4 veterans, 1 newcomer to vie for top ASI jobs

By Suzanne Mulfett

Four veterans and a name new to ASI have found their way to the final roster of those vying for ASI’s top two positions in next week’s elections.

ASI veterans Erica Brown and Louie Brown are both running for the 1994-95 president, with Brown, a business senior, Berry hasn’t previously held an office with ASI.

In the board chair race are two candidates currently serving as representatives from the College of Engineering: John Lew and Bob Martin.

By Rick Gladstono

The worst may not be over for the U.S. stock market, plummeted last week by a barrage of economic and political news that investors have increasingly viewed as signs of rising inflation and uncertainty.

NEWS ANALYSIS

Many professionals don’t rule out a renewed selling assault today when the market reacts from a three-day Easter weekend. But others say the requisite gave investors an opportunity to rethink the implications of dumping stocks. Some forecasters are even expecting stocks to rebound.

U.S. may provoke N. Korea to stop nuclear program

By Kim I. Mills

WASHINGTON — The worst may not be over for the U.S. stock market, plummeted last week by a barrage of economic and political news that investors have increasingly viewed as signs of rising inflation and uncertainty.

WASHINGTON — The United States is willing to risk provoking war to stop North Korea’s program to develop nuclear weapons, but “we’re not on the brink of crisis,” Defense Secretary William Perry said Sunday.

“We do not want and will not provoke a war over this or any other issue in Korea,” Perry said Sunday on NBC’s “Meet the Press.”

“We will take a very firm stand and strong actions. It’s conceivable where those actions might provoke North Korea,” Perry said Sunday on NBC’s “Meet the Press.”

ASI veterans Erica Brown and Louie Brown are both running for the 1994-95 president, with Brown, a business senior, Berry hasn’t previously held an office with ASI.

In the board chair race are two candidates currently serving as representatives from the College of Engineering: John Lew and Bob Martin.

By Suzanne Mulfett

Four veterans and a name new to ASI have found their way to the final roster of those vying for ASI’s top two positions in next week’s elections.

ASI veterans Erica Brown and Louie Brown are both running for the 1994-95 president, with Brown, a business senior, Berry hasn’t previously held an office with ASI.

In the board chair race are two candidates currently serving as representatives from the College of Engineering: John Lew and Bob Martin.

By Suzanne Mulfett

Four veterans and a name new to ASI have found their way to the final roster of those vying for ASI’s top two positions in next week’s elections.

ASI veterans Erica Brown and Louie Brown are both running for the 1994-95 president, with Brown, a business senior, Berry hasn’t previously held an office with ASI.

In the board chair race are two candidates currently serving as representatives from the College of Engineering: John Lew and Bob Martin.

ASI veterans Erica Brown and Louie Brown are both running for the 1994-95 president, with Brown, a business senior, Berry hasn’t previously held an office with ASI.

In the board chair race are two candidates currently serving as representatives from the College of Engineering: John Lew and Bob Martin.

ASI veterans Erica Brown and Louie Brown are both running for the 1994-95 president, with Brown, a business senior, Berry hasn’t previously held an office with ASI.

In the board chair race are two candidates currently serving as representatives from the College of Engineering: John Lew and Bob Martin.

ASI veterans Erica Brown and Louie Brown are both running for the 1994-95 president, with Brown, a business senior, Berry hasn’t previously held an office with ASI.

In the board chair race are two candidates currently serving as representatives from the College of Engineering: John Lew and Bob Martin.

ASI veterans Erica Brown and Louie Brown are both running for the 1994-95 president, with Brown, a business senior, Berry hasn’t previously held an office with ASI.

In the board chair race are two candidates currently serving as representatives from the College of Engineering: John Lew and Bob Martin.

ASI veterans Erica Brown and Louie Brown are both running for the 1994-95 president, with Brown, a business senior, Berry hasn’t previously held an office with ASI.

In the board chair race are two candidates currently serving as representatives from the College of Engineering: John Lew and Bob Martin.

ASI veterans Erica Brown and Louie Brown are both running for the 1994-95 president, with Brown, a business senior, Berry hasn’t previously held an office with ASI.

In the board chair race are two candidates currently serving as representatives from the College of Engineering: John Lew and Bob Martin.

ASI veterans Erica Brown and Louie Brown are both running for the 1994-95 president, with Brown, a business senior, Berry hasn’t previously held an office with ASI.

In the board chair race are two candidates currently serving as representatives from the College of Engineering: John Lew and Bob Martin.

ASI veterans Erica Brown and Louie Brown are both running for the 1994-95 president, with Brown, a business senior, Berry hasn’t previously held an office with ASI.

In the board chair race are two candidates currently serving as representatives from the College of Engineering: John Lew and Bob Martin.

