Prof hasn’t missed class in 30 years
By F. Xavier Lanier II
Mustang Daily

Despite colds, flu and fevers, a Cal Poly professor has not missed a class — in 30 years.

Tim Barnes is well-respected in the history field and is a past recipient of the Distinguished Teacher Award.

“I’m pretty healthy,” Barnes said, a 57-year-old history professor. “I ride a bike every day and put in 120 to 150 miles per week. On weekends I go on 40- or 50-mile training rides.”

Barnes also stays healthy by eating lots of fish and vegetables.

“I’ve been this way since I was 15 or 16 years old,” Barnes said. He began working out when he was on his high school football team. He then went to the University of New Mexico on a track scholarship.

However, Barnes still gets sick.

“Early this quarter I got the flu on Sunday and had class on Monday, but I didn’t want to break my streak,” Barnes said.

“A few years ago I had an unidentified fever for three months. I went to class with 104-degree fever,” Barnes said. “They thought I had cancer for a while, but it didn’t turn to be that. It just went away on its own.”

Colleagues know Barnes will teach, no matter what.

“We were hiking area, and you could hear him down the hall. And he’s still see CLASS, page 2

Cal Poly professor Tim Barnes, a past recipient of the Distinguished Teacher Award, has not missed a class in 30 years. “I plan on teaching as long as I’m physically able. I love to teach,” Barnes said.

Be prepared: Girl Scout cookies on sale soon
By Andrea Parker
Mustang Daily

Be prepared.

Girl Scouts armed with their simple motto — will be selling their well-known cookies door-to-door beginning Feb. 26.

Every Girl Scout cookie lover should know the history of this cookie, so here are some facts and insights into the once-a-year fundraising phenomenon.

Though they are not “made with real Girl Scouts,” as Wednesday put it in the Adlams Family, Girl Scout cookies are baked by America’s Best Cookies and have been for more than 60 years.

ABC and Little Brownie Bakers are two of the three official Girl Scout cookie bakers, according to www.girlscoutcookies.com, the Girl Scout cookie web page. ABC bakes the cookies sold in the Tri-County, among other areas in the country.

Naturally the younger Brownie Scouts tend to sell more cookies than Seniors or Juniors, because they’re cute.

But more goes into selling cookies than looking cute. Janelle Holcombe, a business sophomore, was a Brownie for about three years. She remembers the aspects of the life of a Brownie that many don’t realize.

Everybody loves Girl Scout cookies, but they have no idea how much work it actually takes to get them to their door,” Holcombe said.

She described the frustration of “walking around, getting doors slammed in your face, people making excuses, people saying that someone else already came to their door or people not being home.”

“And for all that work, you get a small piece

see COOKIES, page 3

Outspoken
Poly student wins honor from ECOSLO
By April Charlton
Mustang Daily

An environmentally “active mouth” may have helped Alison Pernell, a city and regional planning junior, win an award and recognition from the Environmental Center of San Luis Obispo.

In January, Pernell was presented with a $120 award for “her environmental excellence.”

Eleven nominations for the award were received from Cal Poly staff, faculty and students, said Allyson Nakasone, coordinator for the award. This was the first time the award was offered. It was part of the first annual Cal Poly Environmental Awareness Week, which took place Nov. 16 to 20.

ECOSLO plans to offer the award again this year, Nakasone said.

According to Nakasone, the award isn’t as much as she would like, but the organization is working to build a fund to increase the monetary amount of the award.

The reason ECOSLO was able to offer this award this year is because of donations, said Amy Shore, a coordinator for the non-profit environmental organization.

Shore said the organization received donations from a couple of Cal Poly professors, who asked for the money to go to an environmentally active group or individual on campus. The donations were received just prior to Environmental Awareness Week, Shore added.

Students aren’t the only ones eligible for the award.

“Students aren’t the only ones eligible for the award,” Nakasone said.

“The award is available to faculty and staff...as long as (their activism) goes beyond the classroom environment,” Nakasone said.

see ECOSLO, page 2
Goodbye, ‘Animal House’: Dartmouth to end single-sex frats, sorority houses

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — Dartmouth College, the school that inspired “Animal House,” plans to put an end to single-sex fraternities and sororities to foster more “respectful relations” between the sexes.

Dartmouth students were in an uproar Wednesday over the plan. “This was like a bomb,” said Misha Rosoff, 23, rush chairman at Sigma Alpha Epsilon. “Everyone sort of assumed that the trustees would try to get rid of the Greek system, but this came with no warning.”

Officials at the Ivy League school refused to say whether the plan means requiring fraternities and sororities to go coed or phasing them out altogether, but college President James Wright said it will be the biggest change in social life at Dartmouth since women were admitted in 1972.

The move, announced in a letter to students, is aimed at encouraging “respectful relations between women and men,” college administrators said they were concerned about problems drinking and the social fragmentation that sometimes accompanies the Greek system. The college did not specifically mention the Greek system. The college did not specifically mention the changes would be put into effect.

The details are to be worked out in consultation with students and backed with tens of millions of dollars for construction of new housing, dining and social areas to replace the Greek houses.

In the end, the Greek system “as we know it today will not continue,” Wright said in an interview Wednesday.

Dartmouth, founded in 1769, has had fraternities for more than 158 years, and they are a major part of the school’s image and the social life in Hanover, a snow town of about 7,200 people 135 miles from Boston. According to the student paper, The Dartmouth, more than 35 percent of the 4,500 undergraduates are members of 25 single-sex fraternities and sororities.

“The Greek system is a very large thing up here,” said Brad Bingham, 22, a member of Alpha Delta. “If there was a city or a big town with more things to do, maybe it wouldn’t be so important.”

Chris Miller, a member of Alpha Delta when he was a Dartmouth student, co-wrote “Animal House,” the 1978 comedy about frat-house debauchery.

“Every time they plant a tree or modify the curriculum they constantly have student meetings and discussions,” complained Catherine Curtan, 19, a sophomore and sorority member from Las Vegas. “For something this drastic, they should have given students input.”

The national organizations of some fraternities and sororities do not permit coed membership, and that could prove a hurdle.

The 120,000 living members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon would have to vote to change the fraternity’s bylaws and vote to change the Greek system. “I think he nominated me without telling me,” Lewis said. “I learned so much about different ways of natural building... like straw bale construction and different kinds of earthen construction,” Lewis said.

Pernell must be headed in the direction of natural building after graduation.

The Emergency Department at French Hospital Medical Center isn’t actually functioning at the moment. The club isn’t actually functioning at the moment. The group also tended the solar living center owned by Real Farm. She literally grew the crops and less of them. "I was very proud to get it," Barnes said. "I was very young and looking for a place to grow things."

"We practiced sustainable living with our computers, our students, and others," said Moustafa. "It was a wonderful validation of being a good teacher." Some professors miss classes because of other academic commitments, but Barnes wants to remain involved in the history profession and still attend class. "Most of my professional meetings are done over Christmas break," Barnes said. He is currently finishing a report called "Moderation in the American Revolution." The 15-page report will be published by the Michigan State University Press.

"This is respected by everybody," Carlin said. "He’s an amazing guy, hard working, a great colleague and a great teacher."

Barnes believes people must be interested in classes to attend them as regularly as he does. "Only a curious student will attend class. A student without curiosity will never attend class regularly," Barnes said.

The group also tended the solar living center owned by Real Farm. She literally grew the crops and less of them. "I was very proud to get it," Barnes said. "I was very young and looking for a place to grow things."

"We practiced sustainable living with our computers, our students, and others," said Moustafa. "It was a wonderful validation of being a good teacher." Some professors miss classes because of other academic commitments, but Barnes wants to remain involved in the history profession and still attend class. "Most of my professional meetings are done over Christmas break," Barnes said. He is currently finishing a report called "Moderation in the American Revolution." The 15-page report will be published by the Michigan State University Press.

"This is respected by everybody," Carlin said. "He’s an amazing guy, hard working, a great colleague and a great teacher."

Barnes believes people must be interested in classes to attend them as regularly as he does. "Only a curious student will attend class. A student without curiosity will never attend class regularly," Barnes said.

The group also tended the solar living center owned by Real Farm. She literally grew the crops and less of them. "I was very proud to get it," Barnes said. "I was very young and looking for a place to grow things."

"We practiced sustainable living with our computers, our students, and others," said Moustafa. "It was a wonderful validation of being a good teacher." Some professors miss classes because of other academic commitments, but Barnes wants to remain involved in the history profession and still attend class. "Most of my professional meetings are done over Christmas break," Barnes said. He is currently finishing a report called "Moderation in the American Revolution." The 15-page report will be published by the Michigan State University Press.

"This is respected by everybody," Carlin said. "He’s an amazing guy, hard working, a great colleague and a great teacher."

Barnes believes people must be interested in classes to attend them as regularly as he does. "Only a curious student will attend class. A student without curiosity will never attend class regularly," Barnes said. Some professors miss classes because of other academic commitments, but Barnes wants to remain involved in the history profession and still attend class. "Most of my professional meetings are done over Christmas break," Barnes said. He is currently finishing a report called "Moderation in the American Revolution." The 15-page report will be published by the Michigan State University Press.

"This is respected by everybody," Carlin said. "He’s an amazing guy, hard working, a great colleague and a great teacher."

Barnes believes people must be interested in classes to attend them as regularly as he does. "Only a curious student will attend class. A student without curiosity will never attend class regularly," Barnes said. Some professors miss classes because of other academic commitments, but Barnes wants to remain involved in the history profession and still attend class. "Most of my professional meetings are done over Christmas break," Barnes said. He is currently finishing a report called "Moderation in the American Revolution." The 15-page report will be published by the Michigan State University Press.

"This is respected by everybody," Carlin said. "He’s an amazing guy, hard working, a great colleague and a great teacher."

Barnes believes people must be interested in classes to attend them as regularly as he does. "Only a curious student will attend class. A student without curiosity will never attend class regularly," Barnes said.

The group also tended the solar living center owned by Real Farm. She literally grew the crops and less of them. "I was very proud to get it," Barnes said. "I was very young and looking for a place to grow things."

"We practiced sustainable living with our computers, our students, and others," said Moustafa. "It was a wonderful validation of being a good teacher." Some professors miss classes because of other academic commitments, but Barnes wants to remain involved in the history profession and still attend class. "Most of my professional meetings are done over Christmas break," Barnes said. He is currently finishing a report called "Moderation in the American Revolution." The 15-page report will be published by the Michigan State University Press.

"This is respected by everybody," Carlin said. "He’s an amazing guy, hard working, a great colleague and a great teacher."

Barnes believes people must be interested in classes to attend them as regularly as he does. "Only a curious student will attend class. A student without curiosity will never attend class regularly," Barnes said. Some professors miss classes because of other academic commitments, but Barnes wants to remain involved in the history profession and still attend class. "Most of my professional meetings are done over Christmas break," Barnes said. He is currently finishing a report called "Moderation in the American Revolution." The 15-page report will be published by the Michigan State University Press.

"This is respected by everybody," Carlin said. "He’s an amazing guy, hard working, a great colleague and a great teacher."

Barnes believes people must be interested in classes to attend them as regularly as he does. "Only a curious student will attend class. A student without curiosity will never attend class regularly," Barnes said. Some professors miss classes because of other academic commitments, but Barnes wants to remain involved in the history profession and still attend class. "Most of my professional meetings are done over Christmas break," Barnes said. He is currently finishing a report called "Moderation in the American Revolution." The 15-page report will be published by the Michigan State University Press.

"This is respected by everybody," Carlin said. "He’s an amazing guy, hard working, a great colleague and a great teacher."

Barnes believes people must be interested in classes to attend them as regularly as he does. "Only a curious student will attend class. A student without curiosity will never attend class regularly," Barnes said. Some professors miss classes because of other academic commitments, but Barnes wants to remain involved in the history profession and still attend class. "Most of my professional meetings are done over Christmas break," Barnes said. He is currently finishing a report called "Moderation in the American Revolution." The 15-page report will be published by the Michigan State University Press.

"This is respected by everybody," Carlin said. "He’s an amazing guy, hard working, a great colleague and a great teacher."

Barnes believes people must be interested in classes to attend them as regularly as he does. "Only a curious student will attend class. A student without curiosity will never attend class regularly," Barnes said. Some professors miss classes because of other academic commitments, but Barnes wants to remain involved in the history profession and still attend class. "Most of my professional meetings are done over Christmas break," Barnes said. He is currently finishing a report called "Moderation in the American Revolution." The 15-page report will be published by the Michigan State University Press.
COOKIES

continued from page 1

of fabric to sew on your uniform," Holcombe said.

Besides the institution, there was the pressure to sell as many cookies as possible. "It was really, really encour-ging" to sell a lot of cookies, Holcombe said. "The kids who sold a lot got really pushed by their parents. I would say." "I never liked selling, but I liked having them in the house; it was almost worth it," Holcombe said.

Leaders said selling cookies is more than just a fund-raiser. Girls learn goal-setting, public speaking and money management.

According to Amy TerWisscha, public relations assistant for the Santa Barbara office of the Tri-Condado council, all varieties of Girl Scout cookies are in the top 15 selling cookies preferred by Americans.

Thin Mints, 16 per box, are the most popular seller. These account for more than 25 percent of all Girl Scout cookies sold. TerWisscha said. Without hesitation, Holcombe remembered Thin Mints as the best seller. She said it could be because "a lot of people really like chocolate."

Upside Downs Frosted Oatmeal are lowest in sugar, to name a few. Boxs sell for $3, and the average household purchases five boxes.

Only about a dollar from each box goes to the cookies. The rest of the money goes directly to the Girl Scout Troop to use for activities and trips during the year.

Now a Girl Scout can put her hard-earned cookie money toward her college future.

Just this year a scholarship fund was started for individual cookie sellers. Beginning in seventh grade, Girl Scouts earn 35 cents for each box sold toward a college scholarship fund.

There are college scholarships awarded to girls who have been Girl Scouts, but this is the first scholarship coming directly from the council. A direct scholarship fund has been used in other councils before, but this is the first year for the Tri-Counties area.

Girl Scout cookies climb to the top of the industry during this time of year, second only to Nabisco.

More than 2 million girls in the nation sell about 160 million boxes of cookies a year. That's enough money to send nearly $33,000 to college through four years of college — with 35 cents per box set aside.

In San Luis Obispo County, 125,272 boxes were sold last year. In the Tri-Counties, the total was 663,000 boxes, according to Kristin Frencel of the Santa Barbara Girl Scouts office.

The cookie sale only happens once a year and is the "largest fund producer for the Girl Scouts," TerWisscha said.

Though Girl Scout cookies are the most popular fund-raiser, it's not the only way the Scouts make money. Other money-making activities include selling nuts, candy grams and homemade candy for Valentine's Day, having celebrity auctions and bake sales, according to the Girl Scouts' website: www.gspca.org.

Juliette Gordon Low founded the Girl Scouts in 1912 in Savannah, Ga., with a troop of 14 girls. Now there are roughly 2.5 million girls involved, ranging in age from 5 to 17.

The Girl Scouts have been in Santa Barbara for about 70 years and in the Tri-Counties area since 1964.

Girl Scouts have been selling cookies since the 1920s. Back then, the first Girl Scout baked her own sugar cookies to raise money for their troop. The first commercial Girl Scout cookies were baked in 1934 in Philadelphia.

That was when a box cost 25 cents, and six boxes could be bought for $1.25.
Reopening of case may jog memories

R

e-investigating the disappearance of Kristin Smart is a good idea. It did not happen for three years since the night of her disappearance, and she is missing.

This is a travesty. Smart didn't come to Cal Poly to have her smiling face plastered around the campus and community on missing person's fliers (not that I see them that often anymore!). No, I believe she came to San Luis Obispo to further her education and grow into adulthood. Yet her plans were cut short on Memorial Day weekend in 1996, when she disappeared.

The community and the school are in to the Smart family and to Kristin Smart to do everything possible to find her. If the campus and the sheriff's department doesn't put forth every effort to try to find out what happened to Smart, then they're ultimately saying they don't care. They need to care, so taxpayers shouldn't.

If people forget she is missing, they aren't dealing with the reality at hand. A bright, young girl is still missing three years later, after supposedly walking home with a fellow student to her dormitory, following a night of partying.

When people forget about unresolved issues, they become complacent in their way of thinking. They adopt an "I don't care" attitude.

In the wake of the reinvestigation, I've heard more than one person bemoan the fact that they had to meet with the FBI and answer questions regarding Smart's disappearance. Each of their attitudes has been some-ting to the effect of, "It's been three years already. I even remember what I was doing that night. They've (the police) waited too long.

These individuals have become complacent in their attitudes toward their fellow student's disappearance. They see the renewed efforts in the case as being "too little too late," because they were not put in focus.

However, re-investigating the case will make them remember. Who knows, maybe the most recent interviews the FBI and the sheriff's department conduct with students who lived in Sierra Madre residence hall will help to jog someone's memory.

I would also hope that by re-investigating the disappearance of Smart, the school will become aware of the need to address student drinking. During WOW, skis were used to address drinking disasters. This was a great deal, but no one attended WOW. These people are left to rely on their own judgments to make the right choices when it comes to consumption.

Now I'm not saying that alcohol is an "evil" all students need to refrain from ever using while at school. I'm saying that students just need to be aware that unless they put themselves at a higher risk of winding up in a threatening situation when they involve alcohol in their activities.

I don't really see the issue of student drinking being addressed on this campus. I too see a lot of empty liquor and beer bottles strewn about the campus on my daily trek to and from classes, and I see alcohol as being the catalyst in Smart's disappearance.

So, if re-investigating the Smart case brings more awareness to all the risks involved when one consumes alcoholic beverages, then I say investigate away. Maybe there will finally be some resolution to this tragic case, and we won't have to wait another three years wondering what happened to a bright, young Cal Poly student just beginning the journey of life.

If nothing else, maybe her parents can rest easier knowing that San Luis Obispo and Cal Poly haven't forgotten about their missing daughter and are making every effort to try and find her.

April Charlton is a journalism senior who hopes the Smart case will soon be solved.
Video games: action packed, exciting and addictive.

Advertisements encourage gamers to “play til your thumbs bleed,” some Cal Poly students spend hours on end absorbed in the newest virtual adventure.

“I’ve sat around and not done anything else all day,” graphic communications senior Zach Abad said. “I’d say I’m addicted, in a sense. It’s like a favorite TV show where you go back because you’re interested in the characters.”

Abad said that he plays three hours of video games in an average day, but “on a good day, probably 12.”

Sometimes, Abad said, he puts a video game on pause while he goes to class and then comes back and keeps playing, if he “was at a particularly difficult part and there were no save areas nearby.”

There have also been “many times,” he said, that he skipped classes altogether so he could play games. “Pretty much any time it’s not really that important to go and I’d rather be playing games.”

Abad is one of a continuously growing number of video game players in the United States. The U.S. gaming industry raked in close to $5 billion in 1998, and 21.4 million households have at least one video game system, according to a 1998 survey. Sony Computer Entertainment America estimates that just from its system alone, the PlayStation, 20.4 percent of users are college-age.

► See GAMES, pg.8
Valentine's Day is nearly here, and love is in the air. Is it for you? For many guys the pressure is on. Whether they're looking to fan the flames of a long-term love, or are attempting to spark the fires of passion with somebody new, this is the guy's guide to being lucky in love, or at least trying to spur the interest of that special someone.

Cindy from Open Air Flowers in Laguna Lake Village Center said, roses are what most guys think they need to get. Therefore, Open Air sells pricey bunches of medium and long stems in a variety of colors. So if you're a guy who is not to make a traditional impression, you can shell out $42 for a dozen medium stems or $53 for a dozen long stems.

We, however, are all for originality. It takes courage to make a choice outside the realm of roses. So pick out one of Open Air's bright spring bouquets to make a distinct impression. And just because you opt to be different, doesn't mean you have to pay a higher price. There's a wide assortment of floral combinations to choose from, with prices ranging from $7 to $32. Open Air will deliver to most of San Luis Obispo for a $3 fee. If millennials have you spooked for time, don't worry. In between piling frozen pizzas and beer into your grocery cart, you can pick up quality flowers for less at Lucky's. From mixed bouquets to roses or potted tulips, you can make the perfect choice from between $5 to $20.

Next, head to See's candies at the Madonna Plaza. For Valentine's Day, they're featuring a red heart box filled with one pound of assorted candy or nuts and cherries, wrapped in a gold bow, for $14. They also have a variety of Valentine's novelty items, from a chocolate-covered matchstick balloon for $0 cents to little heart-shaped raps filled with red-wrapped chocolate hearts for $4.15. An assisant manager said the earlier you come in the better, because Feb. 13 is the busiest single day of the year for candy purchases.

Not everybody likes chocolate, so say it with conversation. At Albertsons you can buy two small boxes for a dollar, or if you want to spread the love around, they offer an eight-pack for $2.19.

LINGERIE

Lingerie is a touchy subject. Lingerie is a touchy subject. It's possible for a couple to be intimate but it's not always the case. Some girls it's a turn off, but for others, it's a turn on. Washington Post and frequent panelist on NBC's "Meet the Press."
You get the feeling of when she decided to go on her Polv's Silver's senior proiecl. The ule.i of design professor ,ind Silver' s senior walls of Fitting Im.iges, an alteration
By Julie O'Shea
London Study program.

create comedy describes improv as prii- active cha­ ed well-established improv shows in San Jose and Los Antjeles, tînininti "Smile and tallies to interact with ami amuse and one referee u.se improvisâtional and "Nod," compete tor lautihs, and the .ludience. The teams, "Smile" and "Nod" pro­ producer.
Silko started
"Smile and Nod" at Cal Poly last year, because he didn't see this kind of bigow group in the area. He attended well-established improv shows in San Jose and Los Angeles, gaining ideas on what games to use and how to do it.
Silko defines improv as any acting without a script.
"It's really the basis for so much comedy," said Mark Television shows like "Whow Line Is it Anyway?" and "Saturday Night Live" use improv to create a fresh, spontaneous style of comedy.
It allows the acting of the imagiation. You're free to go anywhere you want to go," he said.

silver's show. All the images of there, but no juctures could be hung room IS  iny t.ivorile," Silver said. "I will graduate this June and plans to move to San Francisco where, as he puts it, all the real photography jobs are.

Silver has a passion for art and photography, reflected not only in his pictures but also in the way he stands on her words when asked why she loves doing what she does.
"1 get inspired by different things the uniqueness of Europe," she said. "I don't know why I love art. I guess I can't imagine myself studying biology all day long."

This album contains three singles, 7-inches and compilation appearances from their live shows and concerts. This new album,
"Good Morning, Spider," is good, period — how' could it not be the picture in the cover.
You'll find yourself humming along despite the fact you may not speak French. Let's face it: this album is just a P! to act to better the image of dary, smelly French people. It works.

built to Spill 'Keep it

Built to Spill has kept it like it a secret for years, though it looks like this man will end with all the shuttle-bubbinning
around the new album.
Someone let the cat
out of the bag, however, and now the band is being heralded as the saviors of indie rock. Marsch, the singer, songwriter, and main driving force behind BTF, leads cohorts Scot Pott and Brett Jenkinson down a familiar road
— lo-fi, meandering rock ditties.
Marsch continues to spear
the traditional pop song structure and instills in each song his infectious vocals that waver in all directions.

see IMPROV, page 8

Robind."
"Transforms," is a fitting name for Silver's show. All the images of France, Prague and Italy were brought to life onto water-color paper as emultraction transfers, a special kind of art.

