in my clockwise orbit.

It's really not as bad as it isn't lacking. Sometimes it seems vividly.

And now you must too.

And this was typical of the criticism that Petersen has received from Mustang Daily and other publications since he decided to run last spring. Hopefully the situation can continue to improve and Petersen to develop into the impressive candidate he became.

Petersen's recent defeat in the San Luis Obispo City Council race doesn't diminish Mustang Daily's admiration for the amount of effort it has seen Petersen put into educating him self throughout the course of the campaign.

As the Daily's campaign endorsements, Brent has come a long way in a short time. His efforts to maintain his int letters to the editor

Publius needs to 'get a life'

Concerning Publius' (Matthew Stanley) commentary (Nov. 9), "Gun control at Cal Poly," I would like to say the following: GET A LIFE.

It would be best if you learned the facts before mouthing off about Cal Poly's gun policies. If you ever bothered to check the California penal codes, you would know that it is a felony to have a firearm on any CSU campus. It is also illegal to possess a knife or short barbed blade over 3 inches in length.

This means that if you live off campus and keep the aforementioned items in your truck, you break the law by bringing them on campus. Can you say felony? I thought you could.

If you want to have your guns at school, why don't you try talking to the people at Public Safety? I currently have my 44 magnum, 12-gauge and IRS checked in there. All you have to do is tell them that you want to check in some guns. If they are not open, call x221. You can get your guns and go shooting anytime you want. I'm sure that Gov. Wilson will at least give you five to 10 minutes notice before he has to report to duty.

The other items that you listed are only banned from the dorms. Keep them in your car if you like; no one is going to stop you. Just stop your whining.

Jimmy Tomlinson
Computer Engineering

County worker asks for courtesy

As the AIDS Program Coordinator for the San Luis Obispo County Health Department, I frequently get requests from students for information about AIDS as a part of their class work. I have had many such requests, most of them from students who were courtesious, somewhat knowledgeable about the disease and aware that I have other time priorities. I have also had instances where students call Friday afternoon needing information for a paper due the following Monday. The worst is students who write in, rudely demand information on the spot and know nothing about the disease.

I know other service providers feel the same way I do. When students make requests and don't demand, call and make an appointment and know something about the issues, then we are more than willing to give them time, information and help (lots of help) with their papers and presentations. Students who offer to do an hour's worth of volunteer work in return for help are the most appreciated.

Don't spoil the access to the community for the students who come after you. Rude behavior creates unnecessary problems between students and the community that we all want to avoid.

Marcha Bollinger
SLO County Health Department

Supervisor thanks voters

On behalf of my campaign committee, my hundred-plus volunteers, my "Faithful 3,000" campaign donors, I wish to thank each and every Cal Poly student who believed in and voted for me.

I also congratulate Wendy Nogle on her effort. She conducted a tough, hard-driving, professional campaign. She fought strongly and fairly for her cause. She deserves our admiration, and we in this campaign learned a lot about our region and our concerns. We reached out to her and said, "Your views have been well stated, let's talk." Our concerns were respected and listened to.

I'm sorry we can't afford to print "Thank You" advertisements in the paper. We spent every dime we had just trying to win. We're profoundly grateful that it was enough.

David Blakey
SLO County Supervisor
5th District
From page 1 wanted their money to go to, and that the person had simply neglected to do so. Rockenstein said fundraisers like the bachelor auction helped, but were not enough to keep polySCOPE from being strapped for funds. He said more fundraisers in the future will get polySCOPE out of debt and help it improve itself.

Rockenstein said another thing that hurt polySCOPE was the dwindling of the staff from 40 in the spring to 20 in the fall. "It was a real problem," Rockenstein said. "(Tasks) always seemed to fall back on a couple people. A lot of pressure was put on people to produce in a short amount of time."

With the reduction in personnel came changes in leadership, he said. Burnett had to work with Rockenstein said another thing that hurt polySCOPE was the dwindling of the staff from 40 in the spring to 20 in the fall. "It was a real problem," Rockenstein said. "(Tasks) always seemed to fall back on a couple people. A lot of pressure was put on people to produce in a short amount of time."

With the reduction in personnel came changes in leadership, he said. Burnett had to work with.

Burnett and Petersen both said they would like to see polySCOPE play a role in the future in producing accurate reports on how the City Council votes on issues. Burnett also said she would like to see the City Council meetings.

"Every person on polySCOPE made an incredible effort in trying to place a student on City Council," Petersen said. "PolySCOPE is a fledgling organization that hopefully will grow and mature. I think it was a pretty good first effort."

polySCOPE's founder and former ASI President David Kapic in the spring, Rockenstein in the summer and polySCOPE Chair Rex Smith in the fall.