ASI veterans Erica Brown and Louie Brown are both running for the 1994-95 president, with Brown, a business senior, Berry hasn’t previously held an office with ASI.

In the board chair race are two candidates currently serving as representatives from the College of Engineering: John Lew and Bob Martin.
ELECTION: ASI looks to diversify with more women, fewer Greeks in coming race

From page 1

"I want to make it more approachable so that students feel they have a voice."

ASI Executive Vice President Louise Brown — who last April was considered somewhat of an "outsider" to ASI — said running for president wasn’t a hard choice for him. "I want to remain involved with ASI and I want to see through programs I helped implement and make sure they have a future," he said. He is involved in the reorganization of the Multicultural Center, and is also on the Board of Supervisors. Nakaishi said he feels the turnout was encouraging. "There seems to be more women this year," he said. "There are also more people who have not been involved with ASI before." Last year, there were four women campaigning for the board of directors, but no females ran for president or chair. This year, five women are running for representative positions and one is campaigning for president. Nakaishi said he and his committee made phone calls and attended club meetings in an effort to encourage new people to run. "We tried to get the word out so people who had an interest would pursue it," he said. The filing period closed with a slightly more diverse list of hopefuls than in past years. Nakaishi said he feels the turnout was encouraging. "There seems to be more women this year," he said. "There are also more people who have not been involved with ASI before." Last year, there were four women campaigning for the board of directors, but no females ran for president or chair. This year, five women are running for representative positions and one in campaigning for president. The committee admits it had problems contacting clubs, Nakaishi said, because most clubs don’t meet...
ELECTION

From page 2 during "dead week," finals week or the first week of the quarter. He said he tried to get the filing period extended, but was unsuccessful.

ASI President Marquain Piros said he was optimistic about the final list of candidates.

"We're looking forward to strong races between the president and chairman of the board," Piros said. "We have quite a few people running, and it will be exciting to see the results."

Nakaishi and Piros said they are both looking forward to a larger voter turnout this year. In last year's election, approximately 1,600 people voted, which represented about 10 percent of the student body.

"We need to do something to motivate people to go out and vote."

Chris Nakaishi
ASI Elections Chair

We attempt to fit ourselves to your needs, not you to the institution's formula.

N. KOREA: U.S. wants to examine nuclear sites from page 1, the North Koreans into unleashing a war, and that is a risk that we're taking."

Perry said the CIA believes that North Korea already has as many as two nuclear bombs and is continuing to develop atomic weapons.

I do not know they're lying when they say they're not developing a nuclear program," Perry said. "I do not know they're lying in saying ... they could very well conceivably that having a nuclear-free peninsula would be to their advantage."

The United States and the United Nations have been pressing North Korea to allow international inspectors to examine its nuclear sites. North Korea has given no public indication that it is willing to do so.

In the meantime, the United States and South Korea have postponed deciding on whether to resume joint military exercises -- although Perry said both sides were discussing a schedule Sunday.

The Washington Post reported Saturday that North Korea is about six months from doubling its capacity to produce plutonium for atomic weapons.

The United States' primary concern is to stop any further nuclear development in North Korea, but not necessarily to try to take away any nuclear weapons they now have, Perry said.

"At such time as we succeed at that, then we can be concerned about rolling back the program they have," he said.

Until then, the United States will continue to employ "imaginative and aggressive diplomatic actions," according to Perry.

"We don't have to have results this week or next week. The problems we're concerned about will take a year or two to unfold, so we can be firm, but we can be patient," he said.

However, Perry said if the situation doesn't change in six months, the United States would move "out of the diplomatic mode and into the mode of putting pressure" on North Korea, including economic sanctions.

Asked whether he would rule out a pre-emptive military strike against North Korea under any circumstances, Perry said, "I would not rule anything out or anything in."

But he was careful to say that he thinks war is unlikely.

"This is not an imminent crisis," he said.

The North Koreans have a range of options they could take short of war, including economic sanctions.

asked whether he would rule out a pre-emptive military strike against North Korea under any circumstances, Perry said, "I would not rule anything out or anything in."

He was careful to say that he thinks war is unlikely.

"This is not an imminent crisis," he said.

The North Koreans have a range of options they could take short of war, including terrorism or "military harassing actions," Perry said.

"We don't have to have results this week or next week. The problems we're concerned about will take a year or two to unfold, so we can be firm, but we can be patient," he said.

However, Perry said if the situation doesn't change in six months, the United States would move "out of the diplomatic mode and into the mode of putting pressure" on North Korea, including economic sanctions.

We attempt to fit ourselves to your needs, not you to the institution's formula.
Beware the literary-institutional complex

By Justin Eparing

There's a conspiracy going on at Cal Poly! It's not the shortage of courses or the decrease in funding—it's from the problem that every student deals with at this time of the quarter, no, it is much simpler and much less conspicuous. Yet, if it affects us all, students. It is the problem that every student deals with at this time of the quarter, that of buying books.

I was shocked to see that for one class alone I had to spend nearly $130. That might not be unreasonable in 1985 and so I know there are used copies of it out there. The problem is that the bookstores won't buy them back because if students kept using old books, then publishers and authors (to a lesser extent) would never make their money.

Now I know that the publishers would argue that the reason they come out with new books so much is because they have to revise the older texts. I have to wonder about that statement though, since in my case the book published in 1978 has only been revised three times. That means there must not have been a whole lot wrong with it. In other cases, it seems like a new edition comes out every other year. This was true for a political science class I had last year. I used an older edition, instead of the eighth, and there were no major changes in the structure or content at all. Yet everyone was forced to buy the new edition, thus increasing the profits of the publisher and author.

Thus I come to the conspiracy theory. Okay, I admit that conspiracy may be too strong a term. We reserve that one for JFK assassination theories and other government actions, but this is a serious problem.

The whole textbook industry tries to suck all the money they can from us instead of fostering an environment of higher learning...
The Matt Hubal Memorial fund is accepting donations for an eighty page tribute booklet of his work and personal comments from his loved ones. If you would like to donate to this cause, please contact Craig Stout or Dan Burke at the Mustang Daily office located in the Graphic Arts building room 226. This book will be distributed at his memorial service at 8:00pm Tuesday, April 5 at Grace Bible Church. All donations will be used for printing costs. Any amount will be greatly appreciated.

Valencia
The Most Complete Student Housing Complex in Town!

- Private Rooms at Discount Prices
- Private Fitness Center with Modern Equipment
- Large, Plush Lounge with a Giant 70 inch TV
- Computer Center and Study Room, When Quiet is a Must
- Large Pool Area for Sun Tanning
- Located Only Minutes from School and Shopping
- Water, Trash and Gas are all Paid by Valencia
- Three different Payment Plans to Choose From
- NEW THIS YEAR - Good Student Discounts*

*4.00 GPA --- 10% Discount
3.50 GPA --- 7% Discount
3.00 GPA --- 5% Discount

If reserving an apartment now for next year seems a little premature, it’s not. It’s truly the best time. Why? Because you can take advantage of Valencia’s Early Bird Specials and SAVE BIG DOLLARS!!

To help get you motivated a little early, Valencia Apartments is offering our BIGGEST SPECIAL EVER … THE FIRST 100 APPLICANTS TO SIGN A NINE MONTH LEASE FOR NEXT FALL WILL RECEIVE $100 OFF OF THEIR MOVE-IN COSTS!

Take a tour and sign up before April 30th and you’ll also be entered into a drawing to receive:

FALL’S TUITION FREE

Today under new management, Valencia Apartments offers students more amenities and greater flexibility than ever before.

Details at Complex

555 RAMONA DRIVE
543-1450
Poly claims consolation title from Pioneers

By Tim Vincent
Cal Poly Staff Writer

Bouncing back from a first-round loss in the Pioneer Invitational, the Cal Poly women's softball team captured the consolation title with an extra-innings win over host Cal State Hayward.

Cal Poly reached the consolation final with an 8-2 win over Chico State, highlighted by Scattini's five-for-six at the plate to help the Mustangs advance to the consolation title game Saturday in the Pioneer Invitational.

The Mustangs returned to their winning form in Thursday's second contest, edging Sonoma State 1-0 behind Waayers' three-hit performance on the mound. The senior fanned eight while walking one over six innings. Christie Punches had two of Cal Poly's four hits to lead the team at the plate.

Cal Poly trounced New York Technical Institute 11-1 in Friday's first game, banging out 17 hits offensively. Henry picked up the win for the Mustangs, scattering four hits over five innings.

The Mustangs continued their winning ways Saturday, edging Sonoma State 1-0 behind Waayers' three-hit performance on the mound. The senior fanned eight while walking one over six innings. Christie Punches had two of Cal Poly's four hits to lead the team at the plate.

Sonoma State was held to one run and two hits in the contest. Cynthia Barnett was 3-for-4 and Punches added a triple to lead Cal Poly at the plate.

Linfield College handed the Mustangs their second setback of the tourney in Friday's nightcap, slipping past Cal Poly 1-0.

Cal Poly returns to California Collegiate Athletic Association play Saturday, visiting UC-Riverside before returning home Sunday for an 11 a.m. matchup against Cal State San Bernardino.

Linfield College handed the Mustangs their second setback of the tourney in Friday's nightcap, slipping past Cal Poly 1-0.

Cal Poly returns to California Collegiate Athletic Association play Saturday, visiting UC-Riverside before returning home Sunday for an 11 a.m. matchup against Cal State San Bernardino.

Linfield College handed the Mustangs their second setback of the tourney in Friday's nightcap, slipping past Cal Poly 1-0.

Cal Poly returns to California Collegiate Athletic Association play Saturday, visiting UC-Riverside before returning home Sunday for an 11 a.m. matchup against Cal State San Bernardino.

Linfield College handed the Mustangs their second setback of the tourney in Friday's nightcap, slipping past Cal Poly 1-0.

Cal Poly returns to California Collegiate Athletic Association play Saturday, visiting UC-Riverside before returning home Sunday for an 11 a.m. matchup against Cal State San Bernardino.

Linfield College handed the Mustangs their second setback of the tourney in Friday's nightcap, slipping past Cal Poly 1-0.

Cal Poly returns to California Collegiate Athletic Association play Saturday, visiting UC-Riverside before returning home Sunday for an 11 a.m. matchup against Cal State San Bernardino.

Linfield College handed the Mustangs their second setback of the tourney in Friday's nightcap, slipping past Cal Poly 1-0.

Cal Poly returns to California Collegiate Athletic Association play Saturday, visiting UC-Riverside before returning home Sunday for an 11 a.m. matchup against Cal State San Bernardino.

Linfield College handed the Mustangs their second setback of the tourney in Friday's nightcap, slipping past Cal Poly 1-0.

Cal Poly returns to California Collegiate Athletic Association play Saturday, visiting UC-Riverside before returning home Sunday for an 11 a.m. matchup against Cal State San Bernardino.

Linfield College handed the Mustangs their second setback of the tourney in Friday's nightcap, slipping past Cal Poly 1-0.

Cal Poly returns to California Collegiate Athletic Association play Saturday, visiting UC-Riverside before returning home Sunday for an 11 a.m. matchup against Cal State San Bernardino.

Linfield College handed the Mustangs their second setback of the tourney in Friday's nightcap, slipping past Cal Poly 1-0.

Cal Poly returns to California Collegiate Athletic Association play Saturday, visiting UC-Riverside before returning home Sunday for an 11 a.m. matchup against Cal State San Bernardino.

Linfield College handed the Mustangs their second setback of the tourney in Friday's nightcap, slipping past Cal Poly 1-0.

Cal Poly returns to California Collegiate Athletic Association play Saturday, visiting UC-Riverside before returning home Sunday for an 11 a.m. matchup against Cal State San Bernardino.
MUSTANG DAILY
MONDAY, APRIL 4, 1994
7

POLY netters reach host tournament from page 8

From page 8

SONI: Scoot over baseball, make room for collegiate horse polo

The game was as entertaining as any Steven Spielberg movi and as refreshing as a glass of milk.

Next for Cal Poly polo is outdoor competition which starts in a couple of weeks. The polo club is open to anyone, so hey, maybe I’ll even slap a mallet with you out at the polo ground.

By the way: Stanford beat Moorpark Junior Col lege in the men’s championship. Cal Poly finished 4th.

UC-Santa Barbara defeated Cal-Davis for the women’s championship. Cal Poly’s women’s team was eliminated in the first round.

The men’s and women’s West Region Champions earn berths in the national championships hosted by Baker City Ranch in Burleson, Texas.
The game was as entertaining as any Steven Spielberg movie and as refreshing as a lightly frosted glass of milk after devouring a slice of warm apple pie. Although I didn’t see any horses thunder 30 yards on a fastbreak, I did see shots from 40 yards out bang the targeted boards of the barn door outlined by duct tape and riders lean in one stirrup over the back and backhand it accurately enough to dribble the leather ball against the barn doors for a goal. That’s entertaining as any Steven Spielberg movie and as refreshing as a lightly frosted glass of milk after devouring a slice of warm apple pie.

I am one for originality and the bizarre. If someone devised some game involving a marsupial, peanut butter and a nine iron, I would much rather watch that than a Giants vs. Dodgers game.

For this reason, I was as ecstatic as a local liquor store owner was to hear Open House (Poly Royal) is back as I watched it with a group of friends the Mustang Open, a equestrian competition played out in the Morning Star Equestrian Centre in San Luis Obispo during the end of Spring Break. The event is organized by the Cal Poly Equestrian Club and is one of the most prestigious events in the country. The event is a showcasing of the finest equestrian athletes from across the country, competing in a variety of disciplines, including dressage, jumping, and hunt seat. The competition is highly anticipated by equestrians and spectators alike, and the atmosphere is electric. The event is a testament to the passion and dedication of the equestrian community.

The event is a testament to the passion and dedication of the equestrian community. The competition is highly anticipated by equestrians and spectators alike, and the atmosphere is electric. The event is a showcasing of the finest equestrian athletes from across the country, competing in a variety of disciplines, including dressage, jumping, and hunt seat. The competition is a testament to the passion and dedication of the equestrian community.