After taking a picture, Silver con­ ers it into a slide and projects it onto Poland's film. Boiling the film in water, the emulsion image is lifted and can then be placed on a canvas.
"The picture hanging in the bathroom is my favorite," Silver said.
"I was disappointed that it had to go in there, but no pictures could be hung on certain walls. Three pictures didn't even hang."

The picture hanging in the bathroom is a bridge over a river in Rome. Though hidden away from the other masterpieces around the store, it seems a fitting place for the serene image, in a room by itself near an open window.
Because Silver has yet to view Silver's finished presentation but has already hinted that she feels Silver's work is up to "A" standards.
"Robin is one of my all-time favorite students," Bergman said. "I shouldn't things like that, we'll get a big head."

This is Silver's first individual art show. It was a requirement for her thesis project to do a show outside of school. Silver asked different stores around San Luis Obispo, and Fitting Images agreed to let her hang her art work for free.
V-DAY
continued from page 6
If you decide your lady would love a sexy nightie, read this part carefully to prepare yourself for the lingerie shopping experience. If you’re intimidated by the sales and strange or overwhelming by the multitudes of red, pink and white, don’t worry, just take a deep breath and jump in on. Fanny Wrappers on the corner of Hipua and Chorro Streets, for a truly unique ensemble. Here you can browse among racks of Valentine-themed chemises, panties, bras, garter belts, stockings and g-string and boxes for both men and women. These range in price from $14 to $100. Be sure to note sizes before you go, as your fellow shoppers probably won’t appreciate being asked to try things on for you and so you can check the fit.

To add a little twist to your evening, as many of you know, Fanny Wrappers has a full wall of adult toys and books. One employee said massage oils are popular this time of year, and are available in several flavors, ranging from 99¢ to two dollars. “101 Nights of Great Sex,” and “101 Nights of Great Romance,” at $29.99 each, are popular books for increasing the love.

CHAMPAGNE
Most grocery stores carry a year-round selection of various priced champagnes. If you aren’t a champagne connoisseur, a bottle of Cook’s for around $5 will do. Trader Joe’s at Hipua Street has three excellent selections for under five dollars to choose from. The Freixenet is $4.99, M. Chavaller is $4.99, and Veuve du Vertain is $4.49.

RESTAURANTS
Perhaps the most important decision to be made on Valentine’s Day is where to have a perfectly romantic dinner. Several popular spots around town are already booked solid for the big day, but don’t worry, we’ve found some favorites that weren’t.

If you want to dine in San Luis Obispo, you can’t go wrong with Benvenuti on Market Street for fine Italian cuisine. The manager boasts that this is the most romantic restaurant in town. Dinner hours are from 5:30 to 10:30 p.m., and entreé prices range from $9.75 to $22.50. They are featuring a special Valentine menu to choose from.

Just out of town in Pismo Beach, you’ll find Giuseppe’s on Price Street.

Giuseppe’s opens for dinner at 4:30 p.m. and is serving until 11 p.m. A revised Valentine’s menu offers lasagna, roast duck, lamb and lobster, with prices ranging from $19.95 to $35.95. Get there early though, reservations are not accepted, and by 7 p.m. there’s at least a two hour wait to be seated.

Roast is serving dinner from 4 to 10 p.m. As is their normal policy, they don’t take reservations unless it’s a party of five or more, which pretty much rules out reserving a table for a romantic duo. However, there should be plenty of space as Roast’s is opening up their banquet room for additional seating.

IMPROV
continued from page 7
is performing in “Smile and Nod” for the second time, because she enjoys the interactive nature of improv.

“It requires energy from the audience to pull it off. A good audience makes a really good show,” Triska said.

Last spring “Smile and Nod” opened to packed houses. Stisko said he hopes the audience response will be positive for this show, as “Smile and Nod” can continue every quarter.

Postern performed in the first “Smile and Nod,” and she said some people attended all three shows. “While a movie ticket costs $7.50, here you can be a part the performance,” Postern said.

Stisko said those who want to attend will get a discount price on the next show. Feb. 13 there are three shows - a sneak preview (a complete performance) at 5 p.m. for $3 and a performance at 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. for $5. Feb. 20 there will be two shows at 6 p.m. and 9 p.m., which are also $5. Performances are in the blackbox theater, building 45, room 212, and tickets are sold at the door.
Free AT&T Call Organizer™ Service.
Say good-bye to the hassle of splitting phone bills between roommates.* Plus, enjoy 10¢ a minute calls and get 100 FREE minutes.

Live off campus? Get FREE AT&T Call Organizer Service. Who says breaking up is hard to do. With our free AT&T Call Organizer Service, we divide your monthly bill by roommate.* So you’ll know who made what call when.

AT&T One Rate® Off Peak*: Now you can stay in touch for the low price of 10¢ a minute, from 7pm–7am weekdays and all weekend long. 25¢ a minute all other times. And there’s no monthly fee.* What a relief! You and your roommates will love how AT&T makes your life easier.