Burnett and Petersen both said they would like to see polySCOPE play a role in the future in producing accurate reports on how the City Council votes on issues. Burnett also said she would like to see the City Council meetings.

"Every person on polySCOPE made an incredible effort in trying to place a student on City Council," Petersen said. "PolySCOPE is a fledgling organization that hopefully will grow and mature. I think it was a pretty good first effort."

polySCOPE's founder and former ASI President David Kapic in the spring, Rockenstein in the summer and polySCOPE Chair Rex Smith in the fall.

Burnett and Petersen both said they would like to see polySCOPE play a role in the future in producing accurate reports on how the City Council votes on issues. Burnett also said she would like to see the City Council meetings.

"Every person on polySCOPE made an incredible effort in trying to place a student on City Council," Petersen said. "PolySCOPE is a fledgling organization that hopefully will grow and mature. I think it was a pretty good first effort."

polySCOPE's founder and former ASI President David Kapic in the spring, Rockenstein in the summer and polySCOPE Chair Rex Smith in the fall.

Burnett and Petersen both said they would like to see polySCOPE play a role in the future in producing accurate reports on how the City Council votes on issues. Burnett also said she would like to see the City Council meetings.

"Every person on polySCOPE made an incredible effort in trying to place a student on City Council," Petersen said. "PolySCOPE is a fledgling organization that hopefully will grow and mature. I think it was a pretty good first effort."

polySCOPE's founder and former ASI President David Kapic in the spring, Rockenstein in the summer and polySCOPE Chair Rex Smith in the fall.
From page 3 and magnetic stripes much like those found on credit cards, the magazine said. English junior Hanna Meyn recently renewed her driver's license and found the new system more foolproof.

"After filling out all my information," Meyn said, "I had to place my finger in a machine and roll it around for the fingerprint. A computer checked my new fingerprint against the old one that appeared on the screen with my information.

I was appalled at the extent for those wanting to fake it at the DMV, one student said she managed to get a new credit card-style I.D.

"I just went in the DMV with my brother's birth certificate, she had, in essence, created a whole new person. No matter how foolproof I.D. got, if people want one bad enough, they will find a way to get it.

...
Please join us for our Annual Open House
Saturday, November 14
10:00am - 4:30pm

For this special event, Save an additional 20% on a huge selection of gift books, holiday gifts, and Cal Poly clothing

There will be refreshments and a special activity for children

* With purchases of $100.00 or more, you will receive a FREE stuffed "Cal Poly" Bear

---

Poly soccer finishes season with 2-1 win

By Cam Inman
Sports Editor

One year ago at this time, Cal Poly's men's soccer team was preparing for a trip to the NCAA Division II playoffs.

Now, the Mustangs are preparing for next season as they ended their 1991 schedule Sunday with a 2-1 win at home over U.C. Santa Cruz.

Cal Poly, which reached the semifinal-round of last year's playoffs only to lose to Sonoma State, ended this year's season with a 13-7-1 overall record.

The Mustangs 7-4-1 conference mark placed them third in the California Collegiate Athletic Association behind Cal State Bakersfield and CCAA champ Cal State Los Angeles.

"It was a good season. Not an outstanding one compared to our standards, but maybe to the standards of other teams," said Cal Poly head coach Wolfgang Gartner.

Injuries to key players caused Gartner to shuffle his lineup more often than he would have liked this year.

Forward Rhyne Hendriksen and goalkeeper Ang Jones sat out most of the year with leg injuries, while Chris Fisher and Joe Korngeibel spent time on the sidelines.

"Every team in all sports has injuries," said Gartner. "We had more than our usual share, and those were to star players."

Cal Poly's season was highlighted by beating Fresno State and handing Cal State Los Angeles its only loss of the season as the Golden Eagles head into the playoffs.

It's low points were losses to San Diego State, Cal State Bakersfield and Cal State Dominguez Hills.

On Sunday, Cal Poly took a 1-0 on Chris Fisher's penalty kick with just under 11 minutes left in the first half.

After Santa Cruz tied it in the second half, Mike Black shot out of a crowd in front of the net for the game-winner.

---

University Union Games Area

During the past few weeks there has been a lot of misconception about McPhee's Mustang Lanes. We would like to inform everyone that we are alive and well. In fact, this could be our best year ever! Please stop by and see how we have improved our services, and take advantage of one of our weekly specials.

* Monday CASINO BOWLING (win cash) Starts at 7:00
* Tuesday 9:00 to close 75c Bowling
* Wednesday Moonlight Pizza & Bowling $7.00
  (all you can eat & bowl from 6:00 to close)
* Sunday Pizza & Bowling $7:00
  (all you can eat & bowl from 6:00 to close)
* Plus all week long until 5:00
  75c per game even on week-ends

at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo