Greeks groups facing suspensions

By Ryan Becker
Daily Staff Writer

If a Cal Poly fraternity and a Greek honor society can't successfully appeal their suspensions, both may be forced to close their doors for good, according to Interfraternity Council (IFC) President Ben Rossi.

Delta Tau, a social fraternity, and Order of Omega, a Greek honor society, were suspended from university affiliation for violating Cal Poly's alcohol policy in separate incidents. In December, the Interfraternity Council (IFC) slapped Delta Tau with a 25-year suspension, one of the longest in Cal Poly's history. "We have suspended fraternity in the past, but this is an unprecedented length of time," said Walt Lambert, IFC coordinator.

The IFC meets weekly to coordinate all fraternity events and ensure that fraternities follow campus guidelines.

"When the suspension is that long, you're basically just locking the door and saying goodbye," Lambert said. If the decisions are upheld, Lambert said the organizations would be barred from all university-related events, including Rush and Greek Week, but would still operate independently off-campus. Still, he said the suspensions are significant because campus events are a large part of a fraternity's social calendar.

According to a letter released after a student life and activities hearing, the IFC was alerted to possible violations of alcohol policy after a pre-Thanksgiving party at Delta Tau’s house. Alcohol was served, and several guests slept at the house. The members of Delta Tau will appeal their 25-year suspension.

See GREEK page 5

Architecture design students row, row, row cardboard boats gently across Laguna Lake

By Matthew Reagan
Daily Staff Writer

Most mornings, the serene waters of Laguna Lake barely ripple in the breeze. But Saturday brought a crew of more than 50 architecture students to the lake, racing the boats they designed and constructed of just cardboard, tape and polyurethane and causing more than a ripple to stir the water.

The waters churned and the startled ducks moved to the other side of the lake as the students paddled, rowed and splashed in an attempt to keep their creations afloat. Many wore wetsuits, anticipating the worst: a sunken ship. But most of the boats proved "lake-worthy."

The race itself had two heats, each consisting of the first half (alphabetically ordered) of each class section. The students, ears in hand, paddled themselves from the dock out to the starting point, then turned around and raced back to the shore. Each boat had its own unique flair, depending on which design the student felt would keep the craft afloat. Student designs ranged from small canoes to portions of a model resembling an inner tube. Some of the students opted to design for speed while others were more concerned with just staying out of the water. Most of the students used oars, but a couple, because of their ship's design, found hand-paddle more successful.

In the end it was one of the more unique designs that tied for first place in the second heat.

"It feels great to know that everything we put into it worked out," Rossi said. "It took a lot of love and care, and a lot of hard work and craftsmanship." Students from three different sections of Design Fundamentals II spent two weeks designing and testing their boats. The winners received titles and a pay raise.

See BOAT page 3

Secretaries to picket for new title, pay raise

By Ryan Becker
Daily Staff Writer

Cal Poly’s departmental secretaries plan to begin picketing in front of the administration building today at noon.

The 28 departmental secretaries, all women, planned the protest after school officials rejected their gender-bias grievance, requesting updated job classifications and a pay raise.

"These job descriptions are 20 years old," said Alice Gold, a secretary in the physics department. "We have to be specialists in everything."

"This is one of many job classifications which, because it is associated with women, is worst-paid," she continued.

The grievance calls for redetermination of every departmental secretary to "administrative operations analyst" and a five-year, 5-percent retroactive pay raise.

The grievance has already been rejected in the first two levels of campus review. Gold said Friday is the deadline for filing the final level of on-campus review with Cal Poly President Warren Baker.

"We will picket every day this week," Gold said. "If we don't hear from the administration, we will file on Friday."

If President Baker rejects the grievance, the secretaries can take their complaint to the Chancellor's office. If it is rejected again, the issue moves to arbitration.
TOP OF THE AGENDA

Jan. 26-Feb. 1

POLY PAL'S HAVING A "BIG BROTHERS/BIG SISTERS ORIENTATION MEETING TODAY".

If you are interested in volunteering to give a child some companionship, the meeting is from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. in U.U. room 219.

The Women's Studies Program and the Status of Women Committee is sponsoring a panel discussion entitled: "Perspectives on the Campus Climate for Cal Poly Women, Faculty, Staff and Administrators." Speakers include Gloria Velezquez, Pat Harris, Phillip Bailey and Carolyn Stefanco. Anyone is welcome to attend and participate in the discussion. Go to Staff Dining Room B at 12:10 p.m. For more information call the Women's Studies Program Office at 756-1255.

THURSDAY

Have you ever wondered what it would be like to be a mentor? The Mentor Alliance of San Luis Obispo County is holding a Mentor Orientation tonight from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Jack Dugan classroom on the California Conservation Corps campus. For more information call Amanda at 549-3770.

The Newman Catholic Center will be hosting a Mexican dinner to fund raise for their Cross-Cultural Programs. Bring your burrito to enter either college or the work world. You can earn options out there besides writing something in Mustang Daily. College and Career Publishing is looking for college journalists, reporters and writers to submit articles for California Work World newsletter.

ATTENTION TO ALL CLUBS

We are awarding $6000 in minigrants to clubs for community service projects.

Some past projects include:

-Designing a corral for Rancho de los Animales

-Presenting interactive science labs at Pacheco Elementary School

-Developing a mentoring program for

We can help you design a project or link with an agency in the community.

Visit us for more information...

Community Service & Learning Center
UU 217-D
Phone # 756-5834
http://www.calpoly.edu/~scs

By Victor L. Simpson
Associated Press

Havana -- At the last and biggest Mass of his 5-day pilgrimage to Cuba, Pope John Paul II called Sunday for the creation in communist Cuba of a new society offering "peace, justice and freedom" but warned of the dangers of capitalism.

A huge crowd summoned by the communist government as well as the church filled Havana's Plaza of the Revolution which, with some sections blocked off, had a capacity of about a quarter million.

President Fidel Castro sat in the front row. Beside him was Nobel-winning novelist Gabriel Garcia Marquez of Colombia.

In his homily, often interrupted by warm applause, the pope said the message of his trip and of his church was one of "love and solidarity.

"In no way is this an ideology or a new economic or political system; rather it is a path of authentic peace, justice and freedom," he said.

He took at swipe at Castro's government, which has dropped its official embrace of atheism in 1992 and had summoned crowds to the pope's trip, when he said "a modern state cannot make atheism or religion one of its political ordinances."

But he also delivered a stinging condemnation of what he called "blind market forces."

"Because of these forces, he said, "we thus see a small number of countries growing exceedingly rich at the cost of the increasing impoverishment of a great number of other countries. As a result the wealthy grow even wealthier, while the poor grow even poorer."

State-run Radio Rebelde had broadcast repeated calls to Havana residents to attend, and the government employed its machinery for bringing in crowds from outlaying areas in buses and trucks -- normally to pro-government rallies.

Many participants saw no contradiction in the support of the communist government, which until 1992 formally embraced atheism, for the Mass and the trip.

"I believe in many ways the church and the party have always worked together," said Xiomara Mendez, 32, who came with her 10-year-old son, Maizel. They left their home in Varadero, a resort town east of Havana, at 2 a.m. to make it to the Mass on time.

In the strongest political message of his Cuba trip, John Paul appealed Saturday to Cuba's communist government to release dozens of political prisoners.

The pontiff asked for the release of all "prisoners of conscience" on this communist island and respect for three freedoms -- of expression, initiative and association.

His appeal came during a dramatic evening pilgrimage to the reposearium and religious center of St. Lazarus, outside Havana, where he spoke to workers, teachers and AIDS patients.

"Suffering is not only physical," said the 77-year-old pontiff, who is impaired by a variety of ailments and injuries.

"There is also suffering of the soul, such as we see in those who are isolated, persecuted, imprisoned for various offenses or for reasons of conscience, for ideas which though dissipate are nonetheless peaceful."

He said he encouraged efforts to return "these prisoners of conscience" to society.

Human rights groups say Cuba holds at least 500 political prisoners.

On Thursday, the second day of his five-day visit, Vatican officials asked for clemency on behalf of several hundred Cuban prisoners, both political detainees and common criminals.

John Paul's Saturday morning Mass in Santiago, Cuba's second city, was broadcast live on national television, bringing into homes across Cuba unusually candid words about the 59-year-old revolution. It was attended by about 100,000.
Lewinsky lawyer says she’ll “tell all”

By Pete Yost
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Anxious to cut a deal for immunity, the lawyer for Monica Lewinsky said Sunday his 24-year-old client "will tell all that she knows" to Whitewater prosecutors. "The chips will fall as they may," he said.

Attorney William Ginsburg said he has verbally indicated to investigators what Lewinsky will tell them in exchange for immunity from prosecution.

"I will remain in Washington as long as it takes to see that the truth in every detail, wherever it may fall, comes out," Ginsburg said. Negotiations of such a sensitive nature could take weeks.

President Clinton talked this weekend with his 24-year-old client, said the lawyer for Monica Lewinsky, adding that his interest in the controversy but has bounced off subpoenas like an Uzi, a ref­erence to the impeding grand jury questioning faced as early as Tuesday by long-time Clinton confidant Vernon Jordan and other witnesses.

"One thing that isn’t going on in this case," said Rahm Emanuel, a top White House adviser.

The lawyer for Monica Lewinsky, Kenneth Starr, declined comment on the ABC report. "If true, such a witness would provide important corroborating, disturbing evidence, Lewinsky’s account if she reverses her current denial of an affair with the president. In secretly recorded conversations, Lewinsky had said she believed "I don’t approve of some of their tactics," but "I have nothing but the highest praise for their professionalism and their attitude," Ginsburg said.

"We are dying to tell the story, but we cannot. We are frozen in place" until his client gets total immunity, Ginsburg said.

At the White House, the first couple tried to maintain an air of normalcy, attending services at Foundry United Methodist Church as usual. Clinton rehearsed his State of the Union speech with heavyweights in an affidavit in the Paula Jones sexual harassment suit.

Clintona llyists attacked Starr for having former White House staffer Linda Tripp wired so that she could secretly record a conversation with Lewinsky.

Political consultant Paul Begala criticized Starr for "firing off subpoenas like an Uzi," a reference to the impeding grand jury questioning faced as early as Tuesday by long-time Clinton confidant Vernon Jordan and other witnesses.

"One thing that isn’t going on in this case," said Rahm Emanuel, a top White House adviser.

House Judiciary Committee chairman Henry Hyde spoke cautiously about the possibility of an impeachment inquiry.

"Nothing much will happen until the Democrats decide something should happen," said Hyde, R-R.

In a whirlwind of appearances on ABC, NBC and CBS, Ginsburg went out of his way to praise Starr and his staff, calling them "excellent people" with whom talks have been cordial.

"I don’t approve of some of their tactics," but "I have nothing but the highest praise for their professionalism and their attitude," Ginsburg said.

Lewinsky has denied having a sexual relationship with Clinton, and that’s discussion about any talks have been cordial.

Hindus hold roses sacred and Mukeesh K. Rai maintains that he carefully ordered a beef burrito at the Taco Bell in Ventura in April.

"He clearly repeated the order twice so that he would be ensured of not receiving a burrito with meat," the lawyer states. He says he realized the mistake when he bit into it.

Hindu sues Taco Bell over bite of beef burrito

VENTURA — A devout Hindu is suing Taco Bell, claiming he suffered extreme distress because he was served a beef burrito.

Rai of Oxnard said he has bad to travel to England for a religious purification with Hindu masters. And in March, he will go to India to purify himself by bathing in the Ganges.

There was no comment from Taco Bell.

"Eating the cow, it was a really devastating experience," Rai said Friday. "So much so that I had to go to a psychiatrist. I went to a doctor. I couldn’t sleep."

In his lawsuit, filed last week, seeks damages for emotional distress, medical expenses and loss of wages.

"One thing that isn’t going on in this case," said Rahm Emanuel, a top White House adviser.

"What was served a beef burrito."

"It’s about using materials wisely," Weisenthal said. "It’s about conservation. It’s about construction."

According to Williams, the success of the project was dependent on the construction of the boats as much as the design of them.

"Some of the boat designs were the same, but they couldn’t make it because of their craftsmanship," Williams said.

The project was cut-and-dried as far as the grading—a floating boat is a passing grade, a sinking boat is a failing grade.

But most of the students did well, with more boats staying afloat then sinking.

The race, after a 20-year hiatus, has experienced two years of back-to-back success. It might not be as exciting as the first year, Weisenthal said, because as the successful designs become more well known to other students, the success rate of the boats staying afloat tends to rise.

Instead, Weisenthal said, they might come up with something new.

"It’s about using materials wisely," Weisenthal said. "It’s about conservation. It’s about construction."

According to Williams, the success of the project was dependent on the construction of the boats as much as the design of them.

"Some of the boat designs were the same, but they couldn’t make it because of their craftsmanship," Williams said.

The project was cut-and-dried as far as the grading—a floating boat is a passing grade, a sinking boat is a failing grade.

But most of the students did well, with more boats staying afloat then sinking.

The race, after a 20-year hiatus, has experienced two years of back-to-back success. It might not be as exciting as the first year, Weisenthal said, because as the successful designs become more well known to other students, the success rate of the boats staying afloat tends to rise.

Instead, Weisenthal said, they might come up with something new.
Cattle ranchers in the state of Texas have a serious beef with Oprah Winfrey. They’ve taken the top-rated daytime talk show host to court after she made off-color remarks in a 1996 broadcast about “mad-cow” disease.

“It has just stopped me cold from eating another burger,” Oprah said after her guest, anti-meat activist Howard Lyman, made comments about the disease and the potential for it to be spread to humans.

Ranchers are accusing Oprah and Lyman of turning Americans against the beef industry by linking it with mad-cow disease. They are suing Winfrey under a 1995 Texas law that holds liable anyone who makes false and disparaging statements about perishable food products.

There couldn’t be a better way to resurrect the declining image of the beef industry than a scrapesheet with such prominence. The beef industry had experienced a few problems prior to the airing of the show. Most prices had fallen because of severe drought, record high food prices were recorded and there was an oversupply of cattle.

After Oprah’s remarks, meat sales dropped further. This is the reason behind the suit against Oprah and Lyman for $103 million in damages and punitive damages.

In the words of the famous Bert Simpson, I’d advise these ranchers: “Don’t have a cow, man.” So maybe Oprah’s remarks made people think a little bit about what they eat. There’s no harm in that. Two weeks after the show’s airing, sales returned to where they were before.

No major damage done. It appears that the ranchers want to blame Oprah for the decrease in sales.

How can the prosecution prove that it was Oprah’s show that caused the added decline, anyway? By dragging into court every family in America that decided against buying extra lean ground beef for Friday night’s taco feed because of Oprah’s show? Maybe people read about mad cow disease in the newspaper. People who watch daytime TV read newspapers.

It’s just like everything else in life. People are going to do what they really want to do, which in this case is eat hamburgers whether Oprah says negative things about them or not. It’s her right to say whatever she wants to and it’s the audience’s to decide how they feel or think about it.

Considering her intense weight loss plan that we hear about all of the time, it’s hard to fault her. That seems like a little besides. I want to hear about any foods that may be associated to diseases like “mad-cow.” I want the chance to decide how I use the information after weighing the facts.

The Amarillo Daily editorial page editor said that there may be nobody alive today who will see a bigger media circus than this. But the trial’s importance—or lack thereof—was proven as soon as the President’s latest alleged sex scandal hit the papers. Who wants to read about Oprah, beef and the First Amendment when we can ponder Clinton’s sex life, anyway?”

Tips to avoid costly field repairs

Editor,

I applaud Terry Quinn’s letter published Tuesday, Jan. 20 regarding the trashign of the L-shaped field. Signs to keep off the field were put out on Friday. Unfortunately the signs got pushed over or disappeared Regardless. I would like to give Peter Ryan and his friends a few pointers.

1. If the grass makes a squishy sound when you walk on it, IT IS TOO WET TO PLAY ON!

2. If your feel sink 2 to 4 inches (as they do on the L field), IT IS TOO WET TO PLAY ON!

3. If you can slide and/or the grass turns black from the mud you are generating, IT IS TOO WET TO PLAY ON!

Field repairs are very costly and take time to complete. Therefore, everyone is affected by the damage, especially the clubs and other athletes who have gone through the proper channels to reserve the fields for their use.

It is up to the students, faculty and staff to help safeguard our facilities from vandalism…we all pay the price.

Jodee Bennett is a groundskeeper and the athletic field manager.
We're being treated unfairly. We're being made the scapegoats. The school is trying to show its power, trying to make an example out of us.

— Perry Young
President, Delta Tau

More immigration officers authorized to carry guns, arrest than FBI agents

By Michael J. Soffiere
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Thanks to the growing national concern over immigration, the nation now has more immigration officers authorized to carry a gun and make arrests than it has FBI agents.

Led by a 31 percent increase at the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the number of armed federal agents with arrest power rose to 74,500 by mid-1996, the Justice Department reported Sunday.

That was about 6 percent higher than in 1995, the last time the Immigration and Naturalization Service conducted such a survey. Sixty-six federal agencies have more than 500 armed agents with arrest power.

Concerns over illegal immigration prompted the Clinton administration and Congress to increase the INS budget sharply. During the past three years, the agent force of the Immigration and Naturalization Service grew faster than any other federal agency, outpacing the Fish and Wildlife Service, which had a 40 percent increase to 969 agents.

The INS now has the largest federal agent force, with more armed agents than either the Bureau of Prisons or the FBI.

Many of the 12,401 armed INS agents work for the Border Patrol, whose force is heavily concentrated along the Mexican border. The Border Patrol accounted for about two-thirds of the INS growth.

During the three years that ended Sept. 30, 1996, the Border Patrol increased from 3,965 to 5,838 agents. In the San Diego sector alone, Border Patrol agents doubled to 1,905.

The Bureau of Prisons is the second largest agency in terms of agents that are armed and have arrest powers. Its force grew by 13 percent to 11,329 during this period, when inmate populations were growing rapidly.

A.S.I. Is Seeking Student Input!!!

There will be a referendum to increase the Health Services Fee. A voter pamphlet will be made available to all students concerning the Health Services Fee Referendum.

This pamphlet will include a "pro statement" and a "con statement." Students are encouraged to submit "pro" or "con" statements to A.S.I. for possible use in the pamphlet. To complete a statement, pick up information concerning the fee increase and the form for your "pro" or "con" statement at the A.S.I. Executive Office, U-217.

Forms must be submitted by 5:00 PM, January 29, 1998.

WOODSTOCK'S Piles on Mountains of Toppings to Create the ULTIMATE PIZZA PIE!

MONDAY $7.99 off

EXTRA LARGE
1-topping Pizza

MONDAY, JANUARY 26, 1998 5
WRESTLE from page 8

Blackford, who is ranked fifth in the nation, defeated Welk, who is ranked ninth in the nation in the 150 lb. weight class in double overtime, 2-1.

With more energy and power than the other four Mustangs before him, Welk stepped onto the mat, running Blackford around and out of the circle. The battle came to a halt when the referee ordered Blackford to shadow box. Using the referee as his mirror Blackford dry and put his face on the edge of the ring. When the ref approved he stepped back onto the circle with renewed vigor.

Welk scored first, with 50 seconds left in the period, and the Mustangs wouldn’t just go away. Lift up with the momentum of the match, Welk stepped onto the mat ready to claim the Mustangs’ first victory.

With 12 seconds remaining, Welk went to work on Moreno. Moreno dominated the match with his保洁 and improving in circles, fanning and flailing his hair.

Welks notched three three-point near points in the PAC-10, improving his season record to 13-5. "We face the opponents early on to get prepared for February and the PAC-10," said Cal Poly head coach Lennos Cowell.

MUSTANG DAILY

SPORTS

Cases of the California Commute

Bryant to start NBA All-Star game

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Kobe Bryant, the 19-year-old reserve for the Los Angeles Lakers, is the youngest starter in the history of the NBA All-Star game.

Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls was the leading vote-getter for the Feb. 8 game in New York, the fifth time in his career he received the most votes from the fans.

The starting lineups for the Eastern and Western conference teams were announced Sunday, and Bryant’s selection was a surprise given he does not start and was just off the bench in a game.

He is averaging 17.3 points and 26 minutes a game.

Jordan, who has received 1,028,350 votes, will open at guard for the East. Others voted to the East starting team were Penny Hardaway of Orlando, forwards Grant Hill of Detroit and Shawn Kemp of Cleveland and center Dikembe Mutombo of Atlanta.

Hardaway, who is injured, will be replaced on the East roster. Third in voting among the guards was Tim Hardaway of Miami, no relation.

Joining Bryant in the starting West backcourt will be Gary Payton of Seattle, Brandon Roy of each team will be selected this time with 838,692 votes out of 2,951,654, 33.7 percent of the total.

The remaining seven members of each team will be selected this week by the coaches in each conference.

George Karl of Seattle will coach the West Team, and Larry Bird of Indiana will coach the Eastern team of Chicago will coach the East.

Even Tiger’s amazed by this comeback

By Richard Hager

Associated Press

PHUKET, Thailand — Never seen Woods out of a golf tournament.

In his greatest comeback since he turned professional, Woods overcame an eight-stroke deficit Sunday to win the Johnnie Walker Classic with a 42-foot birdie on the second hole of a playoff.

"I never done anything like that as a professional," said Woods, who once railed from nine strokes behind to win the 1997 British open junior tournament. "It was pretty amazing."

Woods, who had finished his regulation round two hours earlier, rushed through a quick warmup for the playoff and won with a 14-foot birdie putt for his first victory of the season.

"I had Woods screamed, pumping his right fist three times, as his mother, Kultida, a native of Thailand, rushed to the green to embrace her son.

Woods closed with a 7-under-par 66 while Els wilted in the tropical heat, shooting 74 and 73 for his third and fourth rounds. Els, the defending champion, led for the first three days in the $1.3 million event, the season-opener of the European tour.

"It was really amazing what Tiger did," he said.

Even Tiger’s amazed by this comeback

saw Kemp, who beat Chicago’s Scottie Pippen for a spot on the second team in his first year in the Eastern Conference. "You really have to hand a spot to him."

"When I used to make the All-Star team on the West Coast, I always wondered in the back of my head, 'If you’re in the East, do you think it would work out?’ I had some questions about it, and I’m just glad it worked out.”

Malone’s performance this year in All-Star was the leading vote-getter in the West with 616,253.

"Dee Anon’s Antonio Davis in the closest vote for the West’s starting center position. There was a tie between Davis and the other two finished 72 holes at 9-under par 207. Davis, who missed the cut last year with 84-71-70, in the fifth All-Star game.

Alonzo Mourning of Charlotte is the second and Bryant’s first for the Mutomboko.

Kemp, whose played for Seattle, and Garnett are the first All-Star starters for Cleveland and Minnesota.

"To me, the most important thing is that you want to go to an All-Star game on a good note," said Kemp, who beat Chicago’s Scottie Pippen for a spot on the second team in his first year in the Eastern Conference. "You really have to hand a spot to him."

There are seven remaining members of each team will be selected this week by the coaches in each conference.

George Karl of Seattle will coach the West Team, and Larry Bird of Indiana will coach the Eastern team of Chicago will coach the East.
the game. Wozniak said.

After such a huge win the Mustangs were expecting to carry over the momentum into Saturday's game against North Texas. However, this was not to be the case as the Mustangs were defeated 93-91, in the last seconds of another thriller that went down to the wire. Larson hit a three-pointer in the first minute of the game that gave him 17 three-pointers for his career and moved him as the all-time three-point field leader in school history.

Larsen hit a total of four three-pointers and led the way for the Mustangs with 17 points and eight rebounds in 35 minutes. Larson also had five assists, which moves him into second place in the league with an average of 5 assists per game.

Both Wozniak and Bjorklund finished with 16 points each in the losing effort.

The Mustangs led by as many as 10 and ended the first half with a 50-46 lead over North Texas. The Mustangs held the lead for the beginning of the second half until a lay-up by Travis Schofield gave North Texas a 64-63 lead with a little less than 13 minutes left to play.

A lay-up by Ross Ketchum with 12 minutes to go in the game gave the Mustangs a lead of 64-66, which they built on and went ahead by 12 points with eight minutes left. A lay-up by Chuck Thrash tied the score at 86 and capped a 15-4 run by North Texas with just under four minutes left in the game.

The game was then a see-saw battle until Puck Davis connected on free-throws and gave North Texas a 93-91 lead with eighteen seconds left.

The Mustangs would again rely on Wozniak to come through in the clutches, but a missed jumper with three seconds left in the game resulted in an upsetting Mustang loss.

The Mustangs dropped to 9-9 overall and 1-5 in conference play.
SPORTS

Mustangs’ games decided at buzzer

Yesterday's Answer:
Sanya Harding and Nancy Kerrigan will meet on Feb. 5 to talk about the attack that surrounded their Olympic quest in 1994.

Congrats Dean Wittek!
Today's Question: Who won the 1998 Super Bowl?

"Send your answer to kennedy@dailybulletin.com. The first correct answer I receive will be printed along with your name in the paper the next day.

SPORTS TRIVIA

Baseball
Lawrence Maginnis
Cal Poly
Cal State Northridge
Cal Poly
Florida International
Cal Poly
New Mexico State

Men's basketball
Cal Poly
U.C. Santa Barbara
North Texas
Cal Poly

Women's basketball
U.C. Santa Barbara
Cal Poly

Women's swimming
Cal Poly
Loyola Marymount
Pepperdine

Wrestling
Arizona State
Cal Poly

SCHEDULE

For today’s A nsw e r: Super Bowl?

SPORTS

Mustangs lose battle to No. 6 Sun Devils

By Kimberly Kenney
Daily Sport Editor

"Click, click, click." The next wrestler jumped rope on the side of the mat. The rope beat the ground markings the seconds as the clock ticked down. Double overtime with 30 seconds left to go with hearts pounding.

Arizona State's Steve Blackford knelt on the mat. Cal Poly's Craig Wick moved in kneeling next to him. The referee backed up and blew his whistle. Ten seconds, the two struggled, but Blackford escaped. The whistle blew, the ref's hand blew up in the air with one finger pointed to the sky. It was the wrist with the red band. And it was over.

The most anticipated match of the night ended with the No. 1 wrestler in the PAC-10 coming out ahead.

Cal Poly's
Cedric Haymon

Daily Self Report

The Cal Poly men's basketball team went into the Thunderdome and defeated Santa Barbara 65-60 in a thriller that was exciting to the last second.

"It was a big win for us in three ways," Mustang guard Mike Wozniak said. "We won at Santa Barbara, we won on the road, and we broke the drought in the Big West."

The Mustangs earned their first road win of the season with their victory over Santa Barbara. The win gave the Mustangs a record of 8-9 overall and 1-4 in conference play.

The Mustangs' Ben Larson started the scoring with a jumper ten seconds into the game that gave the Mustangs a 2-0 lead.

Real Wallace then stole the lead back for the Gauchos by spiking the ball in an uncontested lay-up, and then getting the rebound off a Ross Ketchum missed free throw and dishing an assist to Dwight Williams. Williams then beat all the Mustangs down the court after a free throw made by Larson, and Tomashow-slam dunked the ball to give the Gauchos a 6-2 lead.

The Gauchos would keep the lead for most of the half until Brandon Beeser gave a no-look pass to Chris Bjorklund, who layed it in and gave the Mustangs a 32-31 lead going into the half.

"They deserved to be ahead, they out hustled and out scrambled us and had better execution," UCSSB head coach Jerry Pinn said.

The second half began with a lay-up by Wozniak after he received an assist from Larson which made the score 34-31.

The Mustangs were able to hold on to their lead until there were four minutes left in the game. That's when Williams was able to connect on two free-throws and give the Gauchos the lead for the first time in the second half, 61-60.

Both teams were in the penalty when the referee called a questionable blocking foul on Ross Ketchum which sent Williams to the line. He made both free-throws and gave the Gauchos 66-64 lead with just under a minute left in the game.

The Mustangs were hungry for a victory. "Magic-Man Mike Wozniak" used a screen from Bjorklund and outmaneuvered Josh Merrill, who was forced to foul him on the way to the hoop.

With just 44 seconds remaining, Wozniak nailed both free-throws despite the 1,100 UCSB fans and their vulgar chants, and obnoxious name calling that echoed through out the stadium.

Wozniak's free-throws tied the game at 66-66, and set the stage for the most exciting finish for the Mustangs this season.

Les Bean got the inbound pass and ran 20 seconds off the clock before he passed the ball to Raymond Tut on a designed play in which Tut was supposed to be open at the free throw line.

Tut was open for an instant and released a shot that was blocked by Jeremiah May who fought his way through two baseline screens. May then ran across the top of the key to fight for a rebound that was battled toward thebaseline by Tut.

All ten players on the court scrambled for the loose ball as Williams went air-borne, snatched the ball from the air and threw it back behind his head directly into the hands of an alert Wozniak. Wozniak immediately raced down the floor cut inside of B.J. Burton, who fouled him with just two seconds remaining in the game.

With the game on the line, coach Jeff Schneider called a time out.

"It was almost like the game last year, when they got the momentum in the last seconds and pulled away. That's why I called the timeout," Schneider said.

After the timeout, every man, woman and child in the Thunderdome was standing up shouting at Wozniak, who made pressure shooting look easy by connecting on both free-throws and

See B BALL page 7

See WRESTLE page 6