Sign up now and get 100 FREE minutes.* Visit www.att.com/college or call 1 800 654-0471 and mention offer code 66114.

(No more splitting headaches)

It's all within your reach.
SPORTS

RECRUITS continued from page 12

MUSTANG DAILY
Thursday, February 11, 1999

Mustangs take on Alcorn State Tuesday

"The thing with defense is if you try too soft you don't stop anything," he said. "We just need to pick who we want to defend. I think the key is Bythland and Woodall."

The Mustangs will need to keep a much closer watch on the Tornado Jason Williams this time. Williams had just eight points in 23 minutes last week against Cal Poly.

"Jason had the last time," Thomason said. "I think the last three games either is a two-year-old or are slow geese."

According to Thomason, the Mustangs are aware of Williams' abilities.

"We're going to obviously expect more from him this time and we're not going to get off it easily as we did at UCR so we're going to have to really key on him defensively. I think we're easy on them defensively," Thomason said.

The Mustangs also play Saturday at 2:00 p.m. at Matt Grim against the Long Beach State 49ers (6-4).

GOLF CLUB continued from page 11

The club has become increasingly popular in its few years of existence. It was started in January 1997, when Cook was a freshman at Cal Poly. An avid golfer, he was concerned that no student golf association existed at the university.

"I played on my high school team," Cook said. "A main reason I didn't want to come to Cal Poly was because there was no golf club. When I got here, it was my goal to start one."

About 50 people showed up at the first meeting. Encouraged by the initial interest, Cook held a second meeting formally to organize the club and held elections for officers. The golf club was officially born.

Cook said the club has undergone dramatic and exciting changes in the short period of time it has been in existence.

One major change has been the growth in female membership. Of the 120 members, 40 are women.

"At first it was mostly male, but now we have about three girls joining for every five boys," Cook said. "Students continue to come to meetings at first, because it was cool." Another important development has been the formation of Cal Poly's men's and women's golf teams. While the women's team is still looking for competitive members, the men's team has already started its first season with a match against University of California, Santa Barbara.

In the future, they will be playing Stanford, University of California, San Diego and California State University, Fresno, among others.

ECONOMY SYSTEMS

Intel Pentium II 350МХЗ
256MB SDRAM
40GB U/ATA HD
15" Monitor, Printer & Scanner
Wireless Mouse, Keyboard
300W Sileukers • Sound Starter
• 8MB AGP video card
• 450W Power Supply
• 2-Port USB 2.0 Hub
• 158
$249

ECONOMY SYSTEMS

Intel Pentium II 450 МХЗ
512MB SDRAM
60GB U/ATA HD
19" Monitor, Printer & Scanner
Wireless Mouse, Keyboard
300W Sileukers • Sound Starter
• 64MB AGP video card
• 450W Power Supply
• 2-Port USB 2.0 Hub
• 3011
$379

Notes: Laptops/Available!

A DIRTY CAR IS A DIRTY SHAPE!
FAST EDDIE'S SELF SERVICE
CAR WASH

1. BILL CHANGER
2. NO SCRATCH FOAM BRUSH
3. ARMOR-ALL
4. SPAY FREE RINSE
5. VACUUM
6. INTERIOR FRAGRANCE
7. POWER DRIER
8. CARPET/PHOLSTERY CLEANER
9. TOWELS
393 MARSH STREET. NEXT TO CERTIFIED AUTO REPAIR
WE RECYCLE OUR WATER

CHECH OUR WEBSITE!!!

Thursday February 18
10am - 3pm
Chumash Auditorium

"no backpacks please • backpack check in available"

Workshops: Effective Networking
Through the Career Symposium
Thursday, February 11, 1999, 11am - Noon
Career Services, Building 124, Room 224
Tuesday, February 16, 1999, 1pm - 2pm
Career Services, Building 124, Room 224

For more information, refer to the Career Services homepage: www.careerservices.calpoly.edu

Check for jobs on Web Walk up Button on homepage!
Golf club making big strides

By Jen Stevenson

Thursday, February 11, 1999

Mustang Daily

Whether you've headed for the pros, or don't know a hirdie from a hojjey, founder and president Mike Cxxik, a agriculture business junior, vice president Brian McCormac, an in hackfiround, anyone who wants to learn how to play }.;olt, said

"We're looking for anyone who wants to learn the game is eagerly welcome."

"It students are joining late, fees are $25 to join the quire, and next quarter they will be $20."

At Avila Beach, members need only show their membership card to receive $10 off normal prices for 18 holes after 12 p.m., and at Daisy Creek, besides savings on green fees, members can get an individual lesson for $20 an hour, instead of $60. Nine holes at Sea Pines are $7 for club members, and 18 holes are $16 at Black Lake. Members also get discounts on various driving ranges and pro shops. At different times throughout the year, the club sponsors free group lessons from a professional, and free driving-range practice.

The highlight of membership savings is the club's annual trip to the AT&T Pro-Am at Pebble Beach. This year, for a mere $15, members get lodging in Monterey and entry to the Pro-Am Saturday and Sunday. Non-members went along for $25. Cook said about 50 people attended. The funds for this trip come mainly from entry fees for the club's annual fund-raising tournament every November. This year, 105 people participated in the event, at $50 per person. "It makes about $2,000 every year," Cook said. "This trip is so we give back to our members, taking them to the Pebble Beach Pro-Am. Most people don't have that much money, so we help them out."
The Mustangs are currently fifth at Pacific and trail Cal State Fullerton this weekend as they battle to stay in contention for the fourth and final playoff spot in the Big West Tournament.

The Mustangs are currently fifth at Pacific and trail Cal State Fullerton this weekend as they battle to stay in contention for the fourth and final playoff spot in the Big West Tournament.

Both Cal Poly and Pacific have two losses each over the past month, and they both trail Cal State Fullerton in the Big West standings. The Mustangs hope to improve their standing against the Tigers over the weekend.

COMPETITION: Senior quarterback Andy Jepson should get some pressure for the starting spot next year from Kevin Cooper. Cooper threw for 4,638 yards and 50 touchdowns in his career at Mira Costa High School.

By Adam Russo

Mustang Daily

The Cal Poly football team will bring in much-needed new blood next season. With the recruitment of 12 student-athletes, the Mustangs hope to turn around a team that went 1-11 last season.

“We have a lot of athletes in this group,” head coach Larry Walsh said. “They’re all going to help us.”

The coaching staff has to replace approximately 15 players from last year’s team. So far, the staff has met that number with 12 players signed and three players committed to Cal Poly, although they haven’t officially signed their letters of intent.

“I think it was successful,” Walsh said. “We met our needs.”

The Mustangs will get a boost from

see RECRUITING, page 10

Football adds recruits for next year

Matt King

The Eastern Conference is basically up for grabs between the veteran Pacers, the J e e p K i n g s and maybe even the young Cavaliers. The talent level among the conference’s top teams.

There’s no question about who wins the West. Have people already forgotten what a dominant team Utah was? This is the exact same team that made it to the finals the last two years, only to lose to one of the greatest dynasties in sports history.

Sure, the Rockets have three of the “50 Greatest Players” of all time, which serves only as a “little known fact” to mention in their media guide above the team’s all-time record on Valentine’s Day. Hakem Olajuwon and Charles Barkley are obviously still past their prime, and each of them will lose a lot of games N B A s even Immortals. Scottie Pippen is undoubtedly great, but also inconsistent. Now he must play without Olajuwon.

The Lakers, and their misguided fans, would like to believe this is the same team that consistently lost to the Rockets and Lakers.

Money talks, however. The Lakers may want to consider detouring their heated rivals from Utah.

With Michael Jordan out of the league, all the early season talk seems to be focused on determining who will win the NBA championship.

There’s no question about who wins the West. Have people already forgotten what a dominant team Utah was? This is the exact same team that made it to the finals the last two years, only to lose to one of the greatest dynasties in sports history.

Sure, the Rockets have three of the “50 Greatest Players” of all time, which serves only as a “little known fact” to mention in their media guide above the team’s all-time record on Valentine’s Day. Hakem Olajuwon and Charles Barkley are obviously still past their prime, and each of them will lose a lot of games N B A s even Immortals. Scottie Pippen is undoubtedly great, but also inconsistent. Now he must play without Olajuwon.

The Lakers, and their misguided fans, would like to believe this is the same team that consistently lost to the Rockets and Lakers.

Money talks, however. The Lakers may want to consider detouring their heated rivals from Utah.

With Michael Jordan out of the league, all the early season talk seems to be focused on determining who will win the NBA championship.

The L.akers m t w mi consider their misguided fans, would like to believe this is the same team that consistently lost to the Rockets and Lakers.

Money talks, however. The Lakers may want to consider detouring their heated rivals from Utah.

With Michael Jordan out of the league, all the early season talk seems to be focused on determining who will win the NBA championship.

The L.akers m t w mi consider their misguided fans, would like to believe this is the same team that consistently lost to the Rockets and Lakers.

Money talks, however. The Lakers may want to consider detouring their heated rivals from Utah.

With Michael Jordan out of the league, all the early season talk seems to be focused on determining who will win the NBA championship.

The L.akers m t w mi consider their misguided fans, would like to believe this is the same team that consistently lost to the Rockets and Lakers.

Money talks, however. The Lakers may want to consider detouring their heated rivals from Utah.

With Michael Jordan out of the league, all the early season talk seems to be focused on determining who will win the NBA championship.

The L.akers m t w mi consider their misguided fans, would like to believe this is the same team that consistently lost to the Rockets and Lakers.

Money talks, however. The Lakers may want to consider detouring their heated rivals from Utah.